Zoning Board To Ponder Station Plea

The DuPage County Zoning Board of Appeals will take under advisement a request to rezone two acres at the northwest corner of Swift and Army Trail roads, near Addison and south of Bloomingdale.

Walter Mockus, 730 Sherwood Dr., Addison, the property owner, at a public hearing Thursday night requested the entire parcel be rezoned from R-3 (single-family residence) to B-4 (service business) for location of a service station on a portion of the property.

Mockus said the remainder of the parcel may possibly be used to relocate his wholesale plumbing and hardware business, A and A Supply of Chicago, in the future.

He added that negotiations for a land lease with the Marathon Oil Co. are presently in progress.

MRS. KAY HALLEY, 4N065 Robbie, Addison, expressing the objections of some residents in the area, said B-4 is a "blanket zoning" that would allow a wide variety of uses.

"We shouldn't stifle what he wants to do with the property because he has rights, but the existing residents should be considered. If the area continues to be built up for business use, homeowners may sell and the area will become tomorrow's slums."

Another resident, Lawrence Balcer, 4N024 Swift Rd., Addison, said he was also opposed to the rezoning because it would depreciate the value of his property. "In my estimation, a hardware and plumbing business doesn't go along with residential, and B-4 is too broad a zoning."

Aggravation of an existing drainage problem also was cited as an objection to the zoning change by surrounding residents.

A REQUEST BY BOARD members to accept a lesser zoning with a special use stipulation was denied by Mockus because "in business you always have to expand, and I have to plan for this expansion."

Mockus added that if his plumbing business was located on the site, it will all be under one roof and will be done "properly" with surrounding buffer areas.

A really representative for Mockus said the two acres should be zoned B-4 to blend in with zoning on the other three corners of the intersection.

Board members will make a recommendation to the DuPage County Board of Supervisors through its zoning committee within the next several weeks for a final decision.

Christian Men's Unit Sets Annual Lunch

The Itasca Christian Men's Organization will hold its annual luncheon Thursday at the Itasca Country Club.

Doris Dunn, a registered nurse at St. Alexius Hospital, will be the guest speaker, discussing information related to her job as coordinator of the psychiatric center at the hospital.

The organization is composed of men from all the churches in the Itasca area.

THE LIGHT OF THE world shines on the Apostles' Creed, in Roselle's Trinity Lutheran Church, 405 S. Rush St. This 72 foot long and 6 foot high stained glass window along the west wall of the newly dedicated church is a powerful statement of the basic scriptural truths of the Christian religion. The brilliant yellows and oranges and deep reds and greens make the window the most spectacular part of the church. Initial services were held Sunday at 3 p.m.

More Cuts Forecasted After Vote 'Surprise'

District 12 Loses Again, By 3 To 1 Margin

A request for a tax rate increase in the educational fund rate was defeated for the second time within two months by voters in Roselle School Dist. 12 Saturday.

Voters turned down the school board's request for a 30 cent rate increase by more than a three to one margin, 735 voting no and 216 voting yes.

Although the defeat wasn't as stunning as that of the last referendum Nov. 14 which asked for a 75 cent rate increase and lost by almost a nine to one margin, board members expressed disappointment and surprise at the results.

"I WAS SURPRISED at the results," board member Ed Peck, said Saturday night, "I thought the referendum might have an even chance of passing."

The defeat Saturday means no additional tax revenues will be available to the district in this school year. Even if a referendum is passed next month, it will be too late to have the rate increase apply to taxes collected in the spring. "We'll have to completely re-evaluate our plans for next year's program," Peck said, "We'll come back to voters again but probably not in the near future."

MELVIN LUXENBERG, president of the school board said "The board will have to do some serious thinking. Even if this referendum passed we had to make cuts, now we'll have to make more."

According to Peck, a member of the board's finance committee, the district will have a $7,000 deficit in July. Without another rate increase and maintaining the current staff and programs the district will have a $115,000 deficit by July 1, 1972, he said.

"We'll have to provide the best program we can with the monies available," Peck said.

Some of the possibilities which the board will consider, according to Luxenberg is reducing staff, eliminating programs entirely or cutting several programs.

"It seems as if we have to take drastic action before the voters realize the seriousness of the situation. We're in dire financial straits," Luxenberg said.

SATURDAY'S DEFEAT was seen by board members as a general repudiation of higher taxes by homeowners.

Many who voted, Luxenberg noted were elderly, probably with grown children and on fixed incomes.

"I've never seen so many older persons voting in a school election as there have been in our last two," he said.

Luxenberg didn't attribute the referendum defeat to the elderly residents but rather to the failure of the parents in the district to go to polls and vote for it.

"It really bothers me knowing there are between 500 and 600 families with children attending school in the district and the majority of the parents don't even show," he said.

Youth Arrested In Theft Of Magazines

Roselle police arrested a 14-year-old boy last week for the theft of more than $50 in magazines from the 7-11 Food Store, Roselle Road, Roselle.

The arrest was made early in the morning after the store had received a new delivery of magazines. Roselle Police Chief Robert Greve and officer Victor Kubika, arrested the youth. The two policemen had been watching the store for about five weeks.

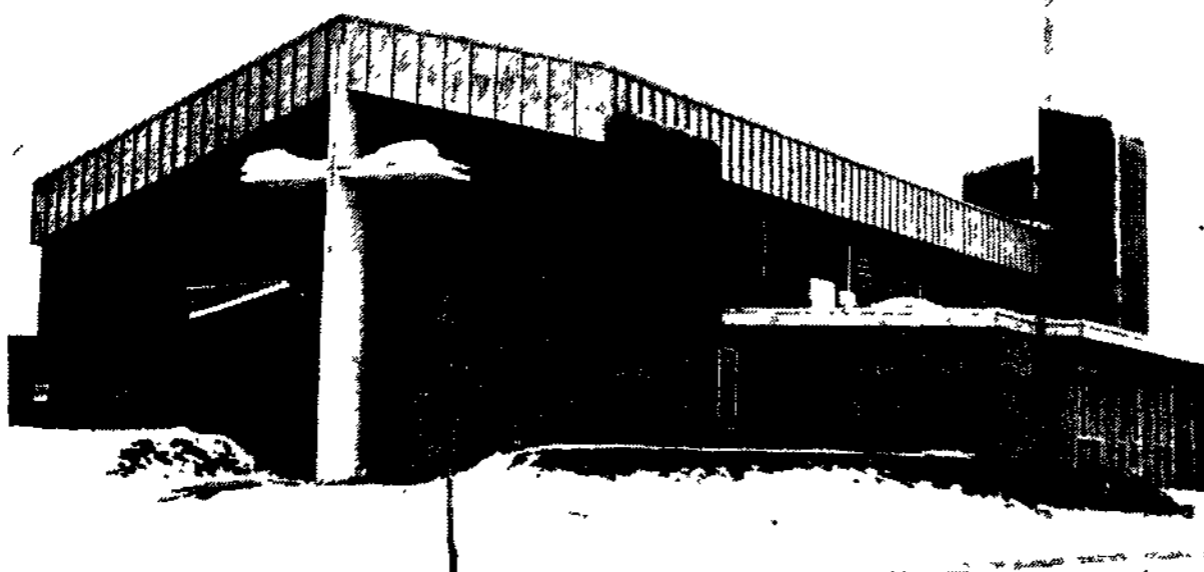

The magazines were allegedly taken after they were delivered to the front door and before the store opened for business.

Chamber Elects

Roland E. Hanke, of the Roselle State Bank was elected as the new president of the Roselle Chamber of Commerce last week.

Other officers elected were A. J. Dutton, Roselle Realty, first vice president; Jim Kail, owner of Ace Hardware, second vice president; Bruce Schutt, Roselle Auto Body, third vice president.

Mrs. Mabel Lucas was elected secretary, and Elaine Lynch of the El-Mar Office Supply Store was elected treasurer.

THE KEY TO THE new Roselle Trinity Lutheran Church, 405 S. Rush St., was officially given to Warren Anderson, congregation's building committee chairman, in solemn dedication services Sunday. The door of the newly completed church was opened for Pastor Eugene Triegla and Rev. Robert Kretschmar who led the congregation in for the service.

Bloomingtoners Organize To Fight Refram Complex

by LOIS KOCH

A group of about 50 Bloomington residents has organized the Bloomington Citizens Alliance to promote joint effort in objecting to the proposed James Refram apartment complex.

James Mueller, 127 N. Pleasant, Bloomington, acting chairman of the group, said members are seeking the help of a planning architect and attorney to represent them before the village board.

Bloomington's Plan Commission last week by a 3-to-1 margin voted to accept preliminary plans for the project.

Four "yes" votes on the commission are required to make a recommendation of approval to the village board.

In accordance with these preliminary plans, the complex, which is to be located on an approximately 15-acre parcel south of Lake Street near Pleasant Avenue, will contain a combination of 11 three-story and 8 four-story buildings, with a total of 396 units.

About 238 of the apartments will have one bedroom, 40 will be efficiency apartments and the rest will have two bedrooms. The entire complex will be built along the southwest shore of the small lake in the area.

MUELLER SAID HIS group's major objectives were to legally either have the parcel rezoned back to R-1 (single-family residential) to comply with zoning of the surrounding areas, or to have the developer live up to the original ordinance.

In mentioning the "original ordinance," Mueller was referring to the first planned development approved last year by the plan commission, which has since been altered.

This first project consisted of an apartment complex with eight buildings and a total of 396 units, about one-third of which would have one-bedroom and the rest two-bedroom apartments.

The citizens group, Mueller said, hopes to have the existing proposal changed back to the original, or possibly have the entire project eliminated on legal grounds concerning the way in which the matter has been handled with regard to publication of alterations in the plan.

HE SAID RESIDENTS have doubts about legal and publishing procedures with regard to the change in the amount of land to be donated to the Bloomington Park District and the type of zoning granted.

Mueller said no legal publication was made indicating the reduction of the 20 acres to be given to the park district to about 16 acres, and that R-5 (high-density residential) zoning was designated and then changed to R-4, also high density zoning, when R-5 was eliminated from the village's zoning code.

Jack Waghorne, Bloomington's village

attorney, said a clause in the ordinance for the original planned development stated that approximately 20 acres of lake area would be designated for public recreational use. However, a survey showed that the lake consisted of only about 16 acres.

With regard to the zoning controversy, Waghorne said that when the developer's original plan was approved in 1968, the village's zoning code included the R-5 classification.

During April of 1969, he said, the zoning code was altered renaming the R-5 category to R-4. Waghorne added that when the developer published for alterations to the original plan several months ago, it was done so as R-4.

IN ADDITION to objections concerning procedures, Mueller said members of his group are concerned with traffic problems because of provisions for only one entrance into the development, and the general "saturation" of the land by the large number of persons occupying the apartments.

He also cited the destruction of the landscaping of the area, saying that with large-scale construction the existing oak trees on the site area would die.

Art Petranek, 5N771 Sycamore, Medinah, president of the Medinah Homeowners Association, agreed with Mueller that there were inconsistencies in legal procedures and that his group is also seeking an attorney's assistance in dealing with the issue.

"Plans have been revised somewhat in accordance with our wishes concerning noise and buffer zones, but that other problems with traffic, fencing and drainage in the area are still unresolved," he said.

HE ADDED THAT he believed zoning for the project was inconsistent with adjacent zoning and that it was not in accord with state standards.

Both Mueller and Petranek agreed that the matter would have to be handled at the village board level because the plan commission did nothing about their requests.

"We've tried to explain our point of view to them (the plan commission) but they just won't listen," Mueller said.

He cited an incident at last week's plan commission meeting when members of the commission "ignored" his group's request to postpone action until legal counsel was present.

Petranek also said he believed that the fact that the plan commission is not fully represented is also adding to the problem. At present, there are two vacant seats on the commission to be filled.

Gary Thompson, a member of the plan commission, expressed similar feelings saying he felt the body could not work effectively without full representation.

Knuepfer To Enter Bills For Elderly

State Sen. Jack T. Knuepfer R-Elmhurst is introducing two bills at the current session of the Illinois General Assembly to assist older citizens in meeting the rising cost of property taxes.

The Homestead Exemption that was passed at the last session of the General Assembly, which gives property tax breaks to the elderly, was declared unconstitutional. The new Constitution, however, makes it clear that a Homestead Exemption can be passed.

Reducing the property taxes on the older citizens will enable them to continue living in the same communities in which their friends and families live, Knuepfer said. He predicted that this session would see the passage of a Homestead Exemption Act to ease these tax burdens.

Looking For A Job? Area Businessmen May Be Of Help

LEA TONKIN

Despite today's downturn in employment activity, a group of Northwest Suburban businessmen is taking steps to boost the area's appeal in the people market.

Hiring and retaining new personnel are major concerns of the Northwest Industrial Council, according to its president, Jack Rhind. The outgrowth of an association formed in 1958 for the interchange of information, the council is oriented to personnel and industrial relations workers.

Its membership extends as far south as

Bensenville and as far north as Mundelein and Crystal Lake. Formally incorporated in 1965, the Northwest Industrial's membership Council has grown from a handful of firms to a membership of more than 150 small and large companies.

"We want to let other companies know that we are interested in their problems," said Rhind, personnel director at Methode Manufacturing Corp. in Rolling Meadows. "Companies moving out to the area as well as those already located here are welcome to contact us for information or service."

"The biggest asset to our members is our annual wage and benefit survey," said Rhind. "Soon after the group was organized, members expressed a need for this type of information. A survey was established, which member companies fill out each year for hourly and salaried non-exempt employees. The results are compiled in booklet form and distributed to our members."

"An electronic component manufacturer, for example, wants to know what other companies in this area are paying their assembly workers. He's not interested in what employers are paying on the South Side of Chicago or some other area," said Rhind.

WAGES FOR A given job may vary widely, as much as $100 a week, among the companies surveyed by the council. It includes union as well as non-union employees.

Employers also extend or withhold a variety of benefits. Among these are pay for jury duty, the number of paid holidays, office breaks, insurance, leave of absence, pension and profit sharing plans and overtime pay.

"If a company is having trouble in hiring or keeping janitorial personnel, for example, the company's pay rates can be adjusted according to the average benefits paid in the area. This enables companies to be competitive in hiring new personnel," Rhind said.

The concerns of personnel experts are changing with the times, Rhind said. "Three years ago it was hard to get people. Now that we're in an economic slump, there is no problem in finding new employees," he said.

"A new area of interest is the drug abuse problem," said Rhind. "Companies have indicated an interest in this problem, so we have planned a seminar on drugs in industry later this month."

The Northwest Industrial Council meets every other month. It has a permanent office and a part-time executive secretary. A Labor Relations subgroup and a scholarship program are among its activities.

NOISE Members Make Noise

It appears the members of the National Organization to Insure A Sound-controlled Environment (NOISE) made their own kind of verbal noise this past weekend in Los Angeles.

Bensenville Village Pres. John Varble reported late last week there was "quite a turn out" at the nationwide conference, which was held to organize support against jet noise. Varble currently serves as secretary to NOISE.

Representatives from several Chicago suburbs besides Bensenville are also attending the three-day conference on the West Coast. Among other area villages represented are Wood Dale, Des Plaines, Schiller Park and Park Ridge.

Representatives of cities and villages in Georgia, New York, Massachusetts, Washington, Missouri and Wisconsin are also attending the conference.

Illinois Governor Richard Ogilvie sent a representative of the state environmental control committee to the conference, Varble said.

Representatives were expected to return late yesterday. A report on conference results will be available this week.

Value Of Unincorporated DuPage Up

DuPage County's unincorporated areas increased in valuation by almost $35 million dollars in 1970, according to figures released this week by the County Building and Zoning Department.

The amount represents the total value of all the permits issued by the department during the past year.

Permits for single family dwellings were most frequently issued. The 690 single family homes for which permits were issued were valued collectively at $18.7 million.

Multiple family homes added the second highest valuation to the county. A total of 22 permits worth $3.4 million were issued for the multiple dwellings. The 22 buildings added 308 apartment or townhouse units to the county.

Permits issued for business buildings added another $2.8 million to the county and 42 permits were issued for new construction and additions to industrial buildings worth more than $3 million.

Man Promoted At GTE Electric

William E. Walenda, 515 Memory Lane, Addison, has been named a supervisor in the Manufacturing Inspection Department at GTE Automatic Electric Inc., Northlake.

Walenda, who joined the electronics and communications systems manufacturing company in 1962, started as a laboratories technician. He later worked in factory accounting, and since 1965 he had been a circuit tester.

A graduate of Immaculate Conception high school, Elmhurst, he continued his studies at DeVry Technical Institute during his first years of employment at GTE Automatic.

Walenda is a member of a famous family at GTE Automatic, and often has to explain that "it's not the Flying Wallendas of circus fame — they spell the name differently, anyway."

The Walendas at Northlake include Bill's father, Myron, a millwright who has been with the company 32 years; a brother, Richard, a tool and die maker with 12 years' service; an aunt, Lillian Lord, inspection department, 44 years; and an uncle Edward Kozak, Inspection, nearly 30 years.

"That totals over 120 years, Bill Walenda noted. "but, in addition, I have an uncle, Edwin Lord, who retired after 30 years at GTE Automatic. He was a precision gauge inspector."

Bill Walenda is active in softball, basketball, bowling and numerous other sports, and admits an interest in "just about every sport there is." He is also intent on continuing his education, particularly in the field of electronics.

Rule Out Special Refuse Containers

Special garbage containers for discarded bottles and cans will no longer be used by Wood Dale residents, according to Hilbert Gurke, sanitation commissioner.

Thursday night Gurke recommended the removal of special containers for these items and the village council supported him unanimously. Bottles and cans may be placed in regular containers.

"I've also had a lot of calls from people on garbage can lids that aren't put back on cans," Gurke said. "The garbage can lids will be placed on containers by the sanitation department."

Gurke said residents were complaining because F. A. Burnier, who formerly handled sanitation service in the village, put lids back on cans. He added that his department will start doing the same.

Gocha The Bear In PTO Kid's Movie

Gocha the Talking Bear will star in the Feb. 1 movie sponsored by the Roselle Parent Teachers' Organization (PTO) at Parkside School on Maple Street.

The movie, part of a series sponsored by the PTO on school free days, will run 88 minutes. School doors open at 1 p.m. and the movie begins at 1:30 p.m. in the gym. A 50-cent admission charge includes a bag of popcorn.

Sgt. Robert A. Cortese, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Cortese, 119 E. Comstock Ave., Addison, recently received the Army Commendation Medal while serving with the 4th Infantry Division near An Khe, Vietnam.

Cortese earned the award for meritorious service as a squad leader in the division's company E, 1st Battalion of the 12th Infantry.

The sergeant entered the army in February 1969.

'Save Resources' Push Slated By Scouts

In February, project SOAR (Save Our American Resources) will be initiated by 58 Boy Scout Cub Packs, Troops, and Explorer Units in the DuPage Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Although a variety of community improvement or conservation projects will be based on the needs of each community, projects will be principally those that lead themselves to boy participation such as air and water pollution, litter collection and prevention, and waste disposal and recycling.

What's Happening With Abortion

Abortion Question Evokes Strong Emotions

by MARY B. GOOD
(Second of three parts)

Just mention the word "abortion" and you open the emotional floodgates of public opinion.

The Paddock Publications' letters to the editor pages have been a hotbed of debate long before and ever since the newspapers took an editorial stand favoring legalized abortion on May 6, 1970. This fall and winter came another surge of letter-writing:

"Nothing less than murder," Mrs. Frank C. Johaneck, Arlington Heights.

"It isn't an exaggeration to foresee infanticide and mercy killing as a 'necessary' social follow-up," Mrs. Donald McKinney, Bensenville.

"Those humans who live selfishly only for themselves and their own comfort and pleasure are also only just so much human flotsam," Mrs. R. Nagy, Buffalo Grove.

"Are we animals that a life can be destroyed with the paying of a few hundred dollars to the abortionists? They are lining their pockets with blood money . . . who can justify the killing?" Virginia Sandberg, Mount Prospect.

"IT (ABORTION) was a common and accepted practice in the Roman Empire and contributed to the moral decline and fall of that nation. Does history have to repeat itself?" Judy Toye, Prospect Heights.

"When man starts playing God, he's in serious trouble," Mary Svec, Des Plaines.

Opponents of abortion law relaxation and criminal wrong. They favor the rights of the unborn child over the mother.

Activists seeking legalized abortion defend their position by upholding the rights of the mother. They want to separate the church from the state, to make abortion a strictly medical matter — like the decision to remove an appendix, a tonsil or a tooth.

DR. LONNY MYERS, abortion crusader, at a tea for legislators' wives held to discuss the dignity of women, commented:

"As an educated woman, I resent changing my life to conceive an unwanted baby."

(Selfish, charge the critics.)

"Society says, 'Tough on you, baby, do the best you can with the pregnancy.' The doctor says, 'Too bad.' The law says, 'Have the baby.' It evokes a gut response in women," said Dr. Myers.

The arguments go back and forth centering on freedom of choice, rights of the unborn, humanitarianism, morality, definition of human life and when it begins, the quality of life. But truce is never declared because the controversy is so emotionally charged.

"WHEN THE ISSUE comes up in the state legislature," said Rep. Eugenia A. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, "It's good for a two-hour debate."

The Rev. Ruppert Lovely, an Arlington Heights clergyman who gives abortion counseling, notes the vehemence that clouds the issue.

"The general thrust against abortion is punitive. The reason people use the language of murder and moralism is motivated by a desire to punish women for having sex," he said. "I can usually spot the people who oppose abortion law reform. They are generally the same people who favor capital punishment."

"As a nation and as a people, we collaborate in the policy of supporting and driving autos, for example. Our collaboration in that terminates thousands of lives and maims and cripples thousands more. Nobody calls this murder. We call this manslaughter and accidents. We know lives will be terminated, but no one says this is immoral," he opined.

"WE MAKE OUR decision on whether to use the auto based on the overall good or bad that it accomplishes for us. I suggest we ought to approach the issue of abortion on the same basis — measuring the good or evil in terms of overall quality of life for the individuals involved."

(Bad analogy, counter the critics.)

With the Illinois General Assembly now in session, the issue is likely to be debated even more hotly as proponents of reform try to change the state's law on abortion and opponents fight as rigorously against change.

FASHION

by Genie

Do blondes have more fun? I don't know. No one let me stay one long enough to find out. But if snide office comments are any indication of favor or disfavor, I flunked the test and serve as a prime example. It's bet to remain natural.

Only a cop-out is always available, namely that my co-workers weren't used to seeing me as anything else but a brunette.

I borrowed my roommate's frosted blond wig one morning fishing for reactions. I caught several big ones, not all of them complimentary. Why is it always the women who adore change while the men stare, shake their heads and softly inquire, "What have you done?"

BUT HURRAH for those who thought someone new had started working at my desk. That was the most fun of all.

But just because more men preferred me the way they were used to seeing me, doesn't mean the blond thing is over-rated.

However, a hair product company survey using a variety of beautiful chorus girls and a volunteer group of on-the-spot hardhats, revealed that although blondes are what gentlemen are thought to prefer, it ain't necessarily so. Brunettes and redheads were both preferred above blondes.

It is also interesting to note that long still has it over short, straight over curly.

Yet I might add that in reply to the question, "When you first look at a girl, do you notice her hair immediately?" Over half of the men involved in the survey honestly answered "No."

THAT GOES TO SHOW that women have to change in order to get men to notice how they looked originally. Wigs help out. They allow women to take the plunge without taking drastic steps that cannot be retraced either in hair color, style or length.

It's even more fun when you're wearing a wig because you want to, and not because it has become a necessity. In other words, it's nice to have an attractive head of your own.

Holding on to the hair you were born with or keeping it healthy is the sole business of Don Lee Sehner. While everyone cannot afford a trip to New York City, much less a series of treatments by him, certain advice can be taken to heart without cost.

DON HAS ALL SORTS of theories. For instance, he doesn't believe that baldness is especially inherited.

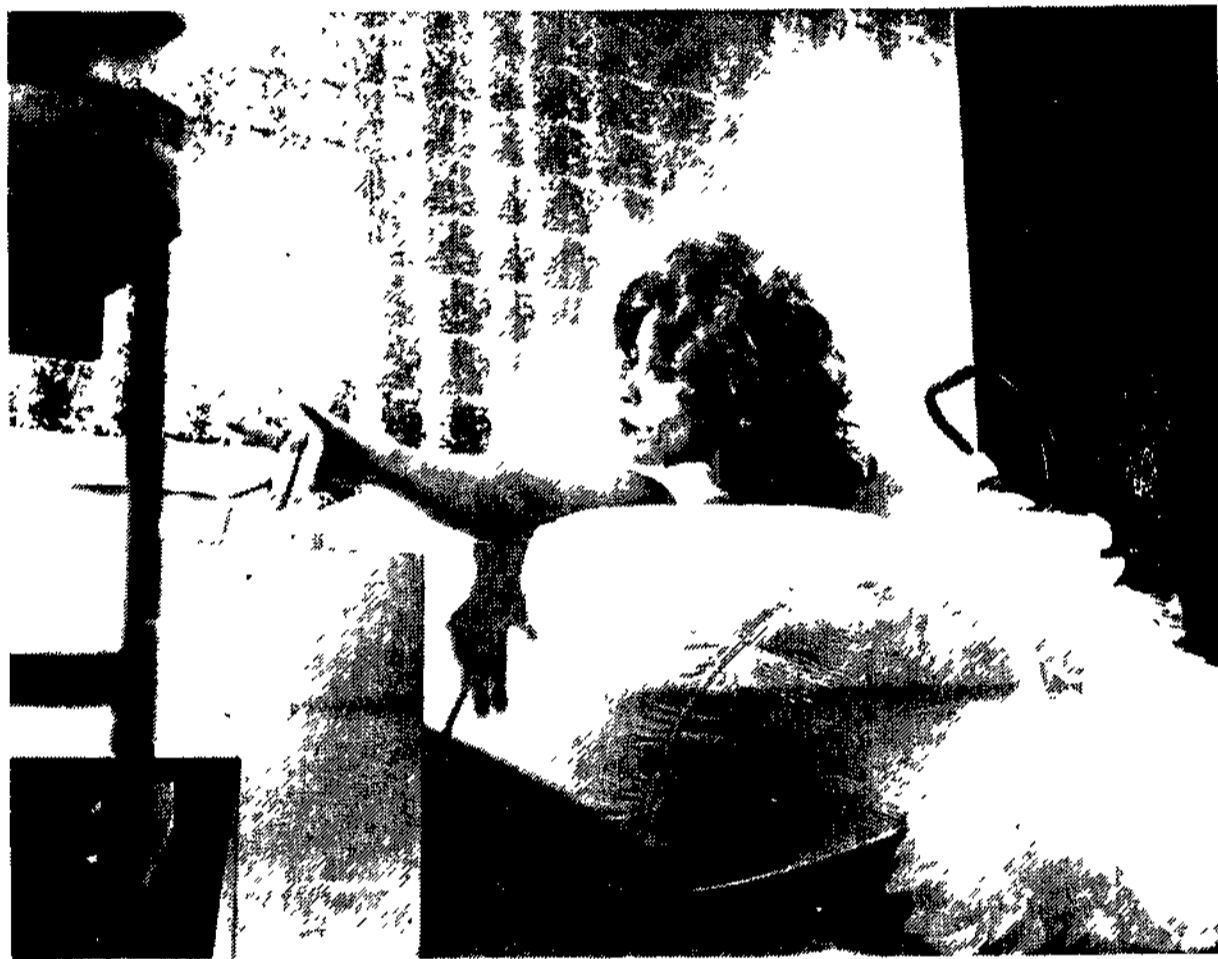

"It's what you do while you are alive, rather than before you are born, that will have the greatest effect on hair growth," he said in Women's Wear Daily. "Diet, of course, is important and everything you have ever learned about a well-balanced one is going to improve your hair."

According to Don, who turned his own head around in the right direction after it threatened to go bald, exercise also is a must for healthy tresses. He suggests a daily head or shoulder stand to improve circulation.

"Circulation rather than heredity," says Don, "is what causes more men than women to lose their hair."

HE IS CONVINCED that certain drugs will cause hair loss, like antibiotics and birth control pills. Smoking, he feels, cuts off circulation and narcotics hinder hair growth because most users neglect their health altogether.

While I'm not going bald, I'm not finished with the men in our office yet either. I've only begun to test them with my hair disguises. Last week I saw a woman in a pale blue wig. I bet that would stir a few additional reactions. What's blond compared with blue?

Workshop Message To Women

There's Concern About Your Opportunities

by GENIE CAMPBELL

A second "Expanding Horizons" workshop for women was held last week at Harper College following the success of the introductory one in October.

Retaining much of the same format, the afternoon program was designed to bring out housewives from the doldrums of the home, help them to examine their own wants and needs and then outline the opportunities available in the immediate community, whether it be a return to school, a job or volunteer work.

The program was repeated in the evening to accommodate more women.

Following a keynote address by Dr. Kathryn Clarenbach, a specialist in women's education with the University of Wisconsin, the women broke into several discussion groups where various group leaders offered suggestions and aided the women in expressing their own fears and feelings.

"THERE IS NOW a serious concern with opportunities for women in our society," began Dr. Clarenbach, who is also the original chairman of the board of National Organization for Women (NOW), chairman of the Commission on the Status of Women for Wisconsin and president of the Interstate Association of Commissions on the Status of Women.

"It has entered into serious discussion and public debate which don't make headlines in quite the same way but move more toward our objectives in quieter, more dramatic ways.

"We are currently working toward a guaranteed annual income which women need more than the men," she continued. "Women who alone are raising their children are damned if they do, damned if they don't. If she stays home to take care of her kids, she is considered a parasite on society. If she is out earning her living, she is told it is not proper, that a mother's place is in the home with her children."

DR. CLARENBACH awed the 75 housewives who had braved the cold to attend the seminar with her instances of sexual discrimination.

"Among full professors on campus at Wisconsin," cited Dr. Clarenbach, "there's an average difference of $4,000 between salaries of men and women with the same credentials."

"The gap even widens in more specialized fields," she added.

Positions in chemistry-related fields have an average $7,000 pay differential for beginning employees, Dr. Clarenbach reported.

"The average woman with a college degree working full-time receives an annual wage comparable to a black man with a high school education and a white man with an eighth grade education," she continued.

HOWEVER, DR. CLARENBACH declared, the state of affairs is not hopeless.

"Today, it is a different ball game," she said. "We're recognizing the disadvantages and demanding change."

One step in the right direction, Dr. Clarenbach believes, was two executive orders by President Johnson to include the word "sex" in prohibiting discrimination of any form where service and federal contracts are involved.

"With the fair employment laws, one could mediate, but there was no means of real enforcement," pointed out Dr. Clarenbach. "The employer was simply told 'naughty, naughty,' but now those not in compliance with the law can have their federal contracts lifted."

"THIS ALSO GOES for universities," she said. "Institutions of learning had previously been exempted. Now there are no exceptions. A university would crumble without its federal contracts."

Dr. Clarenbach cited University of Michigan as an example. Funds were actually withheld until discriminatory practices against female faculty members were eliminated.

"I am not of the branch of women's liberation that is man-eating," said Dr. Clarenbach, mother of three. "We do not have to exclude men. We must learn to work with them on all kinds of levels without overtones of sexuality."

"It takes all kinds of people doing all kinds of things. It was insulting to us to be told we couldn't ride on executive flights (airlines now allow women on all flights), play golf only on ladies day, not be allowed for lunch in some restaurants where a great deal of business transacts over the noon hour, or be denied bank loans, insurance or mortgages unless our husbands are present."

"THE GOALS ARE now identified," she concluded. "We are beginning to take active steps to bring about changes."

The women expressed individual reasons for attending the seminar.

"I'd like to find some means of self-expression," said one.

"I came to listen and think for myself a little about what I'd like to do," said someone else.

"I'm here because I'm curious," added still another.

It was brought out in one discussion group following the keynote address that women desiring to return to full-time employment must seek the cooperation of their husband and children.

"You can't do it alone," commented one working mother. "The attitude of your husband makes all the difference."

That's Just Sherry Nonsense

It Doesn't Always Pay To Pay Cash

by MARY SHERRY

I remember my father telling me that one way to get rich is always to pay cash. But nowadays one doesn't usually get the chance.

Banks and other groups of money people who know say we're moving in a cashless society. I say we're already there.

My first realization of this was Friday when I received a refund in the mail. It was a crisp, brand new dollar bill. However it didn't look right to me. I checked George's hairline, the mortise and the weight of the paper, but I could find nothing wrong with it. I finally concluded that it had been so long since I had seen real money that it didn't look authentic.

Then I began reflecting on my children's outlook on money. I have never been able to convince them that when my wallet is empty, I am broke. Probably because on such occasions (which happen frequently) they have witnessed some amazing shopping sprees on credit cards.

CASHING A CHECK is a big event in our family. The kids are convinced that I go to the store "to get money." It is also very hard to teach them the value of a dollar when they rarely see one. And a child of six or seven who is ready to understand such things is really not capable of understanding credit cards and checks.

I have found that it's almost impossible to make these concepts real to a child without being drawn into explaining the total operations of banks and the principle of credit. "But Mommy, where do THEY get the money?" is the first question and it always stops me cold.

In my wondering at the speed with which we have practically eliminated cash from our daily lives, it occurred to me that the idea that money is the root of all evil may have had a lot to do with it. In a cashless society at least we don't have to touch the stuff!

BUT OUR WORLD really does lack something without cash. The image of my husband lovingly counting his credit cards in no way compares with the picture of Uriah Heep counting his gold. One rarely sees a bank roll any more. And the person who pays cash is even somewhat suspect.

I remember once paying for groceries with two $20 bills, and the checkout clerk carefully wrote down their serial numbers and my general description. I haven't paid cash since. Writing a check is less harrowing and faster.

I must admit, though, that my father was right. It saves money to pay cash, if you can get away with it. At 15 cents a check plus five cents to cash it, and then adding the astronomical interest rates on charge accounts — slapped on whether or not the merchandise was returned or if the mail with your payment was delayed — our cashless society is costly.

MANY PEOPLE ARE deeply in debt because they were not prepared to live without cash. This makes me wonder, when I leaf through my children's math books that teach them to deal with nickels, dimes and quarters, if we shouldn't be making a real effort to teach them to deal with unlimited credit, "no money down" and the temptation to consume now, pay later.

It's a worthwhile consideration because then perhaps our children will be wiser than we are and will be able to afford to take care of us when we get old and our credit runs out!

YOU NAME IT — they had it to sell at last Wednesday's white elephant sale sponsored by Mount Prospect Junior Women's Club. It followed a salad luncheon for which "elephants" were part of the admission charge. Mrs. Patrick Sullivan, a guest, and Mrs. David Acuff, member, look over some of the items. Proceeds went to the Juniors' philanthropies.

Abortion Only First Step, Anti-Abortion Film Warns

A physician involved in the Right To Life Movement told about 130 persons at an anti-abortion meeting Thursday, "The Freudian viewpoint suggests that everyone would like to go back to the security of the womb. But today the womb is one of the most unsafe places to be."

Dr. Herbert Rohr, a member of St. Theresa's Catholic Church, Palatine, gave a group of his fellow parishioners a low pressure presentation on the legal, social, medical and moral aspects of the abortion issue.

He then showed a film, "The Committers," produced for the Right To Life group, that depicted abortion as the first step in a chain of homicide which would include mercy killing and selective liquidation of the elderly.

"The abortion issue is just a learner's permit as far as the license to kill is concerned," the narrator said.

"THE COMMITTEE" used a reverse psychology approach to comment that the mistakes society doesn't catch at six weeks, it would conceivably catch at six years or 60 years. "Society grows heavy under the weight of mistakes. How does it handle mistakes? Kill them."

"People could construct a brave new world," the film continued, "and create human beings they structured, while playing God with the quality of life."

The film ended with a blunt, dire statement on the changing social patterns. "Nineteen eight-four is only 14 (sic) years from now."

Dr. Rohr said that most persons advocating abortion are well-meaning but that some extreme proponents of abortion law relaxation are interested in breaking down the family structure and lessening the value of life.

HE SUGGESTED that those against abortion make their position known to their legislators. "Forget about state aid to education if necessary," he said, "but get out and beat the drums for the right to life."

The answer to unwanted pregnancy, volunteered a man in the audience, is similar in concept to the principle of dieting. "If you don't want to get fat, don't eat."

Newlyweds Off To Morocco

Rabat, Morocco, is the new home of Lynn Susan Stack and her bridegroom Terry W. Hearn. A Navy electronics technician, third class, Terry has been stationed in Morocco since last July; he flew home Dec. 18 and the couple were married the afternoon of New Year's Eve in St. James Nuns' Convent Chapel, Arlington Heights.

Daughter of the Edward Stacks, 1405 E. Miner, Arlington Heights, Lynn met Terry while he was stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training Center. Lynn is a June '70 graduate of Prospect High School and Terry, son of the Albert Hearn of Delmar, Del., is a '67 graduate of Delmar High School.

The bride's uncle, Fr. Rock Stack of the College of St. Thomas in St. Paul, Minn., gave the mass and the wedding ceremony during which Lynn's brother Bill served as altar boy. Lynn's sister Kathy served as only attendant to the bride and Thomas Judd of Mequin, Wis., who is also stationed in Morocco, flew home with Jerry to serve as best man.

Lynn's brother Edward was also to have been an altar boy but a broken ankle prevented him from taking part in the 1:30 o'clock, double ring service.

Red poinsettias and white baby mums were the decorations for the Dec. 31 service.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE by her father Lynn wore a white lace gown with jewel neckline, long, full sleeves with a narrow band at the cuffs and a straight skirt with tiered side and back ruffles extending into a train. A seed pearl and velvet leaf crown held her shoulder-length veil and she carried a nosegay of red roses and baby's breath.

Deep blue velvet with gold braid trim was the choice of the maid of honor who also wore a Juliet cap of gold trimmed with blue velvet ribbon. Her nosegay was of blue and white baby mums.

Mrs. Stack chose an off-white lace dress with corsage of gardenias and stephanotis. The dinner reception for the wedding party and immediate family was held in Old Orchard Country Club. Among the out-of-town relatives present were the bride's maternal grandfather, G. W. Sands of Elyria, Ohio, and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Robert Stack Sr. of Lorain, Ohio.

The newlyweds spent a 3-day honeymoon at the Royal Court Inn in Des Plaines before flying to Morocco. They expect to remain in Morocco until July 1972.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I am wondering what has happened to little girls' party dresses I searched everywhere for a pretty dress for my granddaughter this past Christmas season without any luck. Has the mini-midi question boggled up the whole dress business? —Sheila M.

Found myself in the same boat. Finally settled on a tailored dress for our granddaughter with muttered apologies on the side to the daughter-in-law. A little checking has revealed a trend away from the fancy dresses of yesterday. What with laundering such an item these days with the various magic fabrics, any young mother ought to go for the idea.

Dear Dorothy: Do dried fruits have to be stored in the refrigerator? —Rose H.

Dried fruits can be stored at cool room temperature for six months or longer. Prunes and raisins are apt to retain their color longer than lightly colored fruits like apples, apricots and peaches.

Dear Dorothy: My son left a ballpoint pen in the pocket of his brand-new, green-striped bell-bottoms. Practically all the ink leaked out and I was sure the pants were ruined. However, I saturated the area with rubbing alcohol and rubbed briskly with a small brush. Then made up a solution of the new powdered chlorine bleach and applied it with the brush and scrubbed a bit more. The pants were then laundered, as usual. They came out spotless. —Mrs. Carol Burchett.

Love your ingenuity but which one did the trick?

Dear Dorothy: To remove plastic wrap which has adhered to silver, just dip in boiling water. If it doesn't loosen the first time, dip again and it will slip right off. —Mrs. Louis R. Whitaker.

Dear Dorothy: Thought you might be interested in a little adventure we have had this winter with a frozen rib roast. My husband preceded me in a long distance move and took along a freezer chest. I put a good-sized frozen roast in it to keep other things cold. When he got to his destination, the roast was not completely frozen but cold enough so he put it into the freezer of our new home. Christmas-time we took the roast along to our hostess where we were going to stay. We forgot it in the truck of the car and it was in there for two days before we remembered. It was still cold so it was cooked for dinner that night. It was one of the best roasts we've ever had. Were we taking a chance? —Mrs. Howard K.

You were actually following all the rules about refrigerating meat. If the roast remained cold in the first move that was no reason why it couldn't be refrozen. And keeping it in the car in the cold weather you probably kept it at the same temperature one uses in a refrigerator. So you were okay all along. Glad it turned out so nicely.

Dear Dorothy: I see that readers have asked you how to get film stains out of teapots. I put one teaspoonful of automatic dishwasher detergent into the pot, fill with hot water and let it soak for about 15 minutes. Whether it will work on ceramic pots or not, I don't know, but my glass pot comes out spotless. —Mrs. John M.

Dear Dorothy: Noticed a friend was having trouble stringing some popcorn. Glad I was there to help out. Maybe some of your readers might not know this, either. I had her cover the bowl containing the popcorn with a damp tea towel for 30 minutes; then start the stringing. —Jessica P.

Prairie Turns Into A Garden

"Twelve Months of the Year" will be Plum Grove Garden Club's first program of the new year, slated this evening in the home of Mrs. Thomas Ormerod, 4660 Dawngate Lane, Rolling Meadows. A one-half acre prairie will be transformed into a garden by Mrs. Alfred Wedow of Palatine.

How she did it will unfold before the members' eyes as she presents slides showing what happened over the years. Mrs. Wedow is treasurer of Palatine Park Garden Club and has been a member there for 19 years.

The Way We See It

Metro Deserves Rational Study

Metropolitan Government.

Rarely have two words generated as much apprehension and controversy as these did several years ago when former Arlington Heights Mayor John G. Woods proposed a merger of 10 Northwest suburban communities into one.

"You'll destroy our local identity."

"We'll become another Chicago."

"We'll have high crime rates and ghettos."

"It's all part of a takeover by the state and we'll end up with socialism."

Emotion, rather than reason, characterized the reaction to Woods' proposal; after a few months of conversation and study, the proposal quietly faded and hasn't been heard from since.

Until now. Last week, the Commission on Urban Area Government submitted to Governor Ogilvie a legislative program aimed at "the survival of the institution of local government."

There has been little publicity given the proposal thus far and that apparently explains the lack of opposition.

But opposition will surely come, and our hope now is that the proposal can get a fair and impartial hearing before any decision is made to accept or reject it.

We will reserve our judgment of the proposal until specific legislation is offered and the legislative process begins.

But we do think some points should be made concerning the proposal and the current status of government in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Because of a provision in the 1870 Illinois Constitution that restricts the debt limit of government units, Illinois has been plagued by an overabundance of such units, many created for the sole purpose of dealing with a particular problem which other units could not deal with because the Constitution would not allow them to spend the necessary money.

As a result, Illinois currently has 6,453 units of local government, more than any other state. As the commission pointed out in its report, there are more local government units serving Illinois residents than there are dentists.

The effects of this are felt most severely in the suburbs where population growth and the demand for immediate services is generally several years ahead of the expanded tax base that can keep taxes at a reasonable level. The result is higher taxes and more governmental units.

The average homeowner in the Northwest suburbs is paying taxes to as many as 11 different local government units. These include village, township, county, forest preserve district, fire protection district, elementary school district, high school district, junior college district, mosquito abatement district, sanitary district, park district and tuberculosis protection district.

It costs money to administer each of these districts and, without a doubt, it would cost less if some were consolidated. It also would cost less if, for example, 10 towns had one police department with one police chief and one communications system.

There can be no denying that some form of consolidation would result in a lower price tag — and lower taxes — for government services. It has worked in the past and, in at least one case, the results have been dramatic.

In 1967, voters in Jacksonville, Fla., and Duval County agreed to consolidate the functions of the two government agencies. The outcome has been astounding.

Not only have taxes gone down each year since the merger, but with revenue saved by avoiding duplication, the community has been able to add 134 policemen and 200 firemen, it has been able to install 7,500 street lights, it has paved or resurfaced 676 miles of streets and has replaced 132 miles of sewers. And taxes have decreased.

Those are impressive facts; the tax decrease alone would be welcomed with open arms in the Northwest suburbs. There is no reason to believe that similar economies would not follow such a consolidation in the Chicago area, either as a metropolitan unit or a series of regional units similar to the one proposed by Woods.

We are not endorsing metropolitan government for the Chicago area at this time. We want to hear more facts and more about the commission proposal. But we do think the available facts and possible tax savings are substantial enough that the Commission on Urban Area Government's proposal must be given a fair and open hearing without the emotional outcry that accompanied the previous discussion.

Marijuana Isn't Pink Tea

by DOROTHY MEYER

If it's possible to talk something to death, marijuana may keel over tomorrow. I'm getting my licks in on the subject today. Don't expect a lofty opinion about whether or not the stuff should be legalized, moralized, fertilized or pasteurized. I don't know.

What I do know about using marijuana is that it's stupid, dangerous and expensive. I know this because I read a lot of suburban newspapers every day, and everything I read and mark is clipped and filed in Paddock Publications' editorial library. That's my job here.

Filing news stories means making thousands of reference cards on thousands of people so that we can find any given item a month, a year or five years later. And the reference cards for kids picked up on marijuana charges tell a sad sad story. Only once could I grin a little and that was two years ago when I read about the juvenile who paid $5 for a joint that turned out to be parsley. That's why I say using marijuana is stupid. Even as a dumb bride I knew better than to pay $5 for a bunch of parsley.

The sadness comes when I make a reference card on an attempted suicide and discover that I already have a card on him for marijuana. Some time after the marijuana entry he must have slipped into using the hard stuff (82 per cent of the "weed is wonderful" kids do) because there was the ultimate need for a third reference. Suicide. The poor kid finally made it.

Dorothy Meyer

Second references to "CRIME — theft" are commonplace. Naturally the $5-a-joint buyer has to steal to support his pleasures. Maybe some of affluent suburbia's offspring can hit dear old Dad for a fiver a day with no questions asked, but most families can't afford that. So juvenile crime is on the rise. Yes, Virginia, marijuana is expensive.

Pot party raids and raids on pushers are sad sick filing, too. Almost inevitably there'll be stolen property and contributing to the delinquency of a minor involved in the pot parties; pushers lean more towards the possession of pornographic material and deviate sexual assaults. Just don't anybody try to con me that using marijuana is no worse than my martini-before-dinner habit. The worst thing I do after dinner is fall asleep.

Advocates of marijuana make me fall asleep, too. Their arguments are so monotonously alike I sometimes think they all come equipped with tapes, like talking dolls. Cold logic tells me that half of them make a profit on the stuff and the other half are willing sheep who believe the profiteers' propaganda.

Cold logic also tells me that I have a valid comeback to those who will claim that I err technically when I file marijuana as a narcotic. It isn't pink tea, junior. And if it's non-narcotic marijuana today it's probably going to be hard narcotics tomorrow so why not save reference cards and file it 82 per cent right the first time.

Although I don't always swallow statistics whole, I think I have to believe that 82 per cent bit. Logic again. If a kid is so jaded with life by the time he's 16 that he has to turn to the phoney high of marijuana for kicks, he sure isn't going to think the simple pleasures of life are great when he's 18. Marijuana will be kid stuff by then.

I get ticked off by the advocates' argument, "Dad gets high on martinis, Mom on pills, why not the kids on marijuana," because we Meyers aren't like that. But even if we were I'd use disc jockey Larry Lujack's answer, "So where is it written you gotta be as stupid as your parents?"

And I'd add my own, "So show me a martini drinker who'd pay $5 for a bunch of parsley."

The Fence Post

Residents Penalized

Wood Dale has done it again. In order to pacify a few residents of this village, namely villagers of two streets, Harvey and Forest View, the rest of us in this area must be inconvenienced.

Some time ago the Register stated the letters had been mailed to people living on Carter Road and Charmille Lane, regarding the installation of No Right Turn signs on Addison Road for these two roads. No such letter was mailed to these people. The only people in receipt of such a letter were those living on Harvey and Forest View.

On January 4, I watched these signs installed. It is true that aforementioned streets are used by out-of-towners as short cuts, but what about the rest of us? What about the residents of this village living on Addison, Gilbert, Forest Preserve, etc.? We also pay taxes, why weren't we asked our opinion? Why can't we as residents and taxpayers use these roads between 7 and 9? Why should all this traffic be allowed to jam at the Addison and Potter School crossing, where irate motorists play Russian roulette with the crossing guard and our children? One boy has already been hit at the crossing. This was a couple of months ago, when traffic was still using these other streets. With all this new traffic, we can expect more of the same.

It must be nice to be able to sit back and view the road one lives on and feel it is quieter and safer because of a double sign, but why at the inconvenience of others?

By the same token, these very same people who take the aforementioned streets, use these very same streets in the evening on the way home. We really haven't gained much, have we?

It seems to me that the villagers of Wood Dale are much too eager to see traffic routed to streets and roads, be they county or otherwise, without taking into consideration that these people cannot make a left turn into their own drives without taking their lives into their hands now. Such a road is Addison Road. However, not much is done to correct this. The speed limit goes abruptly from 40 to 20 for the school crossing (going north on Addison), but the cars go 30, 60 and half the time come to a screeching stop at the school crossing. We have now added roughly another 200 cars to this mess.

I strongly believe in progress, and living near Charmille, I realize their problem, as well as those for the residents living on Carter, Harvey and Forest View, but by the same token these residents who have earned (?) a little peace and quiet and a little less danger to their children between 7 and 9 a.m. each morning, except Sunday, have, to use an old adage, helped them jump from the frying pan into the fire.

I don't agree with the Fence Post complaints about Charles Hufnagel's writings. I enjoy reading him because he doesn't always mouth the typical columnist positions; he makes up his own mind and I appreciate that.

Board Cautioned On 'Closed Door'

by LINDA VACHATA

When can a meeting of the village board, park board, school board or any other taxing district be open to the public or held in executive session?

The Illinois Open Meeting Law states specifically all meetings must be open unless the governing bodies are discussing personnel, land acquisition, collective bargaining negotiations, pending court proceedings, or, in the case of school boards, students discipline cases. However, action on any of these subjects must be taken in a public meeting in open session.

This law applies to "all meetings of legislative, executive, administrative or advisory bodies of the state, counties, townships, cities, villages, incorporated towns, school districts and all other municipal corporations, boards, bureaus, committees or commissions of the state."

Last week the Bensenville Park Board held, what was first indicated as an "executive session" to discuss paying a bill to the village for police protection at the park sponsored youth center, located in Veteran's Park, on Main Street and Church Road.

Bill Burde, board president, told me that night most of the discussion at the meeting would regard the acquisition of a park site for the east side of town. Under Illinois Open Meeting Law, this was a legitimate reason for calling it a closed meeting.

However, before going into that executive meeting, the board, under law, would have had to call to order a regular meeting and then announce it was going into executive session.

Monday night is not the time of the park's regular board meeting, so a notice should have been placed on the door of the "regular" meeting place announcing a special meeting would be held and indicating when and where the meeting would be held.

To my knowledge, no such notice was ever posted.

Neither the public, nor the press, was ever formally notified of the meeting.

If, in fact, the board members did only discuss the land acquisition, then the meeting was legal, and I certainly have nothing to gripe about. However, one park board member informed me after the meeting that the bill with the village had been discussed. No action was taken.

There was no audience at the meeting, and there were no members of the press in attendance.

I cannot completely ostracize the board for discussing the village bill at this meeting. The meeting which most likely had originally been planned for discussion of land acquisition did provide the legitimacy needed for a closed session.

I would only admonish board members to be more careful when calling executive sessions, careful not to discuss topics not considered by Illinois Open Meeting law to be "legitimate" for an executive session.

The people today are cynical enough about governing bodies and politics. They do not need fuel, such as this, to add to their fire. Secrecy breeds suspicion.

Roselle Perspective

Civic Responsibility Requires Unselfish Attitude

by GINNY KUCMIERZ

Rieger C. Nyborg, and the Roselle Taxpayers' League complemented voters in School Dist. 12 last week.

The group, which has been closely observing and assessing the actions of the school board for the last three and a half months, expressed a deep faith in the intelligence of the district residents.

The praise, an act of faith almost as unprecedented as the school district's 75-cent referendum request in November, accompanied a criticism of the school board's handling of the district's financial problems.

Nyborg, president of the League, said "we believe the voters in Roselle are an intelligent, mature group of people that can become interested in a problem when such a problem exists without overstating the case."

His group charged the board with oversteering the case of the district's financial difficulty. The 75-cent referendum, was only a part of the exaggeration, according to the League, there was also the "veiled threats of schools closing, bankruptcy and problems in settling salaries with teachers," which the group didn't think were appropriate methods of arousing the voters.

Despite their disagreement with the methods used by the school board, they gave the latest request for a 30-cent increase in the educational fund rate their qualified approval.

The observations and comments of the League and final decision were refreshing because the main reason for their support of the referendum Saturday was the children.

Unfortunately, the League's viewpoint of the average vote might be a bit idealistic. A sampling of those "intelligent mature voters" in Dist. 12 before the last election showed almost 70 per cent didn't know a referendum was being held. Then, without even listening to any of the fine details, they responded negatively when told the request was for 75 cents.

These weren't only people who had no children in school but mothers with two and three children attending schools in Dist. 12.

Nyborg almost contradicted himself further down in the same statement on the voters and school board. He urged all parents to vote yes and not just stay home on Saturday.

"If you stay home the referendum will lose because experience has taught there are generally 400 or 500 no votes that can be automatically expected from the people that don't have children in school."

How intelligent is that, to vote "no" for the education of children just because they aren't yours. Community responsibility shouldn't stop at someone's front door. Taxes aren't tuition for one person's child but his contribution toward the public educational system available to all children.

Just Politics

Suburban Ring To Legislation Seen

by ED MURNANE

There's going to be a definite suburban influence in the 77th Illinois General Assembly when it gets down to business later this month and early next month.

Not only do the suburbs have more leadership positions in both parties than they ever had before, but it appears that much of the legislation expected to face the two houses will have a suburban ring to it.

For example, the proposed state zoning code being prepared by the Zoning Laws Study Commission under Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, will have its most profound effect on the suburbs and the debate that will precede any legislative action is likely to concentrate on the views of suburban municipal officials.

And the recently announced proposal by the Commission on Urban Area Government for study of a metropolitan form of government also will be largely debated on its impact on the suburbs.

THE TWO CHORES that the legislature faces and that are expected to be most difficult also will be primarily suburban oriented. They are implementation of the new state Constitution and redistricting of the state's 24 congressional and 59 Senate districts.

To help the legislators in their constitutional efforts, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has appointed a citizens task force to make the recommendations needed to implement the new charter.

On the task force is John G. Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights and a Con-Con delegate from the Third District.

Woods served on the local government committee at Con-Con and his appointment to the task force assures the suburbs of having a sound voice on the task force.

Prof. Samuel Gove, director of the Institute of Government and Public Affairs at the University of Illinois, will be chairman of the task force. When he was appointed by Ogilvie, Gove predicted it would take 500 bills to implement the new Constitution and said the task force probably would be most concerned with local government.

He said the new Constitution changes the whole concept of local government in Illinois by instituting extensive home rule powers.

REDISTRICTING WILL be of keen interest to the suburbs because the suburbs are where most of the population gains have occurred during the last 10 years.

The state will retain its present 24 congressional districts but the population figures for 1970 indicate that Chicago should lose one of its nine districts and the suburbs, especially Cook and DuPage counties, will pick it up, giving them six rather than the present five.

One other major project the legislators will have to tackle is the state's budget and even that will have a suburban flavor to it, based on the appointment last week of State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

So if nothing else happens during the 77th General Assembly, the suburbs should at least make their presence known.

THE 92ND Congress was in session for less than three hours last week when its second vacancy was created. The death of Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., left the Senate with 99 members.

The other vacancy was created by the death of Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., before the new Congress convened.

High point in the opening session, as far as news was concerned, was the ouster of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., as assistant Democratic floor leader. Kennedy had never lost any election contest before and his comments after the election of Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., indicated he could be a gracious loser as well as a winner. But for Kennedy, the loss was more than just the leadership position in the Senate. The American public is not likely to buy any candidate who was rejected from a position by members of his own party. That may be the end of the Kennedy magic.

EVER GET THE impression there's a big gap between the people who preach about a science or art in a classroom and the people who actually perform the science or art?

The latest edition of the American Political Science Review, a quarterly digest of essays and papers by some of the nation's top political scientists, shows there's a world of difference between political scientists and politicians.

Among the articles in the Review are these: "Concept Misformation in Comparative Politics," "A Casual Approach to Nonrandom Measurement Errors," "Soldiers in Mufti: The Impact of Military Rule Upon Economic and Social Change in the Non-Western States," "The Effect of the Australian Ballot Reform on Split Ticket Voting between 1876 and 1908," and "Political Parties, Interest Representation and Economic Development in Poland."

Maybe Sen. Kennedy's problem in misestimating his votes was caused by his failure to read, "A Casual Approach to Nonrandom Measurement Errors."

Drug Abuse In Industry

The drug abuse problem in industry will be discussed at a special luncheon seminar sponsored by the Northwest Industrial Council on Jan. 28.

The seminar will be held at Fritz's Steak House in Arlington Heights. The public is invited to attend the session, which will start at noon. The cost is $4 a person, to be paid at the door.

The seminar speaker will be Carlos Kersh, a special agent for the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, Narcotics Division. His remarks will include practical advice for industry personnel in dealing with drug abuse problems, according to Wyn Buettgen of DeSoto, Inc., in Des Plaines, program chairman.

"Industry personnel understand there is a possibility there are drug users within their organization," said Buettgen. "They could also have the problem of an employee stealing to support his habit or of fostering a pusher within their organization. Kersh will outline how to determine if there is a problem and what legal rights the firm has, as an employer, to deal with the problem."

Woods Appointed To Citizens Task Force Unit

John G. Woods, former mayor of Arlington Heights and a delegate at the Illinois Constitutional Convention last year, has been appointed to a citizens task force committee that will help the Illinois Legislature implement the new state charter.

Appointment of the 15-member committee was announced by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Prof. Samuel Gove, director of the Institute of Government and Public Affairs at the University of Illinois, will head the committee.

The task force is bipartisan and includes several Con-Con delegates in addition to Woods.

They include Robert Butler of Marion, David Davis of Bloomington, Stanley C. Johnson of DeKalb, Mrs. Betty Keegan of Rockford, Maurice Scott of Springfield and Al Raby of Chicago.

ALSO NAMED to the committee were Jack Siegel, municipal attorney for Arlington Heights, Schaumburg and Evanston, and L. D. LaFleur of Bloomington, a DuPage County auditor.

Ogilvie said the task force would identify areas of legislation needed to implement the new Constitution, which takes effect on July 1. He said the group will make recommendations for the enactment, repeal or amendment of specific statutes, provide research and technical assistance to the legislature and advise the governor on the implementation process.

Gove estimated that it will take 500 bills to implement the new Constitution.

The Constitution, written during the nine-month convention in 1969 and 1970, was overwhelmingly approved by Illinois voters on Dec. 15.

It will replace the 1870 Illinois Constitution.

It isn't Math, History or English. But it's just as basic.

To earn a living, he needs the old fundamentals. To keep on living, he must learn the right way to drive. Yet only one out of three high school students takes a driver education course. Too bad. Automobile accidents are the number one killer of American teenagers.

How important is driver education? Well, it's important enough that trained drivers have 50% fewer accidents and traffic violations. Important enough that many insurance companies offer lower rates for teenagers who have completed driver training. And important enough that new car dealers across the nation loan 34,000 automobiles every year to our public schools for driver training.

It's your responsibility to help make sure your teenager takes the proper subjects in school. So make sure driver education is one of them. Where it's not available, we suggest that you consider a good private driving school.

When it comes to preparation for living, learning how to drive safely really is basic.

Crown Falls On Friday, 66-63...

Profitable Weekend For Surging Fenton

by FRANK PIRCHER

Coach Bill Pelekoudas and his Fenton Bisons picked up their third win in 14 outings Friday night, as they hung on to their half-time lead and squeaked past Crown 66-63 on their home court.

With 2:11 to go in a game which was close all the way through, Greg Mueller of Crown sank an 18-foot jump shot to put them within four, 64-60. The next minute was scoreless, but not without a lot of action. The ball changed hands six times, with steals, turnovers, fouls, and jump balls.

Then, with 0:59 showing on the clock, Fenton pulled off an almost impossible play. Guard Ed Sabia drove in from half-court, and passed over to Rick Garcia, who was zooming in on the left side. Garcia, however, lost his balance and desperately flicked the ball to Bill McDonald right underneath. He put it up, and watched along with a nervous crowd, as the ball bounced around the rim for what seemed like a year, and finally slid through.

The basket made it 66-60. Fenton, with less than a minute to go, and brought the Fenton crowd to its feet, screaming.

Crown tried desperately to come back, but fell short as they couldn't hang on to the ball, and time expired with Fenton ahead by three.

Coach Pelekoudas said he was looking for a close game, and he was right. The deciding factor actually turned out to be at the free throw line. Center Tom Marshall sank 17 of 18 free throws for Fenton, compared to 11 of 27 for the entire Crown team. Viking Coach Bob Sayre said after the game that this statistic alone was what decided the outcome of the game.

Crown held the lead for most of the first half. A comparatively slow first quarter ended with the Vikings ahead 17-12. Sabia and Marshall combined for 10 of Fenton's 12 points during that session.

The game really started to catch on fire in the second period. Crown stole the ball a lot and sank most of their jump shots, and their lead was still alive; 25-17 with 4:48 left. Fenton, during that time had great difficulty keeping the ball, but soon started to find the range in the last four minutes.

Eight points by Marshall, who led the game's scoring with 29, and two field goals by Sabia put the Bisons ahead 29-23 with two minutes left in the half.

Crown took it right back when Mueller drove right through the Fenton defense and made an easy lay-up.

Fenton kept up with the pace of this fast moving game, as Marshall sank a 15-foot jumper with 36 seconds left. Crown's attempt to counteract was unsuccessful, and Pelekoudas decided to play for one last shot with 28 seconds left and his team with the ball. The strategy worked, and Jim Leinick drove in with four seconds to go. The Bisons led at the half 36-33.

Both teams came out fighting in the third quarter. They matched each other point for point, until Crown came on strong in the last two minutes. Two long jump shots by Steve Schuring, and a breakaway by Greg Mueller, stole the lead away from Fenton, 48-47 with 50 seconds left. But the Bison team didn't panic, and a quick free throw and field goal gave Fenton a 50-48 advantage at the break.

The score remained close in the first three and a half minutes of the fourth quarter. Fenton, along with Sabia and Marshall, pulled away with an eight point lead with 3:32 to go. But this game was somewhat less than a runaway, and Crown fought back, only to be humiliated by that beautiful play with 59 seconds to go.

This game had a lot more action than one could ask for, and turned out to be a real morale boosting victory for coach Bill Pelekoudas and his Bisons.

The Bisons hope to repeat next Friday when they host Mundelein.

Stevenson	9	14	7	18	48

The triumph made it a weekend sweep for Fenton, their first of the year, but the Patriots (true to their name) didn't give up without a fight — literally.

In fact, tempers were so hot on both sides that the refs had to stop the game with 1:07 left to play and shoo both teams to their dressing rooms. Before this occurred however, the Stevenson coach had been ejected (after incurring three back-to-back technical fouls) and two of his players followed him to the showers shortly thereafter.

Going into the fourth period, no one suspected that the game might end so violently. The Patriots were down, 55-30, and seemingly nearly out as well. But Stevenson got hot against the Bison reserves and ripped off six straight field goals to solo free throws by Ed Sabia and Bruce Redman of Fenton.

Suddenly what had been a fairly one-sided game grew close and the Stevenson fans roared their encouragement.

With the score at 56-44 a Stevenson guard started upcourt and crashed into Bill Bonner of Fenton.

Who had position? Offensive or defensive foul? It was a tough call and the ref called charging violation on Stevenson. With that, the Stevenson head coach leaped to his feet and set a new area record as he incurred three technical fouls, back-to-back, and was summarily ejected from the game.

As the Stevenson students hooted their displeasure Bonner made one of the three shots, and with slightly under three minutes left to play, the score stood at 57-44.

Some heavy shoving and flying elbows by the Stevenson five under their own boards brought Fenton's coach to his feet seconds later when no whistles were blown.

Action all over the court became frantic as Stevenson clawed to push their rally over the top in the waning seconds.

Then, with the scoreboard at 61-48 and Fenton in possession, smoldering tempers suddenly flared over a semi-deliberate foul by a burly Stevenson forward near midcourt. The players started toward each other. The police came onto the floor. The Stevenson assistant coach and Fenton coach started screaming at each other. The fans erupted in jeers. And the game was called.

Earlier Fenton had jumped off to a quick 18-9 lead behind Sabia, who tallied nine of the eighteen himself. But Sabia also picked up three quick fouls in the first period and these limited his effectiveness throughout the rest of the game.

In the second period Stevenson closed the gap slightly but never was behind by less than seven.

The third period was a strong one for the Bisons as they upped their lead from eight to twenty-three points in the first four minutes of the stanza behind a smooth balanced scoring attack. With the score 54-30 at the buzzer, few expected the fireworks that were to come in the final eight minutes.

Cold Streak Hits Addison Again

by GREG SHEVELL

If Addison Trail's basketball team could arrange not to play a second quarter, they might have a few more victory notches on their record.

They lost again, 69-59.

Last Friday, and the Friday before, the Blazers of Addison took charge in the 1st, 3rd, and 4th quarters, but couldn't seem to put anything together in the 2nd stanza.

In a period of six minutes, starting late in the first quarter and finishing up near the end of the second, the Blazers were outscored by a red hot West Leyden team, 23-11.

Head Coach Frank Hulka's charges took command as the tip off went to the Blazers as they jumped into a quick 4-0 lead on baskets by center Bruce Singer and guard Jerry Herford.

The teams stayed neck and neck until the deadly six minute stretch started which found Addison scoring one point to West Leyden's 23.

"The game could have been ours, but the boys went into another cold streak, as they've done so often this year. If we would've hit our free throws we could have stayed in the game, but when you shoot 32 per cent from the line, you can't expect to win many ball games," commented Coach Hulka.

The stretch drive ended with Addison down by 16, 30-14, as Bob Sherman, who had just joined his teammates after being sidelined for the first 12 games with pneumonia, sank a pretty turnaround jumper.

Intermission found Addison down by a seemingly insurmountable 19 point lead.

The West Leyden lead increased to 25 points before Addison began to find the range as they managed 11 points before Leyden could hit the scoreboard.

Senior center Bruce Singer was the main contributor in this drive as he tallied 7 of the 11 Addison points.

The quarter ended with Leyden still up by 16, but Addison was coming on strong.

Again Singer, who finished the night with 27 points, led his team through a fourth quarter surge.

With 4:15 left in the fourth quarter Singer added his first five baskets in the fourth quarter. With the help of teammates Jerry Herford and Tom Ch-lar, it looked like a miracle was about to happen.

Addison cut West Leyden's lead from 19 points to a slim seven point margin.

The West Leyden team decided Addison was coming on too strong as they went into a slow-down type game with 2:30 left.

The clock ran out on Addison as the buzzer ended the game with the Blazers dropping their 12th straight game and brought their record to 1-12 for the season.

Addison, despite this loss, surprisingly chalked up an excellent 43 per cent mark from the field, but again was hurt on the boards (40-26), and also from the charity stripe (75 per cent to 32 per cent).

The West Leyden team had a very well balanced scoring attack, led by Jim Valentino, who chalked up 20 points for the visiting Knights. Valentino, playing a guard position, also contributed 10 rebounds to the cause.

Also figuring in the Knights' scoring were Steve Eddleman with 13 points and 9 rebounds, and Dave Combs, who added 12 points and led all players with 14 rebounds. Ken Ingo and substitute Pat Wilson had 8 apiece, while Bob Wilson had 6.

For Addison the scoring was mostly Singer, with 27, followed by Jerry Herford with 12, and Mike Chapman with 9.

Wheaton Stumbles, Then Streaks

by DWIGHT ESAU

One of these days Lake Park basketball coach Tom Hoder may become an inventor.

And his first creation probably will be a three-quarter high school basketball game. Maybe he'll even "weight" the first half so that early scoring will count more than late scoring.

He can't be blamed for wanting to do away with fourth quarters. For the second consecutive Tri County Conference game in the past two weeks Friday he watched his erratic team squander an early lead, then crack under pressure, and throw away what seemed like a victory.

This time the villain was Wheaton North, which used a nearly miraculous recovery in shooting and a withering zone press defense to pin a 55-41 defeat on the Lancers.

"We had them, we had them, and then they started shooting well and they were able to get more aggressive with the press, and we got rattled," said Hoder, who paced the North school corridors for more than 10 minutes after this latest night of frustration.

"At a time when we needed to be organized and deliberate, they messed us up with the press."

This game was two completely different halves of basketball. In the first two quarters Steve Bornack was hot for the Lancers, sinking six nice jumpers from the sides and corners. Carl Traeger added a couple from outside and Keith Crabtree and Bob Frantz gobbled up almost every rebound.

The Falcons couldn't hit a thing in the first half. They hit 1 of 17 field goal tries in the first quarter, hit only 4 of 23 attempts in the first half, and scored only 11 points. Hoder's boys couldn't be blamed in going to the locker room reasonably confident their eight-point lead would stand up.

But midway through the third quarter the lid came off the Falcon basket, or maybe it was just that they liked to shoot at the other end better. John Slipke canned a couple from the side, Dave Dick hit a rebound and a crumple, and Darrel Hapken got the first two of his seven second-half buckets.

Dick put North ahead 27-26 with a steal and basket. Now everything started to go wrong. Bornack, who hardly saw the ball in the third quarter due to increased Falcon pressure, lost the ball when he was open, and Crabtree picked up his third and fourth fouls. It was a 30-30 ball game at the end of the third quarter, but victory still was possible.

Most important, the Falcons were stealing the ball and intercepting passes on defense, forcing the Lancers out of the deliberate style of game they like best.

"When we can't play that way, we're in trouble," said Hoder.

In the fourth quarter, the roof fell in quickly. Wheaton ran off 14 straight points without a Lake Park answer. During the first three minutes of this nightmarish period, the Lancers missed eight straight field goal attempts and nine straight free throw attempts. And this at the same time the suddenly aroused Falcons were not missing at all.

With two minutes left it was 52-33, Crabtree had fouled out, and both coaches let reserves play the rest of the way.

"Give them credit, they really started shooting and playing defense in the second half," said Hoder. "Those two things beat us."

Bornack led the Lancers with 13 points, but only one of them came in the second half when his team really needed them. Crabtree, boxed in most of the night by North's zone and the defensive work of Don Lammers, had 8. In the Falcons' balanced attack Hapken had 14 points (all in the second half), and Slipke and Dick had 12 apiece. The Lancer conference record fell to 1-4.

One bright spot for the Lancers was the good work of reserves Tom Kinnaman and Ed Sprongel, and the impressive rebounding of Bob Frantz.

Meanwhile, Coach Hoder walked off, muttering some dark, bad things about fourth quarters...

Zoning Board To Ponder Station Plea

The DuPage County Zoning Board of Appeals will take under advisement a request to rezone two acres at the northwest corner of Swift and Army Trail roads, near Addison and south of Bloomingdale.

Walter Mockus, 730 Sherwood Dr., Addison, the property owner, at a public hearing Thursday night requested the entire parcel be rezoned from R-3 (single-family residence) to B-4 (service business) for location of a service station on a portion of the property.

Mockus said the remainder of the parcel may possibly be used to relocate his wholesale plumbing and hardware business, A and A Supply of Chicago, in the future.

He added that negotiations for a land lease with the Marathon Oil Co. are presently in progress.

MRS. KAY HALLEY, 4N055 Robbie, Addison, expressing the objections of some residents in the area, said B-4 is a "blanket zoning" that would allow a wide variety of uses.

"We shouldn't stifle what he wants to do with the property because he has rights, but the existing residents should be considered. If the area continues to be built up for business use, homeowners may sell and the area will become tomorrow's slums."

Another resident, Lawrence Balcer, 4N024 Swift Rd., Addison, said he was also opposed to the rezoning because it would depreciate the value of his property. "In my estimation, a hardware and plumbing business doesn't go along with residential, and B-4 is too broad a zoning."

Aggravation of an existing drainage problem also was cited as an objection to the zoning change by surrounding residents.

A REQUEST BY BOARD members to accept a lesser zoning with a special use stipulation was denied by Mockus because "in business you always have to expand, and I have to plan for this expansion."

Mockus added that if his plumbing business was located on the site, it will all be under one roof and will be done "properly" with surrounding buffer areas.

A realty representative for Mockus said the two acres should be zoned B-4 to blend in with zoning on the other three corners of the intersection.

Board members will make a recommendation to the DuPage County Board of Supervisors through its zoning committee within the next several weeks for a final decision.

Christian Men's Unit Sets Annual Lunch

The Itasca Christian Men's Organization will hold its annual luncheon Thursday at the Itasca Country Club.

Doris Dunn, a registered nurse at St. Alexius Hospital, will be the guest speaker, discussing information related to her job as coordinator of the psychiatric center at the hospital.

The organization is composed of men from all the churches in the Itasca area.

THE LIGHT OF THE world shines on the Apostles' Creed, in Roselle's Trinity Lutheran Church, 405 S. Rush St. This 72 foot long and 6 foot high stained glass window along the west wall of the newly dedicated church is a powerful statement of the basic scriptural truths of the Christian religion. The brilliant yellows and oranges and deep reds and greens make the window the most spectacular part of the church. Initial services were held Sunday at 3 p.m.

More Cuts Forecasted After Vote 'Surprise'

District 12 Loses Again, By 3 To 1 Margin

A request for a tax rate increase in the educational fund rate was defeated for the second time within two months by voters in Roselle School Dist. 12 Saturday.

Voters turned down the school board's request for a 30 cent rate increase by more than a three to one margin, 735 voting no and 216 voting yes.

Although the defeat wasn't as stunning as that of the last referendum Nov. 14 which asked for a 75 cent rate increase and lost by almost a nine to one margin, board members expressed disappointment and surprise at the results.

"I WAS SURPRISED at the results," board member Ed Peck, said Saturday night, "I thought the referendum might have an even chance of passing."

The defeat Saturday means no additional tax revenues will be available to the district in this school year. Even if a referendum is passed next month, it will be too late to have the rate increase apply to taxes collected in the spring. We'll have to completely reevaluate our plans for next year's program," Peck said, "We'll come back to voters again but probably not in the near future."

MELVIN LUXENBERG, president of the school board said "The board will have to do some serious thinking. Even if this referendum passed we had to make cuts, now we'll have to make more."

According to Peck, a member of the board's finance committee, the district will have a $7,000 deficit in July. Without another rate increase and maintaining the current staff and programs the district will have a $115,000 deficit by July 1, 1972, he said.

"We'll have to provide the best program we can with the monies available," Peck said.

Some of the possibilities which the board will consider, according to Luxenberg is reducing staff, eliminating programs entirely or cutting several programs.

"It seems as if we have to take drastic action before the voters realize the seriousness of the situation. We're in dire financial straits," Luxenberg said.

SATURDAY'S DEFEAT was seen by board members as a general repudiation of higher taxes by homeowners.

Many who voted, Luxenberg noted were elderly, probably with grown children and on fixed incomes.

"I've never seen so many older persons voting in a school election as there have been in our last two," he said.

Luxenberg didn't attribute the referendum defeat to the elderly residents but rather to the failure of the parents in the district to go to polls and vote for it.

"It really bothers me knowing there are between 500 and 600 families with children attending school in the district and the majority of the parents don't even show," he said.

Youth Arrested In Theft Of Magazines

Roselle police arrested a 14-year-old boy last week for the theft of more than $50 in magazines from the 7-11 Food Store, Roselle Road, Roselle.

The arrest was made early in the morning after the store had received a new delivery of magazines. Roselle Police Chief Robert Greve and officer Victor Kubika, arrested the youth. The two policemen had been watching the store for about five weeks.

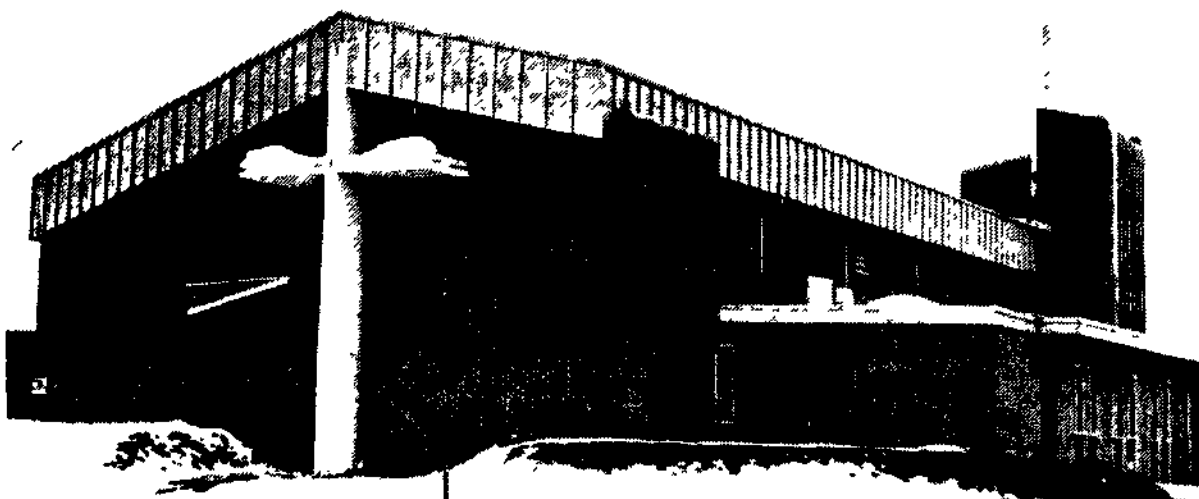

The magazines were allegedly taken after they were delivered to the front door and before the store opened for business.

Chamber Elects

Roland E. Hanke, of the Roselle State Bank was elected as the new president of the Roselle Chamber of Commerce last week.

Other officers elected were A. J. Dutton, Roselle Realty, first vice president; Jim Kail, owner of Ace Hardware, second vice president; Bruce Schutt, Roselle Auto Body, third vice president.

Mrs. Mabel Lucas was elected secretary, and Elaine Lynch of the El-Mar Office Supply Store was elected treasurer.

THE KEY TO THE new Roselle Trinity Lutheran Church, 405 S. Rush St., was officially given to Warren Andersen, congregation's building committee chairman, in solemn dedication services Sunday. The door of the newly completed church was opened for Pastor Eugene Triegla and Rev. Robert Kretschmar who led the congregation in for the service.

Bloomingdalers Organize To Fight Refram Complex

by LOIS KOCH

A group of about 50 Bloomingdale residents has organized the Bloomingdale Citizens Alliance to promote joint effort in objecting to the proposed James Refram apartment complex.

James Mueller, 127 N. Pleasant, Bloomingdale, acting chairman of the group, said members are seeking the help of a planning architect and attorney to represent them before the village board.

Bloomingdale's Plan Commission last week by a 3-to-1 margin voted to accept preliminary plans for the project.

Four "yes" votes on the commission are required to make a recommendation of approval to the village board.

In accordance with these preliminary plans, the complex, which is to be located on an approximately 15-acre parcel south of Lake Street near Pleasant Avenue, will contain a combination of 11 three-story and 8 four-story buildings, with a total of 396 units.

About 238 of the apartments will have one bedroom, 40 will be efficiency apartments and the rest will have two bedrooms. The entire complex will be built along the southwest shore of the small lake in the area.

MUELLER SAID HIS group's major objectives were to legally either have the parcel rezoned back to R-1 (single-family residential) to comply with zoning of the surrounding areas, or to have the developer live up to the original ordinance.

In mentioning the "original ordinance," Mueller was referring to the first planned development approved last year by the plan commission, which has since been altered.

This first project consisted of an apartment complex with eight buildings and a total of 396 units, about one-third of which would have one-bedroom and the rest two-bedroom apartments.

The citizens group, Mueller said, hopes to have the existing proposal changed back to the original, or possibly have the entire project eliminated on legal grounds concerning the way in which the matter has been handled with regard to publication of alterations in the plan.

HE SAID RESIDENTS have doubts about legal and publishing procedures with regard to the change in the amount of land to be donated to the Bloomingdale Park District and the type of zoning granted.

Mueller said no legal publication was made indicating the reduction of the 20 acres to be given to the park district to about 16 acres, and that R-5 (high-density residential) zoning was designated and then changed to R-4, also high density zoning, when R-5 was eliminated from the village's zoning code.

Jack Wagborne, Bloomingdale's village

attorney, said a clause in the ordinance for the original planned development stated that approximately 20 acres of lake area would be designated for public recreational use. However, a survey showed that the lake consisted of only about 16 acres.

With regard to the zoning controversy, Wagborne said that when the developer's original plan was approved in 1968, the village's zoning code included the R-5 classification.

During April of 1969, he said, the zoning code was altered renaming the R-5 category to R-4. Wagborne added that when the developer published for alterations to the original plan several months ago, it was done so as R-4.

IN ADDITION to objections concerning procedures, Mueller said members of his group are concerned with traffic problems because of provisions for only one entrance into the development, and the general "saturation" of the land by the large number of persons occupying the apartments.

He also cited the destruction of the landscaping of the area, saying that with large-scale construction the existing oak trees on the site area would die.

Art Petranek, 5N771 Sycamore, Medinah, president of the Medinah Homeowners Association, agreed with Mueller that there were inconsistencies in legal procedures and that his group is also seeking an attorney's assistance in dealing with the issue.

"Plans have been revised somewhat in accordance with our wishes concerning noise and buffer zones, but that other problems with traffic, fencing and drainage in the area are still unresolved," he said.

HE ADDED THAT he believed zoning for the project was inconsistent with adjacent zoning and that it was not in accord with state standards.

Both Mueller and Petranek agreed that the matter would have to be handled at the village board level because the plan commission did nothing about their requests.

"We've tried to explain our point of view to them (the plan commission) but they just won't listen," Mueller said.

He cited an incident at last week's plan commission meeting when members of the commission "ignored" his group's request to postpone action until legal counsel was present.

Petranek also said he believed that the fact that the plan commission is not fully represented is also adding to the problem. At present, there are two vacant seats on the commission to be filled.

Gary Thompson, a member of the plan commission, expressed similar feelings, saying he felt the body could not work effectively without full representation.

Knuepfer To Enter Bills For Elderly

State Sen. Jack T. Knuepfer R-Elmhurst is introducing two bills at the current session of the Illinois General Assembly to assist older citizens in meeting the rising cost of property taxes.

The Homestead Exemption that was passed at the last session of the General Assembly, which gives property tax breaks to the elderly, was declared unconstitutional. The new Constitution, however, makes it clear that a Homestead Exemption can be passed.

Reducing the property taxes on the older citizens will enable them to continue living in the same communities in which their friends and families live, Knuepfer said. He predicted that this session would see the passage of a Homestead Exemption Act to ease these tax burdens.

Looking For A Job? Area Businessmen May Be Of Help

LEA TONKIN

Despite today's downturn in employment activity, a group of Northwest Suburban businessmen is taking steps to boost the area's appeal in the people market.

Hiring and retaining new personnel are major concerns of the Northwest Industrial Council, according to its president, Jack Rhind. The outgrowth of an association formed in 1966 for the interchange of information, the council is oriented to personnel and industrial relations workers.

Its membership extends as far south as

Bensenville and as far north as Mundelein and Crystal Lake. Formally incorporated in 1965, the Northwest Industrial's membership Council has grown from a handful of firms to a membership of more than 150 small and large companies.

"We want to let other companies know that we are interested in their problems," said Rhind, personnel director at Methode Manufacturing Corp. in Rolling Meadows. "Companies moving out to the area as well as those already located here are welcome to contact us for information or service."

"The biggest asset to our members is our annual wage and benefit survey," said Rhind. "Soon after the group was organized, members expressed a need for this type of information. A survey was established, which member companies fill out each year for hourly and salaried non-exempt employees. The results are compiled in booklet form and distributed to our members."

"An electronic component manufacturer, for example, wants to know what other companies in this area are paying their assembly workers. He's not interested in what employers are paying on the South Side of Chicago or some other area," said Rhind.

WAGES FOR A given job may vary widely, as much as $100 a week, among the companies surveyed by the council. It includes union as well as non-union employees.

Employers also extend or withhold a variety of benefits. Among these are pay for jury duty, the number of paid holidays, office breaks, insurance, leave of absence, pension and profit sharing plans and overtime pay.

"If a company is having trouble in hiring or keeping janitorial personnel, for example, the company's pay rates can be adjusted according to the average benefits paid in the area. This enables companies to be competitive in hiring new personnel," Rhind said.

The concerns of personnel experts are changing with the times, Rhind said. "Three years ago it was hard to get people. Now that we're in an economic slump, there is no problem in finding new employees," he said.

"A new area of interest is the drug abuse problem," said Rhind. "Companies have indicated an interest in this problem, so we have planned a seminar on drugs in industry later this month."

The Northwest Industrial Council meets every other month. It has a permanent office and a part-time executive secretary. A Labor Relations subgroup and a scholarship program are among its activities.

Events Planned At College Of DuPage

Winter in north DuPage County tends to be dreary. College of DuPage, however, has scheduled events to add a little color to the dark days of January and February.

Value Of Unincorporated DuPage Up

DuPage County's unincorporated areas increased in valuation by almost $35 million dollars in 1970, according to figures released this week by the County Building and Zoning Department.

The amount represents the total value of all the permits issued by the department during the past year.

Permits for single family dwellings were most frequently issued. The 680 single family homes for which permits were issued were valued collectively at $18.7 million.

Multiple family homes added the second highest valuation to the county. A total of 22 permits worth $3.4 million were issued for the multiple dwellings. The 22 buildings added 308 apartment or townhouse units to the county.

Permits issued for business buildings added another $2.8 million to the county and 42 permits were issued for new construction and additions to industrial buildings worth more than $3 million.

Man Promoted At GTE Electric

William E. Walenda, 515 Memory Lane, Addison, has been named a supervisor in the Manufacturing Inspection Department at GTE Automatic Electric Inc., Northlake.

Walenda, who joined the electronics and communications systems manufacturing company in 1962, started as a laboratory technician. He later worked in factory accounting, and since 1965 he had been a circuit tester.

A graduate of Immaculate Conception high school, Elmhurst, he continued his studies at DeVry Technical Institute during his first years of employment at GTE Automatic.

Walenda is a member of a famous family at GTE Automatic, and often has to explain that "it's not the Flying Walendas of circus fame — they spell the name differently, anyway."

The Walendas at Northlake include Bill's father, Myron, a millwright who has been with the company 32 years; a brother, Richard, a tool and die maker with 12 years' service; an aunt, Lillian Lord, inspection department, 44 years; and an uncle Edward Kozak, Inspection, nearly 30 years.

"That totals over 120 years, Bill Walenda noted, "but, in addition, I have an uncle, Edwin Lord, who retired after 30 years at GTE Automatic. He was a precision gauge inspector."

Bill Walenda is active in softball, basketball, bowling and numerous other sports, and admits an interest in "just about every sport there is." He is also intent on continuing his education, particularly in the field of electronics.

Rule Out Special Refuse Containers

Special garbage containers for discarded bottles and cans will no longer be used by Wood Dale residents, according to Hilbert Gurke, sanitation commissioner.

Thursday night Gurke recommended the removal of special containers for these items and the village council supported him unanimously. Bottles and cans may be placed in regular containers.

"I've also had a lot of calls from people on garbage can lids that aren't put back on cans," Gurke said. "The garbage can lids will be placed on containers by the sanitation department."

Gurke said residents were complaining because F. A. Burnier, who formerly handled sanitation service in the village, put lids back on cans. He added that his department will start doing the same.

In February, project SOAR (Save Our American Resources) will be initiated by 58 Boy Scout Cub Packs, Troops, and Explorer Units in the DuPage Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Although a variety of community improvement or conservation projects will be based on the needs of each community, projects will be principally those that lend themselves to boy participation such as air and water pollution, litter collection and prevention, and waste disposal and recycling.

Independents Choose Three For Trustees

Arthur Naumann, Theodore Johnston and trustee Bernard Hanlon were nominated as candidates to run for three vacant seats on the village board this spring during an open caucus of the newly-named Addison Independent Party (AIP) Friday.

The AIP, formerly known as the Addison Citizens Party, right now represents the majority party in the village, with six of the village board's seven members belonging to its ranks. The party held its caucus at the Friar's Cove Lodge in Addison.

The board seats which will be up for election this spring belong to trustee Peter Callahan, who was elected to the board in April, 1969, and has decided not to run again, trustee Arthur Hurley, Jr., who was elected to the board in April, 1967 as the only non-ACP member on the board, and was nominated again last week to run as a member of the Addison Better Government Party; and trustee Bernard Hanlon, who was appointed to the board in September to replace former trustee Reed Carlson.

THEODORE JOHNSTON, one of the candidates nominated to run by the AIP Friday, has lived in the village for eight and a half years, has been involved in various community activities and is a member of the Westwood Homeowners Association.

Johnston is employed as a contracting engineer for the Hage Warren Zimmermann Company, roof deck applicators.

Johnston, following his nomination, told the Register that he was interested in encouraging industrial growth in the village, and "extremely interested in encouraging growth in respect to recreational facilities, particularly those oriented toward the youth of the community."

Arthur Naumann, 42, has worked for the village as a member of the Randhurst committee, whose job it was to organize and pass the Randhurst public improvements referendum last October.

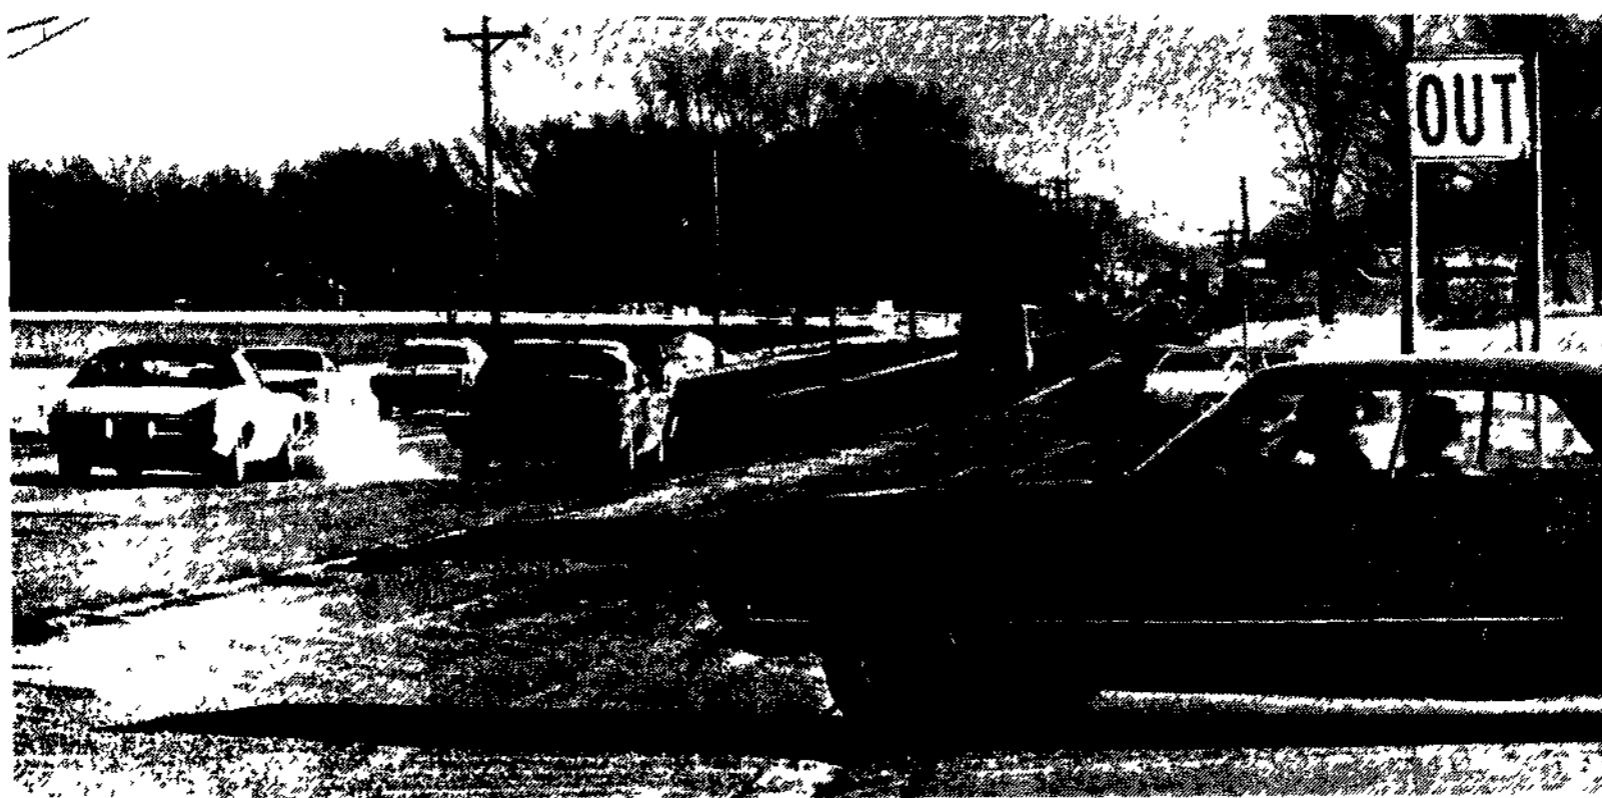

He is also a member of Addison's police pension board, and the Addison zoning commission, which will make recommendations on the village's proposed zoning regulations as part of the master plan.

Bernard Hanlon, 46, has been a resident of Addison for 10 years, and is presently a member of the village board. He was appointed in September to replace trustee Reed Carlson who resigned to become village manager of Villa Park. Hanlon also served for five years as a member of the plan commission.

IN HIS OPENING statement to party members attending the caucus Friday, village board president Robert DeVries announced that their party had been entrusted with the reins of government for the last eight years.

He said that they had chosen the party's new name to symbolize the independent thinking of party members - independent of pressure groups and old style politics.

Some of the party's noteworthy accomplishments over the last two years, according to DeVries, include the formulation of a master plan, which he said the village will soon adopt; the coming of Randhurst to Addison, the initiation of a de-ionizing process which has improved Addison's water supply; and providing the best sewage treatment facilities in the county.

ALTHOUGH VILLAGE RESIDENTS have been complaining about the speed of traffic on Lake Street for a long time, some village officials have expressed concern over several other streets in the village. They feel the streets are cluttered with signs and in many cases the speed limits have to be re-evaluated.

Developers Find Comprehensive Plan 'Tough'

Local developers and owners are finding Addison's new comprehensive plan, approved this fall, tough to beat following two meetings of the Addison Zoning Commission last week.

The zoning commission held the meetings to make recommendations on the testimony heard during two public hearings held in the fall. The testimony was made on the village's proposed zoning ordinance and zoning map, which are based on the village's new comprehensive plan.

At Thursday night's meeting, the zoning commission recommended that all three requests made by local developer Leonard Borisof during the public hearings be denied.

BORISOF'S REQUEST that a tract of land between Diversey and Fullerton Avenues, west of the Illinois Central Tracts, be retained as general industrial (M-2), was denied. The commission recommended the land be zoned as planned commercial (C-4) in accordance with the master plan.

Borisof had also asked that a lot adjacent to the Lake Park School be zoned for multiple family (R-4), but the commission recommended it remain single-family in accordance with the master plan.

Finally, on property lying on the west side of Church Street, north of the proposed post office at Church and Lincoln, Borisof had asked for high rise, but the commission recommended R-5 be denied because the use of the area is intensive enough now.

Developer Ray Summe had asked that property on the east side of Rumble Lane, north of Woodland Avenue, adjacent to the Kings Point Subdivision, be zoned as multiple family. The commission recommended that the property remain as single-family as it is shown on the proposed zoning map.

REPRESENTATIVES of the Rittmueller Lumber Company, Electronicast, Inc., Rotogravure and Better Built Products proposed that their industrial properties, from Rittmueller Lumber to Diversey Avenue, be zoned as light industrial (M-1), rather than the present zoning of central commercial (C-3). The commission recommended the M-1 zoning.

A request by Adolph Rittmueller, of Rittmueller Lumber, to have Addison Road at the Rittmueller company designated as a boulevard was denied by the commission. The board recommended approval of the boulevard designation on Addison Road from Moreland Ave. and south. This is provided the boulevard designation would mean a green strip down the middle of the street and would not eliminate truck traffic.

Testimony on property lying south of Lake Street and east of Maple Avenue proposed that a 430-foot strip of land on Lake Street be zoned planned commercial, and the balance of the property multiple family.

The commission recommended that the entire property remain zoned as single-family and general commercial (C-2). The commission further clarified that they do not feel the property should be rezoned at this time, but the village board should consider granting multiple zoning (R-4) in the future, considering this the best use of the land.

THE COMMISSION agreed with the testimony presented by developer Sal Pernice, asking for two-family residential zoning (R-3) for all lots between LaLonde Avenue and the multiple-family zoning on the north side of Fullerton Avenue, and also for the unincorporated properties when they are annexed.

A request by Rittmueller that the east side of Addison Road from Fullerton north to Moreland Avenue, be zoned as multiple instead of business professional, which includes offices and a limited number of stores, was denied by the commission.

The owners of Louis' Restaurant on Lake Street requested that the land behind the restaurant, all the way back to Diversey Avenue, be zoned as central commercial. The restaurant owners wish to extend their restaurant facilities so that they can use the entire property, which is presently zoned for single-family. The request was approved by the commission.

Representatives of St. Paul Lutheran Church requested that the south side of the block between May and School streets have its zoning changed from business professional (C-1) to single-family residential (R-2). The church wants to keep the property as a place where the teachers and ministers can reside. The commission recommended the request be upheld.

OWNERS OF THE property lying behind the J. Dana shopping center on Addison Road, between Lorraine and Fullerton Avenues, had requested multiple-family zoning (R-5). The commission concurred with the request, feeling that the area needed to be upgraded. Presently the front part of the property is zoned for business use.

The zoning commission will hold their next meeting on Thursday at 7 p.m. to review their recommendations. No testimony will be heard Thursday but the meeting in the Addison village hall is open to the public.

Third Party Spawned By Taxbills

A third party has been organized in Addison to stop the spiraling rise in village taxes and end needless spending.

According to the party's temporary chairman, Jerry Pasquini, an Addison resident, the party will be known as the Concerned Taxpayers Party, and will run a full slate of village board candidates in the elections this spring.

The new party has already attracted over 65 members in a three-week period, "which gives you an idea of how many dissatisfied residents there are in the village," Pasquini said.

Pasquini was once a member of the Old Addison Citizens Party (ACP) which presently has members occupying every seat on the village board except one.

"I ORIGINATED THE ACP," Pasquini said. "But then I began seeing things that they were doing that I didn't care for. They began making people pay money in areas where it wasn't necessary."

Specifically Pasquini referred to a proposed ordinance which came out of the public safety committee of the village board last summer requiring that fences be built around private swimming pools and that a $25 inspection fee be charged.

"They think about all these ways to charge people for protection," Pasquini complained, "when actually people can protect themselves."

Pasquini said that the reason most people joined the new party was to try to keep added taxes from coming in. Pasquini complained that the village has raised the tax surcharge four times, and that the sewer rate has gone up three times.

The other officers of the new party are Earl Boyde vice-chairman, Ray Goff, coordinator-adviser, and Pasquini, who is also the treasurer.

So far the party has five nominees to fill board posts, but the final three will be selected during the party's caucus sometime this week.

Ray Goff: He's Ready To Back Third Village Party

by JIM FULLER

Ray Goff of Addison has been involved in local politics ever since he was asked to support former board president Harry Warthen in his bid for a trusteeship in 1963.

He believes in stable government, orderly growth, and a two-party system. This year his sympathies lie with the formation of a third village party.

In 1965, when Warthen ran for village president, Goff was quickly promoted to chairman and campaign manager of the party. The previous year he had been appointed to the park commission, but in 1965 resigned at the request of Warthen so he could be appointed to the plan commission on which he served for four years.

In all Goff has served as campaign manager for the party on three separate occasions — once for Warthen, then in support of the late Mark Rumpke, former trustee, and in 1969 in support of the Addison Citizens Party (ACP), which won three seats and all but sewed up the board that year.

When asked why he never ran for trustee, Goff, born in Jackson, Tenn., replied, "Well, I've been asked by friends and committeemen to run on numerous occasions, but that is really something special. You have to really be dedicated to be a trustee — the hours and nights away from your family is the hardest part."

TODAY, GOFF'S sympathies lie with the cause of a third party which is being organized in the village, despite the major role he played in the campaign of the ACP in 1969.

"There is a definite movement of concerned citizens in town," Goff said, "and although I will not serve as an officer or a campaign manager for any political party this time around, it doesn't rule out the possibility that I would serve as an adviser or knock on some doors during the campaign."

There are three basic issues which Goff has come to "view differently" than the present village board, six of whose seven members belong to the same party.

First, he feels the majority party has been lax in bringing about a stable government in the village.

"The board of trustees have to hire a professional man who knows what he's doing to run the village," Goff said. They can give him guidelines, but then they should follow the chain of command and let him run the village.

"YOU CAN'T intervene every time someone under your chief administrator is unhappy," he continued, "and if you get the right man in there, you should have no problem."

PROFILE

A Look at People from the Passing Suburban Scene

Presently the village board has been without a chief administrator ever since William Drury suddenly and unexpectedly resigned from that position on Nov. 5.

Goff also feels the present party hasn't brought orderly growth to the village.

"There's an imbalance between our residential, apartments and manufacturing districts," he said. "I think we're unbalanced, and the present party hasn't changed the picture too much."

Goff said that he is not against apartments, they are a necessity, but feels there should be balance.

"I lived in apartments in Chicago," he said, "and I very well may sell our home and move back into an apartment some day when our kids are grown."

Goff believes the proportion of apartments in a village should run between 15 and 20 per cent. Right now about 35 per cent of the dwelling units in Addison are apartments.

FINALLY, GOFF believes that a two-party system is essential to any govern-

"Right now, as I see it, the ACP has control of the board," he said. "Without even running anybody in the coming spring elections they would still have control of four seats. I never once campaigned when we had four members of our own party already on the board."

Those seats open for election in April presently belong to trustees Peter Callahan and Bernard Hanlon, both members of the ACP, and trustee Arthur Hurley Jr., the only non-ACP member on the board. The seats of board president Robert DeVries and trustees Charles Washburn, Paul Paulikas and Edward Cargill will not be up for election this year.

But despite his disagreements with the present government, Goff says he harbors no ill feelings toward anyone.

"Everyone is entitled to his views," he said. "Those serving on the board feel they're doing the best job possible."

Goff, who has played a major role in many successful campaigns, said the most important thing a campaign manager needs are good, dedicated and knowledgeable workers who can spend three or four nights a week knocking on doors.

"I DON'T BELIEVE in this apathy vote business," Goff said. "The only reason people don't come out to vote is because they're possibly a little confused about the issues, or the people in charge haven't got the major issue across that would bring the people to the polls."

But Goff also believes you can overwork an area during a campaign and begin offending people.

"During this last high school Dist. 38 referendum I got called eight times," he said. "That's overselling. When people are tired from working all day they become offended from being bothered so much."

"But at the same time," Goff said, "a campaign worker can't just brush off an area figuring it's sewed up, because people will say, 'Well, if he expects my vote, why couldn't he at least have come over and asked about it.'"

Zoning Board To Ponder Station Plea

The DuPage County Zoning Board of Appeals will take under advisement a request to rezone two acres at the northwest corner of Swift and Army Trail roads, near Addison and south of Bloomington.

Walter Mockus, 730 Sherwood Dr., Addison, the property owner, at a public hearing Thursday night requested the entire parcel be rezoned from R-3 (single-family residence) to B-4 (service business) for location of a service station on a portion of the property.

Mockus said the remainder of the parcel may possibly be used to relocate his wholesale plumbing and hardware business, A and A Supply of Chicago, in the future.

He added that negotiations for a land lease with the Marathon Oil Co. are presently in progress.

MRS. KAY HALLEY, 4N055 Robbie, Addison, expressing the objections of some residents in the area, said B-4 is a "blanket zoning" that would allow a wide variety of uses.

"We shouldn't stifle what he wants to do with the property because he has rights, but the existing residents should be considered. If the area continues to be built up for business use, homeowners may sell and the area will become tomorrow's slums."

Another resident, Lawrence Balcer, 4N024 Swift Rd., Addison, said he was also opposed to the rezoning because it would depreciate the value of his property. "In my estimation, a hardware and plumbing business doesn't go along with residential, and B-4 is too broad a zoning."

Aggravation of an existing drainage problem also was cited as an objection to the zoning change by surrounding residents.

A REQUEST BY BOARD members to accept a lesser zoning with a special use stipulation was denied by Mockus because "in business you always have to expand, and I have to plan for this expansion."

Mockus added that if his plumbing business was located on the site, it will all be under one roof and will be done "properly" with surrounding buffer areas.

A realty representative for Mockus said the two acres should be zoned B-4 to blend in with zoning on the other three corners of the intersection.

Board members will make a recommendation to the DuPage County Board of Supervisors through its zoning committee within the next several weeks for a final decision.

Knuepfer To Enter Bills For Elderly

State Sen. Jack T. Knuepfer R-Elmhurst is introducing two bills at the current session of the Illinois General Assembly to assist older citizens in meeting the rising cost of property taxes.

The Homestead Exemption that was passed at the last session of the General Assembly, which gives property tax breaks to the elderly, was declared unconstitutional. The new Constitution, however, makes it clear that a Homestead Exemption can be passed.

Reducing the property taxes on the older citizens will enable them to continue living in the same communities in which their friends and families live, Knuepfer said. He predicted that this session would see the passage of a Homestead Exemption Act to ease these tax burdens.

Looking For A Job? Area Businessmen May Be Of Help

LEA TONKIN

Despite today's downturn in employment activity, a group of Northwest Suburban businessmen is taking steps to boost the area's appeal in the people market.

Hiring and retaining new personnel are major concerns of the Northwest Industrial Council, according to its president, Jack Rhind. The outgrowth of an association formed in 1958 for the interchange of information, the council is oriented to personnel and industrial relations workers.

Its membership extends as far south as

Bensenville and as far north as Mundelein and Crystal Lake. Formally incorporated in 1965, the Northwest Industrial's membership Council has grown from a handful of firms to a membership of more than 150 small and large companies.

"We want to let other companies know that we are interested in their problems," said Rhind, personnel director at Methode Manufacturing Corp. in Rolling Meadows. "Companies moving out to the area as well as those already located here are welcome to contact us for information or service."

"The biggest asset to our members is our annual wage and benefit survey," said Rhind. "Soon after the group was organized, members expressed a need for this type of information. A survey was established, which member companies fill out each year for hourly and salaried non-exempt employees. The results are compiled in booklet form and distributed to our members."

"An electronic component manufacturer, for example, wants to know what other companies in this area are paying their assembly workers. He's not interested in what employers are paying on the South Side of Chicago or some other area," said Rhind.

WAGES FOR A given job may vary widely, as much as $100 a week, among the companies surveyed by the council. It includes union as well as non-union employees.

Employers also extend or withhold a variety of benefits. Among these are pay for jury duty, the number of paid holidays, office breaks, insurance, leave of absence, pension and profit sharing plans and overtime pay.

"If a company is having trouble in hiring or keeping janitorial personnel, for example, the company's pay rates can be adjusted according to the average benefits paid in the area. This enables companies to be competitive in hiring new personnel," Rhind said.

The concerns of personnel experts are changing with the times, Rhind said. "Three years ago it was hard to get people. Now that we're in an economic slump, there is no problem in finding new employees," he said.

"A new area of interest is the drug abuse problem," said Rhind. "Companies have indicated an interest in this problem, so we have planned a seminar on drugs in industry later this month."

The Northwest Industrial Council meets every other month. It has a permanent office and a part-time executive secretary. A Labor Relations subgroup and a scholarship program are among its activities.

Events Planned At College Of DuPage

Winter in north DuPage County tends to be dreary. College of DuPage, however, has scheduled events to add a little color to the dark days of January and February.

On Jan. 29 and 30 the performing arts department has scheduled performances of the classic, "South Pacific," by Rodgers and Hammerstein. Tickets available at the student activities office on campus, room K-138. Curtain time 8:15 p.m. Tickets cost $2.

Meetings on Feb. 2, 4, 9, and 11 will be held concerning real estate for the private investor, a series sponsored by the DuPage Board of Realtors and the DuPage School of Real Estate. Sessions will cover Depreciation and Appreciation Buying and Selling, Risk and Return — types of Real Estate Investment, How to Get Started in Real Estate, and Tax Effects of Buying and Selling — How to Profit and Keep It.

Sessions will be held in room K-157 on campus from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Registration fee is $15, payable to College of DuPage. Send check, name, address and home phone to Seminar Secretary, Office of Admissions, College of Du-

William Galligan, village administrator of Glen Ellyn, is coordinator for the seminar. For further information, contact Paul Ash, College of DuPage, phone 558-2800, Ext. 206 or 226.

James Farmer, former HEW assistant and national CORE director, will be on campus on Feb. 9. Admission is free.

The community-centered events listed above are intended to provide an added dimension of entertainment and interest for the entire community, according to a college spokesman. With the support of the community through attendance at college-sponsored events, College of DuPage can continue to build a meaningful and rewarding program of cultural, entertaining and educational events for the DuPage area, he added.

NOISE Members Make Noise

It appears the members of the National Organization to Insure A Sound-controlled Environment (NOISE) made their own kind of verbal noise this past weekend in Los Angeles.

Bensenville Village Pres. John Varble reported late last week there was "quite a turn out" at the nationwide conference, which was held to organize support against jet noise. Varble currently serves as secretary to NOISE.

Representatives from several Chicago suburbs besides Bensenville are also attending the three-day conference on the West Coast. Among other area villages represented are Wood Dale, Des Plaines, Schiller Park and Park Ridge.

Representatives of cities and villages in Georgia, New York, Massachusetts, Washington, Missouri and Wisconsin are also attending the conference.

Illinois Governor Richard Ogilvie sent a representative of the state environmental control committee to the conference, Varble said.

Representatives were expected to return late yesterday. A report on conference results will be available this week.

Value Of Unincorporated DuPage Up

DuPage County's unincorporated areas increased in valuation by almost $35 million dollars in 1970, according to figures released this week by the County Building and Zoning Department.

The amount represents the total value of all the permits issued by the department during the past year.

Permits for single family dwellings were most frequently issued. The 690 single family homes for which permits were issued were valued collectively at $18.7 million.

Multiple family homes added the second highest valuation to the county. A total of 22 permits worth $3.4 million were issued for the multiple dwellings. The 22 buildings added 308 apartment or townhouse units to the county.

Permits issued for business buildings added another $2.8 million to the county and 42 permits were issued for new construction and additions to industrial buildings worth more than $3 million.

Man Promoted At GTE Electric

William E. Walenda, 515 Memory Lane, Addison, has been named a supervisor in the Manufacturing Inspection Department at GTE Automatic Electric Inc., Northlake.

Walenda, who joined the electronics and communications systems manufacturing company in 1962, started as a laboratory technician. He later worked in factory accounting, and since 1965 he had been a circuit tester.

A graduate of Immaculate Conception high school, Elmhurst, he continued his studies at DeVry Technical Institute during his first years of employment at GTE Automatic.

Walenda is a member of a famous family at GTE Automatic, and often has to explain that "it's not the Flying Wallendas of circus fame — they spell the name differently, anyway."

The Walendas at Northlake include Bill's father, Myron, a millwright who has been with the company 32 years; a brother, Richard, a tool and die maker with 12 years' service; an aunt, Lillian Lord, inspection department, 44 years; and an uncle Edward Kozak, inspection, nearly 30 years.

"That totals over 120 years, Bill Walenda noted, "but, in addition, I have an uncle, Edwin Lord, who retired after 30 years at GTE Automatic. He was a precision gauge inspector."

Bill Walenda is active in softball, basketball, bowling and numerous other sports, and admits an interest in "just about every sport there is." He is also intent on continuing his education, particularly in the field of electronics.

Rule Out Special Refuse Containers

Special garbage containers for discarded bottles and cans will no longer be used by Wood Dale residents, according to Hilbert Gurke, sanitation commissioner.

Thursday night Gurke recommended the removal of special containers for these items and the village council supported him unanimously. Bottles and cans may be placed in regular containers.

"I've also had a lot of calls from people on garbage can lids that aren't put back on cans," Gurke said. "The garbage can lids will be placed on containers by the sanitation department."

Gurke said residents were complaining because F. A. Burnier, who formerly handled sanitation service in the village, put lids back on cans. He added that his department will start doing the same.

In February, project SOAR (Save Our American Resources) will be initiated by 58 Boy Scout Cub Packs, Troops, and Explorer Units in the DuPage Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Although a variety of community improvement or conservation projects will be based on the needs of each community, projects will be principally those that lend themselves to boy participation such as air and water pollution, litter collection and prevention, and waste disposal and recycling.

Delay Park St. Rezoning Issue Until March 12

Residents living on the east side of Bensenville will have to wait for more than a month to officially protest the rezoning of a parcel of property on Park Street.

At the zoning board hearing Saturday night, petitioner Ed Hoffman, of Hoffman Trucking, requested the hearing to rezone the property from a residential to an industrial classification be postponed.

Eugene Sullivan, chairman of the zoning board, set the continuation of the hearing for the earliest possible date, March 12.

Hoffman asked the hearing be postponed because his attorney was not present Friday night.

Some 40 residents of the area, armed with petitions reportedly signed by 288 people, were obviously disturbed over the postponement, feeling it was a stall tactic on the part of the petitioner.

THE RESIDENTS are protesting the request for rezoning the property because the land had already been designated by the Bensenville Park District as a park and because if industry were developed on the property there would be no buffer zone between industry already located to the east and the residential area.

Several years ago area residents successfully opposed the rezoning from residential to industrial of the same section of property.

Sullivan told the residents the hearing on the property would be reopened in March, but if the petitioner does not appear at the reopening, the hearing would continue to be reopened and recessed at each successive meeting of the zoning board until the petitioner would appear. Sullivan added, however, this reopening and recessing would not go on "indefinitely."

Merle Hummel, representing the Bensenville Park District, indicated Friday night the park district would also be protesting the rezoning of the property.

SEVERAL YEARS ago the park commissioners began negotiations to buy the property to eventually develop a park for residents living east of York Road.

A $1,000 down payment was made by the park district to a man who purported to own the property. A sign was placed on the proposed park site, but after legal battles lasting several months it was determined the man who claimed to own the property was not the actual property owner. The sign is still standing on the site.

The commissioners have said they are still negotiating for a parcel of land east of York Road to develop a park site, but they have not indicated where the property is located.

Recently, Board President Bill Burde said the board may have to go into condemnation procedures to secure the parcel of property they are seeking.

IT'S FUN BUT ILLEGAL to ride snowmobiles across village or private property without permission, according to area police officials. Snowmobiles are becoming a hazard around the Bensenville-Wood Dale area where residents have gone to the more "mod" method of motorized sledding.

Fenton Citizens Committee To Meet

The Fenton High School Dist. 100 Citizens Advisory Committee will meet tonight at 8 p.m. in the Fenton faculty lounge.

Members of the committee have divided into various study groups to evaluate the problems facing the school district serving Bensenville and Wood Dale.

According to Ray Soden, chairman of the committee, recommendations to the school board should be submitted sometime next month.

The school board has requested the committee look into district ills, especially the district's financial problems, and come up with recommendations that would be acceptable to the public.

Village Plea To State: Probe Trucking Firm For Pollution Violations

by LINDA VACHATA

Bensenville village officials are pleading with officials of the State Air and Water Pollution Control Division not to abandon investigations into alleged pollution violations by the Paul Zaccari and Son Trucking firm, located east of the village boundary on Irving Park Road.

In a letter to the division's director, John Bickly, Village Pres. John Varble last week requested "do not close this file and have one of your investigators take another long look at this condition."

Bickley recently sent a letter to the village informing officials the investigation into alleged pollution violations at the Zaccari site had been concluded, since the firm apparently complied with state pollution control requirements.

"THE LOCAL POLLUTION control officer, fire inspector and public works department told me the condition has worsened instead of being improved or ceased," Varble said in his letter. "Zaccari, as you know, is not within the village limits and therefore we do not have license control of the operation. If the village of Bensenville had control over (the) Zaccari (operation), I assure you, that they would have been shut down some time ago."

"It is indeed a disgrace to the whole area, the refuse and the manner in which it is stored with complete disregard for appearance."

Bensenville officials have condemned the appearance of Zaccari's property for several years, claiming it is an "eyesore." Since the rubbish removal operation is located so close to the village, many area residents think the firm is located in the village, they add.

"WITH THE WIDENING of Irving Park Road, the traffic flow has increased considerably going by this area which is indeed a terrible eyesore for a community which is striving to adhere to the pollution standards and bring our village up to date in following the precepts as set down by your office," Varble said in the letter.

"I think everything is settled," Tony Zaccari told the Register Friday. "I assure you there is no violation on our part since the investigation."

Zaccari said the pollution control division cited the firm's dumping of paper and wood toward the back of the property as a violation and threatened a law suit if the dumping were not ceased and the area was not filled with dirt.

"There is no more dumping on our property other than black clay fill," Zaccari said.

'There's Little Sewage-Free Water In This County'

by BRAD BREKKE

Last of Two Parts

"In DuPage County, there is hardly anywhere you could swim where the water doesn't have some sewage in it."

So said Willis Collins, former Addison village engineer.

Collins operates his own business today, along with a partner. It is called the Addison Engineering Service, 21 N. Addison Ave., Addison.

Collins says nature cleans up the environmental mess man leaves, but only to a point.

"The Wisconsin and Mississippi Rivers are beautiful, but they have sewage in them. Every town along its banks contributes a little."

"WE RELY ON sewage treatment systems, but no system is 100 per cent effective. If we're good, we can treat it 92 per cent effectively and let nature take it from there. And it does by means of algae, which puts oxygen into the water; sunlight, which kills bacteria; and rocks, which help purify the water and take out solid waste materials."

"Salt Creek, for instance, has waste matter from 72,000 persons in it. That can bother you, if you let it, but if you see floating matter in the creek it isn't all that bad.

"Elmhurst, Addison and Villa Park have spent millions of dollars for treatment of sewage in recent years. We hope to be even more effective, but to do this we need about nine sewage treatment plants in the county."

"It is no longer economically feasible for every town to have a plant. The increase in standards for sewage treatment has reached the point where it is impractical for any one town to do it alone. If should be taken over by the county," said Collins.

He said part of the sewage problem in Addison stems from the fact that about 15 per cent of the town still has combined sanitary and storm sewers.

"WE'VE HAD COMBINED sewers here since 1928. They were that way all over the country. People are getting hysterical about this today, where five or 10 years ago, they were calm. The conditions haven't changed, but the people have."

He said another problem here is that many residents still have their sump pumps hooked up to sanitary sewer lines. "This is very serious. When it rains, the sump pump discharges into the sanitary sewer lines and as a result, the sewage comes into the treatment plant too fast to be effectively treated and then returns to our creeks, adding to the pollution problem."

The problem is further complicated by the fact that there isn't a storm sewer in front of every home which has a sump pump. And even if residents funneled storm water from their basements onto the streets, it would eventually flow into a combined sewer and move through the sewage plant untreated in peak hours of rainfall.

Sewage which goes through the plant too fast for treatment goes into Salt Creek and the solid residue eventually settles to the bottom where it becomes sludge.

"WHEN SEWAGE GOES into a stream today, there isn't enough time for a stream to counteract what is offensive by natural process."

"A sewage treatment plant strains the solids and puts oxygen into the liquid. Nature does it this way too, but we just speed up the process."

"The state maintains control over all water systems. Samples are sent in for analysis periodically, but that doesn't tell everything there is to know about the water."

"Six years ago Salt Creek was black with pollution below Elmhurst because of the combined sewer systems. But since then, Elmhurst spent $8 million and Addison $2 million to correct the situation. Elmhurst put in separate sewer systems and Addison built a new sewage treatment plant."

"So things improved. Years ago raw sewage was discharged into Salt Creek. Now it only gets sewage in it during periods of peak rainfall. But all the combined sewers should be eliminated by 1976."

THE LONGER THEY wait to do it, the more expensive it will be.

"The Addison Industrial Park is causing no major pollution problems I know of. But every once in awhile, they will discharge some oil and grease into our sewer systems and it takes some real detective work when this happens to find out who's doing it. That's part of the human equation, I guess."

"But it's a wonderful thing, when you think about it, that we can take human waste and treat it within two hours so it comes out looking like drinking water, with all the offensive material out of it," he said.

When asked about all the old car tires, stoves and other debris and trash in Salt Creek, Collins said:

"This is an eyesore, but doesn't contribute to the chemical pollution of the creek. It is pollution though in the broad sense of the word."

"People dump trash in the creek rather than haul it away and those who do it are doing the community a disservice. Some of the debris comes from man. Some of it comes from floods. There is no solution for this yet. There is no state or local agency I know of that has been charged with cleaning the trash and debris out of our waterways."

"DuPAGE COUNTY has nothing. There is nothing in anyone's budget for this. When the complaint becomes great enough, something will be done. Trash doesn't contaminate the water. It's just unsightly and a measure of our carelessness."

"Towns used to have city dumps and they were handy for getting rid of trash. But city dumps have been done away with today and that's good. They were burning dumps and contributed to air pollution. They were unsupervised and usually had a lot of rats in them, too."

"If people don't have the scavenger service or not enough money to have large junk hauled away, they'll throw it into the creek or along our roadsides."

"The only way to overcome this is to have free refuse collection. If the collection is part of the tax bill or rent, then there would be no reason for river dumping."

Collins, who lives in Glen Ellyn, graduated from Texas A&M and did a year of graduate study in the field of sanitary engineering at Harvard.

From 1932 to 1939 he was with the Texas Health Department and spent another four years as the city sanitary engineer in San Antonio, Tex. During World War II he was with the Sanitary Corps and following that, worked at the South District filtration plant in Chicago. He came to Addison in 1960 and served as the community's village engineer from 1960 to 1965.

"POLLUTION IS NOT as bad as we've painted it to be. The public health people are glad to get all the help they can get."

"But the thing is, we must continue to be interested in pollution. This is the big danger."

"We Americans tend to get worked up about something, then cool off and go to something else," said Collins.

Village Kills Vlcek Annex Petition

The Wood Dale Village Council Thursday night rejected an annexation petition by Joseph Vlcek to bring 18 acres of R-1 zoned property near Third Avenue and Rte. 83 into the village.

Vlcek is the supposed owner of the Travelaire Day Camp who last year donated his Travelaire pool, recreational equipment and a two-acre park site to the Wood Dale Park District in a special letter to Mayor Ralph Hansen.

Vlcek said he wanted to make the donation, valued at approximately $250,000 to Wood Dale because the day camp was becoming too costly to maintain. He added that he and his wife were getting too old to properly operate the camp and he wanted to donate it for Wood Dale children to use.

Bensenville Park District, which sought to bring the day camp into Bensenville, has charged that Vlcek's donation was bogus since he did not own the property to donate.

DINO JANIS, Wood Dale councilman, concurred and claimed Vlcek was to receive multiple zoning in return for the remainder of his property in return for the pool donation.

"He (Vlcek) is not on the property title in Wheaton (county records)," Janis said Friday. "A fellow named Nathaniel Greenberg owns the property and all Vlcek does is pay the tax bills."

Janis has contended that Vlcek was offered multiple zoning in return for donation but Mayor Hansen, the only village official active in the negotiations, has publicly denied the reciprocal promise of multiple zoning.

In rejecting Vlcek's proposed 18-acre annexation, Janis said that the petition for annexation was invalid, according to village ordinance. Janis said that the village ordinance requires all owners of properties to petition for annexation and Vlcek is not the property owner of record.

"THE PETITION is also invalid because his wife, who is supposedly co-owner under a lease agreement, is not on the petition," Janis said.

The property is presently zoned R-1 (residential single family) and Janis admits that a request for rezoning by Vlcek hasn't been made yet.

Reportedly, if multiple zoning was granted for Vlcek's 18-acres, it would substantially increase the value of the property since apartments and condominiums could be built.

The council agreed to inform Vlcek that his petition of annexation was invalid and that all the signatures of the property owners are required for proper annexation into Wood Dale.

Knuepfer To Enter Bills For Elderly

State Sen. Jack T. Knuepfer R-Elmhurst is introducing two bills at the current session of the Illinois General Assembly to assist older citizens in meeting the rising cost of property taxes.

The Homestead Exemption that was passed at the last session of the General Assembly, which gives property tax breaks to the elderly, was declared unconstitutional. The new Constitution, however, makes it clear that a Homestead Exemption can be passed.

Reducing the property taxes on the older citizens will enable them to continue living in the same communities in which their friends and families live, Knuepfer said. He predicted that this session would see the passage of a Homestead Exemption Act to ease these tax burdens.

Looking For A Job? Area Businessmen May Be Of Help

LEA TONKIN

Despite today's downturn in employment activity, a group of Northwest Suburban businessmen is taking steps to boost the area's appeal in the people market.

Hiring and retaining new personnel are major concerns of the Northwest Industrial Council, according to its president, Jack Rhind. The outgrowth of an association formed in 1958 for the interchange of information, the council is oriented to personnel and industrial relations workers.

Its membership extends as far south as

Bensenville and as far north as Mundelein and Crystal Lake. Formally incorporated in 1965, the Northwest Industrial's membership Council has grown from a handful of firms to a membership of more than 150 small and large companies.

"We want to let other companies know that we are interested in their problems," said Rhind, personnel director at Methode Manufacturing Corp. in Rolling Meadows. "Companies moving out to the area as well as those already located here are welcome to contact us for information or service."

"The biggest asset to our members is our annual wage and benefit survey," said Rhind. "Soon after the group was organized, members expressed a need for this type of information. A survey was established, which member companies fill out each year for hourly and salaried non-exempt employees. The results are compiled in booklet form and distributed to our members."

"An electronic component manufacturer, for example, wants to know what other companies in this area are paying their assembly workers. He's not interested in what employers are paying on the South Side of Chicago or some other area," said Rhind.

WAGES FOR A given job may vary widely, as much as $100 a week, among the companies surveyed by the council. It includes union as well as non-union employees.

Employers also extend or withhold a variety of benefits. Among these are pay for jury duty, the number of paid holidays, office breaks, insurance, leave of absence, pension and profit sharing plans and overtime pay.

"If a company is having trouble in hiring or keeping janitorial personnel, for example, the company's pay rates can be adjusted according to the average benefits paid in the area. This enables companies to be competitive in hiring new personnel," Rhind said.

The concerns of personnel experts are changing with the times, Rhind said. "Three years ago it was hard to get people. Now that we're in an economic slump, there is no problem in finding new employees," he said.

"A new area of interest is the drug abuse problem," said Rhind. "Companies have indicated an interest in this problem, so we have planned a seminar on drugs in industry later this month."

The Northwest Industrial Council meets every other month. It has a permanent office and a part-time executive secretary. A Labor Relations subgroup and a scholarship program are among its activities.

Events Planned At College Of DuPage

Winter in north DuPage County tends to be dreary. College of DuPage, however, has scheduled events to add a little color to the dark days of January and February.

On Jan. 29 and 30 the performing arts department has scheduled performances of the classic, "South Pacific," by Rodgers and Hammerstein. Tickets available at the student activities office on campus, room K-138. Curtain time 8:15 p.m. Tickets cost $2.

Meetings on Feb. 2, 4, 9, and 11 will be held concerning real estate for the private investor, a series sponsored by the DuPage Board of Realtors and the DuPage School of Real Estate. Sessions will cover Depreciation and Appreciation Buying and Selling, Risk and Return — types of Real Estate Investment, How to Get Started in Real Estate, and Tax Effects of Buying and Selling — How to Profit and Keep It.

Sessions will be held in room K-157 on campus from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Registration fee is $15, payable to College of DuPage. Send check, name, address and home phone to Seminar Secretary, Office of Admissions, College of Du-

William Galligan, village administrator of Glen Ellyn, is coordinator for the seminar. For further information, contact Paul Ash, College of DuPage, phone 658-2800, Ext. 206 or 228.

James Farmer, former HEW assistant and national CORE director, will be on campus on Feb. 9. Admission is free.

The community-centered events listed above are intended to provide an added dimension of entertainment and interest for the entire community, according to a college spokesman. With the support of the community through attendance at college-sponsored events, College of DuPage can continue to build a meaningful and rewarding program of cultural, entertaining and educational events for the DuPage area, he added.

NOISE Members Make Noise

It appears the members of the National Organization to Inure A Sound-controlled Environment (NOISE) made their own kind of verbal noise this past weekend in Los Angeles.

Bensenville Village Pres. John Varble reported late last week there was "quite a turn out" at the nationwide conference, which was held to organize support against jet noise. Varble currently serves as secretary to NOISE.

Representatives from several Chicago suburbs besides Bensenville are also attending the three-day conference on the West Coast. Among other area villages represented are Wood Dale, Des Plaines, Schiller Park and Park Ridge.

Representatives of cities and villages in Georgia, New York, Massachusetts, Washington, Missouri and Wisconsin are also attending the conference.

Illinois Governor Richard Ogilvie sent a representative of the state environmental control committee to the conference, Varble said.

Representatives were expected to return late yesterday. A report on conference results will be available this week.

Value Of Unincorporated DuPage Up

DuPage County's unincorporated areas increased in valuation by almost $35 million dollars in 1970, according to figures released this week by the County Building and Zoning Department.

The amount represents the total value of all the permits issued by the department during the past year.

Permits for single family dwellings were most frequently issued. The 690 single family homes for which permits were issued were valued collectively at $18.7 million.

Multiple family homes added the second highest valuation to the county. A total of 22 permits worth $3.4 million were issued for the multiple dwellings. The 22 buildings added 308 apartment or townhouse units to the county.

Permits issued for business buildings added another $2.8 million to the county and 42 permits were issued for new construction and additions to industrial buildings worth more than $3 million.

Man Promoted At GTE Electric

William E. Walenda, 515 Memory Lane, Addison, has been named a supervisor in the Manufacturing Inspection Department at GTE Automatic Electric Inc., Northlake.

Walenda, who joined the electronics and communications systems manufacturing company in 1962, started as a laboratory technician. He later worked in factory accounting, and since 1965 he had been a circuit tester.

A graduate of Immaculate Conception high school, Elmhurst, he continued his studies at DeVry Technical Institute during his first years of employment at GTE Automatic.

Walenda is a member of a famous family at GTE Automatic, and often has to explain that "it's not the Flying Walendas of circus fame — they spell the name differently, anyway."

The Walendas at Northlake include Bill's father, Myron, a millwright who has been with the company 32 years; a brother, Richard, a tool and die maker with 12 years' service; an aunt, Lillian Lord, inspection department, 44 years; and an uncle Edward Kozak, inspection, nearly 30 years.

"That totals over 120 years, Bill Walenda noted, "but, in addition, I have an uncle, Edwin Lord, who retired after 30 years at GTE Automatic. He was a precision gauge inspector."

Gocha The Bear In PTO Kid's Movie

Gocha the Talking Bear will star in the Feb. 1 movie sponsored by the Roselle Parent Teachers' Organization (PTO) at Parkside School on Maple Street.

The movie, part of a series sponsored by the PTO on school free days, will run 86 minutes. School doors open at 1 p.m. and the movie begins at 1:30 p.m. in the gym. A 50-cent admission charge includes a bag of popcorn.

Bill Walenda is active in softball, basketball, bowling and numerous other sports, and admits an interest in "just about every sport there is." He is also intent on continuing his education, particularly in the field of electronics.

Rule Out Special Refuse Containers

Special garbage containers for discarded bottles and cans will no longer be used by Wood Dale residents, according to Hilbert Gurke, sanitation commissioner.

Thursday night Gurke recommended the removal of special containers for these items and the village council supported him unanimously. Bottles and cans may be placed in regular containers.

"I've also had a lot of calls from people on garbage can lids that aren't put back on cans," Gurke said. "The garbage can lids will be placed on containers by the sanitation department."

Gurke said residents were complaining because F. A. Burnier, who formerly handled sanitation service in the village, put lids back on cans. He added that his department will start doing the same.

Cited By Army

Sgt. Robert A. Cortese, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Cortese, 119 E. Comstock Ave., Addison, recently received the Army Commendation Medal while serving with the 4th Infantry Division near An Khe, Vietnam.

Cortese earned the award for meritorious service as a squad leader in the division's company E, 1st Battalion of the 12th Infantry.

The sergeant entered the army in February 1969.

'Save Resources' Push Slated By Scouts

In February, project SOAR (Save Our American Resources) will be initiated by 58 Boy Scout Cub Packs, Troops, and Explorer Units in the DuPage Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Although a variety of community improvement or conservation projects will be based on the needs of each community, projects will be principally those that lend themselves to boy participation such as air and water pollution, litter collection and prevention, and waste disposal and recycling.

Council Objects To Widening Of S. Wood Dale Rd.

The Wood Dale Village Council Thursday night adopted a resolution officially opposing the four-lane widening of South Wood Dale Road from Division Street to near I-90.

The council also directed Sam LaSusa, village attorney to negotiate a village withdrawal with county highway officials on the joint contract for 200-feet of four-lane widening from Division Street to Montrose Avenue.

The council was spurred into action by approximately 75 angry residents who vocally protested the county road widening and presented the council with petitions of over 600 signatures in opposition to the road widening.

Warren B. Carson, Dist. 7 superintendent whose school board publicly opposed the road widening last week, was the spokesman for the residents. Carson said that he objected to the four-lane widening beyond the intersection because of child safety.

"A child is pretty defenseless on 48-ft. to 60 ft. of blacktop," Carson told the council. "To ask a child to handle a four-lane traffic situation is just too much."

Carson said that most drivers increase speed on four-lane streets. He added that school children need safety measures such as sidewalks or overhead passageways with ramps for school children.

WHILE CARSON SOUGHT council support to oppose the road widening, Mayor Ralph Hansen said that the village doesn't have control over the road situation because the widening is a county project.

The county should widen north Wood Dale Road from Commercial to Thorndale because there is more traffic in this area," Mrs. Marge Scortino said.

Residents continued to argue that a four-lane widening of Wood Dale Road from Montrose to near I-90 was unnecessary and would create an influx of heavy truck traffic through residential areas.

Carson objected to the traffic count that has been taken on Wood Dale Road by the county that justifies its widening to four lanes. He said that when the new expressways are built and the intersection is widened, there will be no need for a four-lane road.

While the village council agreed to oppose the county widening project to the DuPage County Board of Supervisors, it urged residents to garner more signatures for their petition.

"We hope the petitions will have the impetus to stop the county," councilman Ralph Madonna said. We (councilmen) have all talked to Fred Bowen of the county highway department in regard to child safety."

MADONNA ADDED THAT the village still planned to continue with its joint program with the county for the widening of the intersection of Wood Dale and Irving Park roads despite its opposition to the rest of the widening plan.

Charles Ricci, a supporter of the extension north of Addison Road to Thorndale Avenue, said the village should support his committee's plans as an alternate solution to the widening of south Wood Dale Road.

Ricci said he had about 4,000 signatures on petitions that support the Addison Road extension that could be submitted to the county officials.

"It may cost the taxpayers money and we may need the people's support if sued," councilman Dino Janis said in reference to council opposition to the road widening.

In breaking the village's agreement with the county on widening of Wood Dale Road from Division to Montrose, LaSusa said that it wouldn't be difficult to break the contract because it hasn't been officially signed yet.

The village and county highway department are sharing the cost of widening 500-feet of intersection on Irving Park Road and 300-feet of intersection on Wood Dale Road.

IT'S FUN BUT ILLEGAL to ride snowmobiles across village or private property without permission, according to area police officials. Snowmobiles are becoming a hazard around the Bensenville-Wood Dale area where residents have gone to the more "mod" method of motorized sledding.

Engineer Directed To Inspect Subdivision

The Wood Dale Village Council Thursday night directed Joel Golan, village engineer, to inspect the Forrest Second Addition on Mont Clare Avenue to see if the builder complied with original plans and specifications on the subdivision.

Councilman Hilbert Gurke said that the area has storm sewers but there are none in the Forrest Second Addition. He added they should be installed.

Alex Tennent, superintendent of public works, disagreed with the village requirement of storm sewers.

"The subdivision plans did not call for storm drainage," Tennent said.

When contacted by the Register Friday, builder Pete Forrest said, "All the lines that were on the plans were installed — there are storm sewers on those plans and they have been installed."

Councilman Dino Janis expressed concern that the builder's performance bond of $39,000 had been returned with authority of the former village manager without improvements being made. Janis added that, in the past, the council always released performance bonds upon the recommendation of Hancock Engineering but the council was not notified of the bond release on Forrest.

The finance commissioner told the council that $4,300 of the performance bond has been withheld for repair of six items in the subdivision including street paving and leaky water mains.

Of the $4,300 of the bond being held by Ben Franklin Bank in Oakbrook, the village engineer said approximately $4,200 of it would be used to make the final improvements and repairs on the project. Janis added that an 8-inch pipe was needed for drainage and only a 4-inch pipe was installed in the subdivision.

"We have exceeded our plans as required by the village and installed sump pump lines and storm sewers," Forrest said Friday. "Gurke doesn't know what he's talking about."

Golan said he will inspect the subdivision and report back to the council Feb. 4.

Fenton Citizens Committee To Meet

The Fenton High School Dist. 100 Citizens Advisory Committee will meet tonight at 8 p.m. in the Fenton faculty lounge.

Members of the committee have divided into various study groups to evaluate the problems facing the school district serving Bensenville and Wood Dale.

According to Ray Soden, chairman of the committee, recommendations to the school board should be submitted sometime next month.

The school board has requested the committee look into district ills, especially the district's financial problems, and come up with recommendations that would be acceptable to the public.

Village Kills Vlcchek Annex Petition

The Wood Dale Village Council Thursday night rejected an annexation petition by Joseph Vlcchek to bring 18 acres of R-1 zoned property near Third Avenue and Rte. 83 into the village.

Vlcchek is the supposed owner of the Travelaire Day Camp who last year donated his Travelaire pool, recreational equipment and a two-acre park site to the Wood Dale Park District in a special letter to Mayor Ralph Hansen.

Vlcchek said he wanted to make the donation, valued at approximately $250,000 to Wood Dale because the day camp was becoming too costly to maintain. He added that he and his wife were getting too old to properly operate the camp and he wanted to donate it for Wood Dale children to use.

Bensenville Park District, which sought to bring the day camp into Bensenville, has charged that Vlcchek's donation was bogus since he did not own the property to donate.

DINO JANIS, Wood Dale councilman, concurred and claimed Vlcchek was to receive multiple zoning for the remainder of his property in return for the pool donation.

"He (Vlcchek) is not on the property title in Wheaton (county records)," Janis said Friday. "A fellow named Nathaniel Greenberg owns the property and all Vlcchek does is pay the tax bills."

Janis has contended that Vlcchek was offered multiple zoning in return for donation but Mayor Hansen, the only village official active in the negotiations, has publicly denied the reciprocal promise of multiple zoning.

In rejecting Vlcchek's proposed 18-acre annexation, Janis said that the petition for annexation was invalid, according to village ordinance. Janis said that the village ordinance requires all owners of properties to petition for annexation and Vlcchek is not the property owner of record.

"THE PETITION is also invalid because his wife, who is supposedly co-owner under a lease agreement, is not on the petition," Janis said.

The property is presently zoned R-1 (residential single family) and Janis admits that a request for rezoning by Vlcchek hasn't been made yet.

Reportedly, if multiple zoning was granted for Vlcchek's 18-acres, it would substantially increase the value of the property since apartments and condominiums could be built.

The council agreed to inform Vlcchek that his petition of annexation was invalid and that all the signatures of the property owners are required for proper annexation into Wood Dale.

Campaign Manager Named By Candidate

Lee Coppoletta, 17W350 Deerpath, in Wood Dale, has been named campaign manager for mayoral candidate Harry Bendtsen.

Coppoletta and Mrs. Diane Bonior, women's coordinator, will handle all information concerning the candidate.

Anyone wishing further information on the mayoral candidate should contact Coppoletta and Mrs. Bonior at 595-0240 or 766-8440.

Pollution? He's Been Fighting It For 40 Years

by BRAD BREKKE
First of two parts

Willis Collins, 65-year-old former Addison village engineer, has been fighting the problems of pollution for the last 40 years.

He was fighting pollution in Texas before half the people in this country were even born. And he's still fighting it today.

They didn't call Collins an ecologist in those days. He was simply an employee of the state health department.

"I have devoted a great part of my life to the elimination of filth. Too many people are getting into the act late today and expect too much too fast," he said.

Collins feels the Johnny-Come-Latelies in environmental control need a broader perspective of the problem in terms of what pollution used to be and what it is today.

He also said that we have gone overboard on pollution and even the meaning of the word has changed.

"IN THE 1930's, thousands of people were dying like flies from a lack of sanitation. I was in Texas in 1932 and it wasn't until the Public Works Administration program that towns of 5,000 to 10,000 people even had sewer systems.

"We had surface toilets. And it was the same in the North as in the South. The first program I worked on was to get pit toilets built so human waste would not come into contact with flies.

"Flies carried deadly typhoid fever and to break the channel of transmission, we had to build different toilets so flies wouldn't carry typhoid germs to our food, from the outhouses.

"And if an outhouse was built near a well, we had other problems to contend with, such as contaminated water.

"Now people are well versed on environmental matters and people are not dying like flies from epidemics. We're all concerned today. But back a few years ago, the only people worried about our environment were doctors and a small number of people in the public health service.

"The transmission of communicable diseases has pretty much been taken care of in the past 30 years, but we have other problems to contend with," said Collins.

He said malaria used to be a problem in the South. "Mosquito control used to be a big thing. Now it's routine and is handled from the nuisance standpoint, rather than a guard against disease.

"MOST TOWNS today have a fogging program in their budget because people like to enjoy their patios and be outside in the summer."

Collins said Salt Creek, which winds its way through Addison, is not badly polluted today.

"It's not so bad it has turned black, has gas bubbles and floating debris in it, such as toilet paper.

"When I was working in Texas, I saw creeks with scum on top of the water and they stank to high heaven. That was pollution as it was formerly recognized.

"Today if clay gets into a creek, we say it's polluted. Actually the water is just discolored. But it's all relative.

"It's the same with air pollution. For instance, Pittsburg used to be the smokey city, along with London, and the people didn't think a thing of it. Now we get excited if a haze lingers over northern Illinois.

"We've prohibited the burning of leaves and trash too, in an effort to keep our air clean.

"But as far as I'm concerned, the biggest thing we've overlooked is the pollution caused by salt on our streets. It's more important than any of the other things we are working on today.

"EVERY YEAR millions of tons of salt are spread on our highways and streets."

To explain this point, he said:

"Milk is one of the best foods we have, but it's also one of the filthiest. It is white and conceals all the particles in it we consider offensive. But we aren't alarmed about this because we control the quality of milk by various methods, such as pasteurization, which keeps the bacteria down.

"Bacteria will multiply if the milk is not kept refrigerated, but we don't care so much about this as long as it tastes good.

"You can apply this to our environment. A clear stream you would take as one which has not been contaminated. If it looks clean, you'll probably swim in it.

"But one that is black and has toilet paper and other matter floating on top of it, you would not swim in. It is polluted.

"Technically, if the bacteria of water is higher than certain limits we set, it is polluted.

"And if a stream is mildly polluted and you go in swimming with an open cut on your leg, you might get an infection. And if you should happen to drink some of this water, you might get the runs that's all.

"But you know, some people can get a stomach upset from eating overripe peaches, too," he said.

It goes through our storm sewer systems and into our creeks and waterways and it is polluting them.

"A lot has been said about phosphates. But salt is worse.

"Salt increases the salinity of water and this is bad from a water quality standpoint, not to mention the deteriorating effect it has on our cars," he said.

Collins said there is a good reason our creeks are becoming polluted today.

He explained that as the volume of sewage and the number of people increases, the amount of rain water remains constant. Rain water acts as a dilutant, he said, but if there isn't enough water, pollution begins.

"FORTY YEARS ago, rain water was retained by holes and duck ponds and leaked slowly back to our creeks. Today it flows away at a greater volume than ever before because we have streets, rooftops and paved parking lots, where once we had natural retaining basins.

"The rain is the same, but the runoff is much faster today. And we have a lot of industrial wastes now that we didn't have back in 1930. That's why our standards for environment protection have become so much stricter," he said.

Collins said a clean environment is all a matter of compromise.

Knuepfer To Enter Bills For Elderly

State Sen. Jack T. Knuepfer of Elmhurst is introducing two bills at the current session of the Illinois General Assembly to assist older citizens in meeting the rising cost of property taxes.

The Homestead Exemption that was passed at the last session of the General Assembly, which gives property tax relief to the elderly, was declared unconstitutional. The new Constitution, however, makes it clear that a Homestead Exemption can be passed.

Including the property taxes on the elderly citizens will enable them to continue to live in the same communities in which their friends and families live, Knuepfer said. He predicted that this session would see the passage of a Homestead Exemption Act to ease these tax burdens.

Looking For A Job? Area Businessmen May Be Of Help

LEA TONKIN

Despite today's downturn in employment activity, a group of Northwest Suburban businessmen is taking steps to boost the area's appeal in the people market.

Hiring and retaining new personnel are major concerns of the Northwest Industrial Council, according to its president, Jack Rhind. The outgrowth of an association formed in 1958 for the interchange of information, the council is oriented to personnel and industrial relations workers.

Its membership extends as far south as

Bensenville and as far north as Mundelein and Crystal Lake. Formally incorporated in 1965, the Northwest Industrial Council's membership has grown from a handful of firms to a membership of more than 150 small and large companies.

"We want to let other companies know that we are interested in their problems," said Rhind, personnel director at Methode Manufacturing Corp. in Rolling Meadows. "Companies moving out to the area as well as those already located here are welcome to contact us for information or service."

"The biggest asset to our members is our annual wage and benefit survey," said Rhind. "Soon after the group was organized, members expressed a need for this type of information. A survey was established, which member companies fill out each year for hourly and salaried non-exempt employees. The results are compiled in booklet form and distributed to our members."

"An electronic component manufacturer, for example, wants to know what other companies in this area are paying their assembly workers. He's not interested in what employers are paying on the South Side of Chicago or some other area," said Rhind.

WAGES FOR A given job may vary widely, as much as $100 a week, among the companies surveyed by the council. It includes union as well as non-union employees.

Employers also extend or withhold a variety of benefits. Among these are pay for jury duty, the number of paid holidays, office breaks, insurance, leave of absence, pension and profit sharing plans and overtime pay.

"If a company is having trouble in hiring or keeping janitorial personnel, for example, the company's pay rates can be adjusted according to the average benefits paid in the area. This enables companies to be competitive in hiring new personnel," Rhind said.

The concerns of personnel experts are changing with the times, Rhind said. "Three years ago it was hard to get people. Now that we're in an economic slump, there is no problem in finding new employees," he said.

"A new area of interest is the drug abuse problem," said Rhind. "Companies have indicated an interest in this problem, so we have planned a seminar on drugs in industry later this month."

The Northwest Industrial Council meets every other month. It has a permanent office and a part-time executive secretary. A Labor Relations subgroup and a scholarship program are among its activities.

Events Planned At College Of DuPage

Winter in north DuPage County tends to be dreary. College of DuPage, however, has scheduled events to add a little color to the dark days of January and February.

On Jan. 29 and 30 the performing arts department has scheduled performances of the classic, "South Pacific," by Rodgers and Hammerstein. Tickets available at the student activities office on campus, room K-138. Curtain time 8:15 p.m. Tickets cost $2.

Meetings on Feb. 2, 4, 9, and 11 will be held concerning real estate for the private investor, a series sponsored by the DuPage Board of Realtors and the DuPage School of Real Estate. Sessions will cover Depreciation and Appreciation Buying and Selling, Risk and Return — types of Real Estate Investment, How to Get Started in Real Estate, and Tax Effects of Buying and Selling — How to Profit and Keep It.

Sessions will be held in room K-157 on campus from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Registration fee is $15, payable to College of DuPage. Send check, name, address and home phone to Seminar Secretary, Office of Admissions, College of Du-

William Galligan, village administrator of Glen Ellyn, is coordinator for the seminar. For further information, contact Paul Ash, College of DuPage, phone 658-2800, Ext. 206 or 228.

James Farmer, former HEW assistant and national CORE director, will be on campus on Feb. 9. Admission is free.

The community-centered events listed above are intended to provide an added dimension of entertainment and interest for the entire community, according to a college spokesman. With the support of the community through attendance at college-sponsored events, College of DuPage can continue to build a meaningful and rewarding program of cultural, entertaining and educational events for the DuPage area, he added.

NOISE Members Make Noise

It appears the members of the National Organization to Inure A Sound-controlled Environment (NOISE) made their own kind of verbal noise this past weekend in Los Angeles.

Bensenville Village Pres. John Varble reported late last week there was "quite a turn out" at the nationwide conference, which was held to organize support against jet noise. Varble currently serves as secretary to NOISE.

Representatives from several Chicago suburbs besides Bensenville are also attending the three-day conference on the West Coast. Among other area villages represented are Wood Dale, Des Plaines, Schiller Park and Park Ridge.

Representatives of cities and villages in Georgia, New York, Massachusetts, Washington, Missouri and Wisconsin are also attending the conference.

Illinois Governor Richard Ogilvie sent a representative of the state environmental control committee to the conference, Varble said.

Representatives were expected to return late yesterday. A report on conference results will be available this week.

Value Of Unincorporated DuPage Up

DuPage County's unincorporated areas increased in valuation by almost $35 million dollars in 1970, according to figures released this week by the County Building and Zoning Department.

The amount represents the total value of all the permits issued by the department during the past year.

Permits for single family dwellings were most frequently issued. The 690 single family homes for which permits were issued were valued collectively at $18.7 million.

Multiple family homes added the second highest valuation to the county. A total of 22 permits worth $3.4 million were issued for the multiple dwellings. The 22 buildings added 308 apartment or townhouse units to the county.

Permits issued for business buildings added another $2.8 million to the county and 42 permits were issued for new construction and additions to industrial buildings worth more than $3 million.

CONSTRUCTION OF community service facilities including a $1.75 million retirement home and a $600,000 nursing home will add a value of $2.9 million to the county.

In December, $1.9 million of the $34.9 million figure was added to the county's valuation, as 114 of the year's 2,271 permits were issued.

While the number of permits issued for single family and multiple family dwellings was down in December, five permits for industrial buildings and additions valued at $583,600 were issued. This represents almost one-third of the entire annual figure in the category.

Man Promoted At GTE Electric

William E. Walenda, 515 Memory Lane, Addison, has been named a supervisor in the Manufacturing Inspection Department at GTE Automatic Electric Inc., Northlake.

Walenda, who joined the electronics and communications systems manufacturing company in 1962, started as a laboratory technician. He later worked in factory accounting, and since 1965 he had been a circuit tester.

A graduate of Immaculate Conception high school, Elmhurst, he continued his studies at DeVry Technical Institute during his first years of employment at GTE Automatic.

Walenda is a member of a famous family at GTE Automatic, and often has to explain that "it's not the Flying Wallendas of circus fame — they spell the name differently, anyway."

The Walendas at Northlake include Bill's father, Myron, a millwright who has been with the company 32 years; a brother, Richard, a tool and die maker with 12 years' service; an aunt, Lillian Lord, inspection department, 44 years; and an uncle Edward Kozak, Inspection, nearly 30 years.

"That totals over 120 years, Bill Walenda noted. "But, in addition, I have an uncle, Edwin Lord, who retired after 30 years at GTE Automatic. He was a precision gauge inspector."

Bill Walenda is active in softball, basketball, bowling and numerous other sports, and admits an interest in "just about every sport there is." He is also intent on continuing his education, particularly in the field of electronics.

Rule Out Special Refuse Containers

Special garbage containers for discarded bottles and cans will no longer be used by Wood Dale residents, according to Hilbert Gurke, sanitation commissioner.

Thursday night Gurke recommended the removal of special containers for these items and the village council supported him unanimously. Bottles and cans may be placed in regular containers.

"I've also had a lot of calls from people on garbage can lids that aren't put back on cans," Gurke said. "The garbage can lids will be placed on containers by the sanitation department."

Gurke said residents were complaining because F. A. Burnier, who formerly handled sanitation service in the village, put lids back on cans. He added that his department will start doing the same.

THE FOURTH major apartment fire within two years in Rolling Meadows erupted Saturday and brought firemen from 10 suburban departments to the blaze. Fire at Meadow Trace Apartments placed 32 families. Officials are still investigating the cause of the fire.

Service Board Raps Leadership Following Probe

by JUDY MEHL

Elk Grove Village Community Service was put on the firing line last Thursday — by its own board members.

The leadership, program practices, and upkeep of its facilities were attacked by board members, with most of the comments triggered by an inspection Dec. 31 of the Community Service offices.

Charles Willis, village manager, found the offices at 15 Park and Ship Mall open with no supervision and in a disheveled condition last month.

Photos taken of the offices showed junk and toys piled in a room, writing and painting on paper on the walls, and dirt and litter on the floors.

Since the inspection the board and administration at Community Service have been told to have adult supervision at all times when the offices are open and to clean up the mess and keep it clean.

Village trustees also directed continued visits by police to the office. A report will be presented by police to the village board tomorrow night.

BOARD PRES. Quentin Goodrich reported that there were six occasions within 35 inspections between Jan. 5 and Jan. 11 in which police said no one 21 or over was in the offices. On one occasion four teenage couples were reported to be necking. Of 26 occasions between Jan. 14 and 19 adult supervision was reported present and the offices were found "physically clean," Goodrich said.

Woodard said that of the six inspections where adults were not present, two of them were made immediately after he had left for 15 to 20 minutes to handle emergency situations with youth. On three of the occasions Woodard said some one 21 was present but apparently not acceptable to the police. All of the occasions were before 4 p.m., he said.

Thursday's meeting was the first since the Dec. 31 incident that most of the board members confronted Community Service personnel, Thomas Smith, director, and Thomas Woodard, youth services worker.

Smith, who had been criticized by the board last fall for failing to cooperate with village administration, resigned in November, effective Jan. 31.

Board member Marilyn Quinn credited some of the problems to "a real lack of leadership." She said, "The entire agency is now on the firing line."

Mrs. Quinn criticized the staff for not keeping the board more informed.

"I think when an incident occurs and is dealt with we should know about it. I can't even defend it if I'm not aware of anything," she said.

She asked: "Is it better to go into things inadequately or not to go into them at all?" referring to the entire youth program.

Smith said, "Even if these things have happened do we throw out a program that deals with at least 200 kids and kids' problems? I think the appearance of police five times a day will ruin the whole program."

MOST OF THE questions remained unanswered throughout the meeting.

One that was answered was directed by Charles Zettek, village trustee and Community Service board member. He criticized Smith for the profanity written on paper on the walls and asked if he thought that it should be on the walls in that building.

Smith replied, "It's not my responsibility to erase the words that youth write on the walls. I've delegated to Tom Woodard the responsibility of the youth program. I trust him to run the program the way he sees it should be done."

Smith added, "It's good to give these kids a place to write and express themselves."

Zettek abruptly demanded, "I want those walls painted white! If this is what these kids enjoy then I'm against it."

He said, "I'm concerned about the taxpayers going into that building. I guarantee that 99 or 100 people in this village would be appalled if they walked into that building. That place is a pigsty."

Smith countered, "The youth program began seven months ago but you have never given any place for it to function! You take the risk that if you give them the freedom to express themselves they might do something you don't approve of."

He added, "I'm not so concerned about

Another Apartment Building Fire; None Hurt

Firemen from 10 suburban communities battled for more than four hours Saturday to bring fire under control at a Meadow Trace apartment building in Rolling Meadows.

No injuries were reported from the fire, but residents of 28 apartments in the building were left homeless. Fire broke out about noon in the building located just south of Algonquin Road and west of Rte. 53.

Most of the apartment dwellers were given temporary housing in the Holiday Inn on Algonquin Road by the American Red Cross. Their furniture and other belongings were either destroyed by the fire or scattered in the snow a few feet from the building as smoke that could be seen from a mile away billowed black and high from the structure.

The cause of the blaze is still undetermined.

According to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty. Both the chief and a state fire marshal investigated the scene yesterday.

Fogarty theorized the fire apparently started in the basement of the building. After firemen extinguished the blaze, they worked all night Saturday clearing rubble from the smoldering ruins.

ED BERRY, Meadow Trace assistant manager, was the first to see the fire. "The circuit breakers started popping and smoke started coming through the circuit box and phone box in the office," he said. Berry said he immediately telephoned the fire department and began notifying occupants of the 28 persons in the building to evacuate.

Although there are 32 apartments in the building, only 28 of them were occupied at the time of the fire. Occupants of 26 of the apartments registered with the Red Cross for emergency aid. It's believed residents of the other two apartments were out of town at the time of the fire.

"A little girl and I ran up and down the halls telling people there was a fire," according to Miss Mary Overman, a secretary at Meadow Trace. "I knew it was nothing to mess around with," she said.

The blaze that began in the basement was contained in the western half of the building, but all apartments received water and smoke damage, according to fire officials. There was a boiler room and a washing machine room in the basement. Each tenant also had a locker for personal belongings in the basement.

JOHN BLYTH, Meadow Trace building manager, said the building was probably totally destroyed. "Structurally it is ruined," he said.

The south wall of the building collapsed after firemen had battled the blaze for more than two hours.

Other apartment buildings nearby were not damaged. The unit gutted by fire was one of several identical wood-frame structures that house more than 700 apartments in the complex. The apartment complex was built in 1966.

Meadow Trace officials called a detective agency to guard the furniture that was removed from the building. Saturday night all of the furniture was loaded on trucks for storage.

Some of the tenants of the fire gutted building found temporary lodging and protection from the cold with friends and neighbors. The American Red Cross arranged housing for many of the homeless Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows.

Representatives of the Salvation Army, Civil Defense, Commonwealth Edison and the Army Nike Base on Central Road were on hand to assist firemen and residents.

This was the first fire that has called for the recently approved mutual aid agreement between 20 Northwestern suburban fire departments. Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Fogarty, who answered the original call, asked for the aid after arriving at the scene of the fire.

Fogarty said the response from the other departments was excellent, and that the agreement "worked out very well." Only a week ago, the first emergency fire drill, involving 16 fire departments, was held at Randhurst Center in Mount Prospect.

Sirens Wail In Meadows Again

Once again smoke billowed up from a Rolling Meadows apartment complex; once again the combined forces of 10 suburban fire departments were called to help subdue the flames.

It was cold Saturday afternoon as occupants of 32 apartments of Meadow Trace fled the building and tried to salvage some of their possessions.

Most of the victims of the fire were placed in the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn through the efforts of the Red Cross. Other disaster agencies moved in also to assist firemen at the scene and fleeing residents.

Enormous amounts of fire equipment were at the fire Saturday, the result of a newly implemented mutual aid pact for 20 suburban departments. In fact, there were so many firemen at the fire that dozens of men were available to combat the blaze and rig equipment.

Firemen were stationed at the scene all night Saturday, keeping watch over the rubble to be on hand in case the fire began anew.

For the victims of the fire, the night was spent with friends or at the nearby Holiday Inn. The American Red Cross would provide them with food, shelter and clothing for three days to give them a chance to reassess the damages to their property and make arrangements for a place to live.

Yesterday morning the long process of investigation began. State fire marshals and local fire officials tried to determine the actual cause of the fire.

For Rolling Meadows, it was a tragic routine which has become increasingly familiar.

Few belongings were saved by occupants of the gutted building, but some managed to salvage the easiest items to carry.

Firemen from the entire Northwest suburban area responded to the fire call in Rolling Meadows.

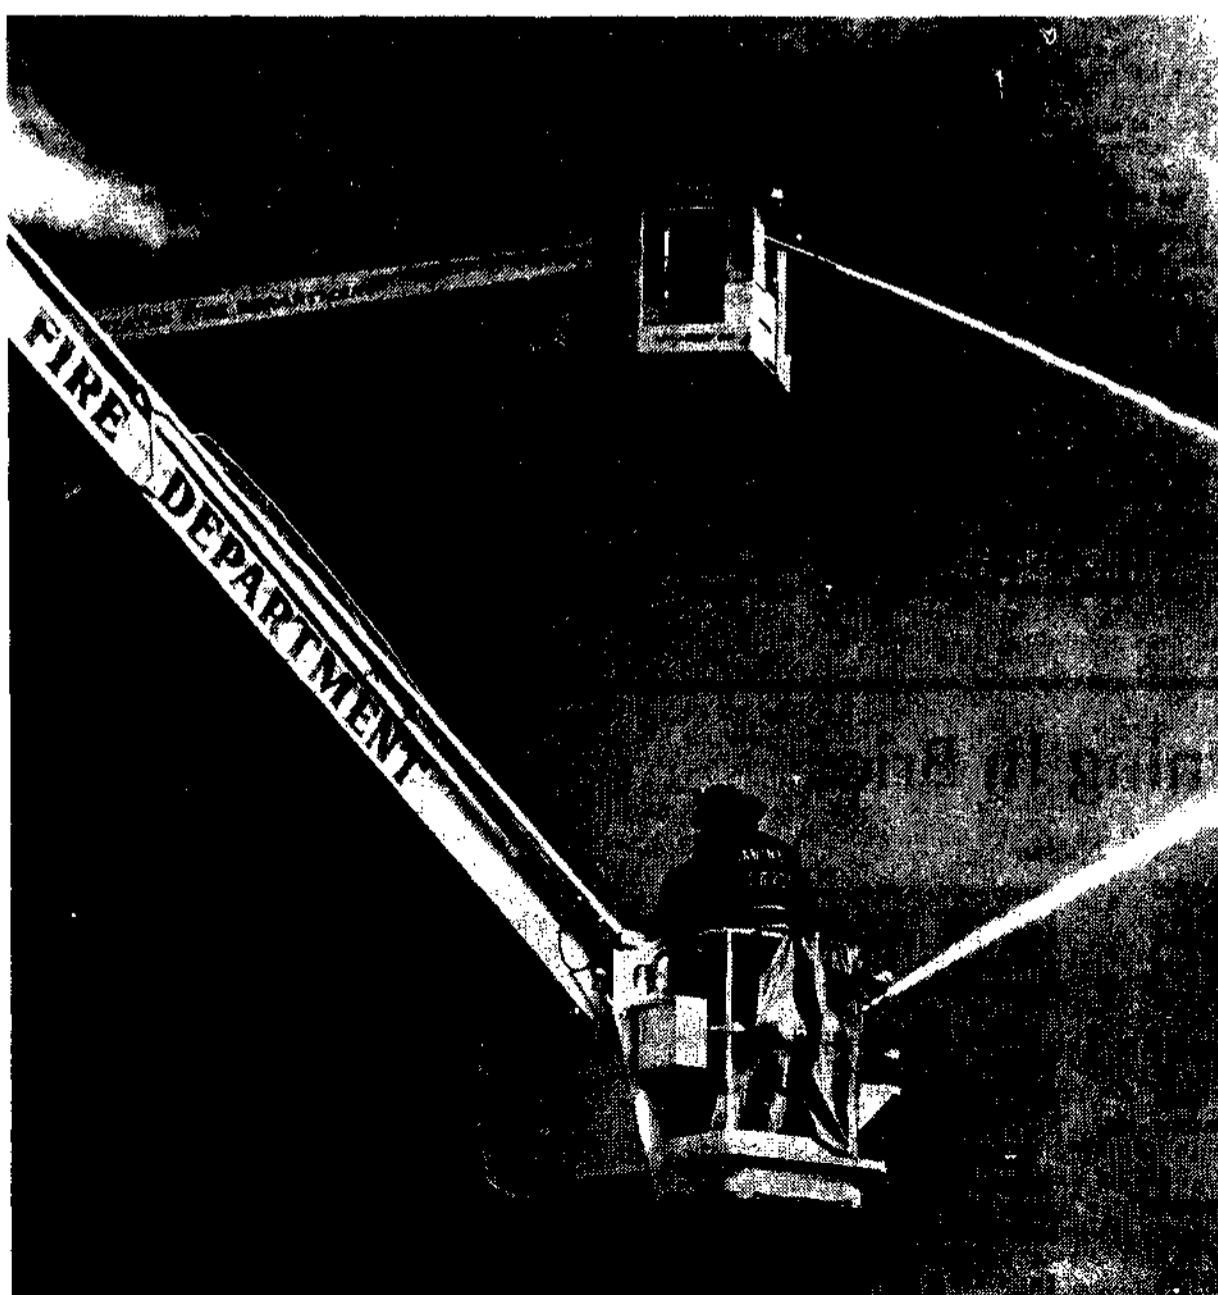

Their job was almost over by late afternoon and the ladders could be mounted back on the trucks.

Fires Prompt Improvement Of Code, But-

by JAMES VESELY

Saturday's fire which destroyed part of the Meadow Trace apartment complex is the latest in a long history of apartment house fires which have plagued Rolling Meadows in the span of four years, and the latest of four severe fires within two years.

In November, 1966, ten families were evacuated from apartments at Algonquin Park after a fire raged through the basement of the complex. The fire was quickly brought under control by Rolling Meadows firemen but the flames caused apartments above the basement storage area to suffer some damage.

In February, 1969, the first of two fires at the Three Fountains apartment complex on Algonquin Road caused $700,000

Behind The News Pictures, Related

damage to the nearly completed structure. According to a man at the scene at the time, the center building of the apartment complex literally exploded in a mass of flames. Cause of the blaze was attributed to an overheated furnace.

The first Three Fountains fire prompted Rolling Meadows officials to consider the purchase of new fire equipment for the city.

In fact, it was during a discussion of new equipment purchase at the city hall that fire struck the King's Walk Apartments at Euclid and Plum Grove Road. Three buildings were destroyed in that fire and one structure was completely razed before firemen could get to the scene. icy winds that night spread the fire and witnesses to the scene said the glow of the blaze could be seen three miles away. King's Walk was also under construction at the time of the fire.

Shortly after the two major fires occurred in February and March, 1969, city officials of Rolling Meadows began a hard look at their fire codes. Local officials admitted then that Rolling Meadows had been designed as a single family residential community and that the local fire code had fallen behind the times.

In April, 1969, city officials took steps to enforce stricter building rules and decreed that new construction would not be allowed to advance above the foundation level until new requirements were added to the fire code.

Then, tragically, more than 100 persons were made homeless in a second major fire at Three Fountains.

In May, 1970, firemen from four suburban departments fought all night to curb flames from a three-story, 48-apartment building at Three Fountains. Although the city of Rolling Meadows had adopted the Building Officials of America fire code (BOCA) by that time, inspection of the remaining Three Fountains buildings showed that the structures had no sprinkler system or fire alarm, fire walls that did not go completely to the roof and less than the number of fire doors recommended by the fire chief.

The Three Fountains fire caused new criticism of the fire codes and their enforcement in the city, and in the summer of 1970, the Rolling Meadows Fire Department issued a booklet to residents of the six major apartment complexes in the city giving instructions what to do in case fire struck.

Although a great deal of emphasis has been placed by Rolling Meadows officials on revising and updating fire codes, Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty said Saturday that the Meadow Trace units were built before the city's fire code was adopted.

Park Board Takes Issue With Gilbert's Statement

The Elk Grove Park Board took issue last week with a public statement made by Park Commissioner Daniel Gilbert accusing the board of not being concerned with park beautification.

Gilbert's statement, printed in Wednesday's Herald, disputed the use of the major portion of park land for baseball diamonds.

The other commissioners taking the attitude that Gilbert "is entitled to his opinion," chastised him for not discussing his complaints with the board before going to the press.

Members disagreed with Gilbert over the use of land, saying that they believed in beautification and had spent some park money on it. They agreed, however, that much of the money had been spent on play equipment and baseball diamonds in neighborhood parks.

Commissioner Martin Durkin said: "This is a young village with young children. I think that's why we've gone the recreation route. With the forest preserve so close I think this could be our passive recreation area. There's not enough money or places to have both in the village."

GILBERT REMAINED firm in his objection that not enough land had been beautified with trees and shrubs. He suggested that specific amounts be allocated to individual parks for trees, shrubs and

Palatine Firm's Plan

Homes Around An Airstrip?

by JIM HODL

While current suburbs are built around the automobile, a new suburb being planned by a Palatine corporation will be built around the airplane.

DNT, Inc., 537 Echo Ln., Palatine, is planning to develop a new subdivision near Hampshire, 12 miles west of Elgin.

President of DNT, Don DeBolt, said the subdivision will be like most new communities being built today, except that in the center of the community will be an airstrip.

DNT is selling lots along the airstrip, which the company is building. When buying a lot, the owner will build his own house. In all, DNT will be selling 45 lots ranging from three-quarters to one acre each, DeBolt said. They will sell from $12,000 to $14,000 each.

All lots will be next to the landing strip, DeBolt explained. When a person builds his home on the lot he buys, he can attach an air hanger to his house like most suburbanites do with garages for their car.

In buying a lot, DeBolt said, a person also buys stock in Casa de Aero, Inc., a company DNT set up to own the airstrip. This makes the resident partial owner of the airstrip.

DeBOLT EXPLAINED that this type of land development project is not for everybody. While the company will sell lots to people who do not own airplanes, he said the property will appeal mainly to air enthusiasts.

DNT selected the location for the subdivision because it was suited for this kind of development. In building a new airstrip, one must consider O'Hare Airport. The developers had to consider the inverted pyramid where most of the O'Hare traffic will congregate. The Hampshire site is many miles away from this busy zone, even at 5,000 feet up.

DNT also had to get a special use permit to build the airstrip, DeBolt said. In Kane County, where the strip is located, one has the land zoned for farming and then applies for a special use permit.

DeBolt feels that there is a need for such a subdivision among airplane enthusiasts. Flying, as a hobby, is time consuming, he said. After a person comes home from work and wants to work on his hobby, he has to travel many miles to a country airport.

In recent years, the number of private airstrips in the Chicago metropolitan area have been decreasing. By buying a lot and building a home in the DNT development, a person can work on his hobby right in his own backyard. After spending a day in the office, a commuter can drive home and go flying for an hour, he said.

WHEN DeBOLT IS NOT working for DNT, he is an airline pilot for American Airlines. He flies on Monday and Tuesday and spends the rest of the weekdays working on DNT.

Other executives with DNT are also airline pilots. Vice president Ed Nubwy works for American and Don Taylor, DNT's secretary is employed by United Air Lines.

Taylor is also vice president of the Experimental Aircraft Association Club.

When setting up DNT, the company located its headquarters in DeBolt's home in Palatine. DeBolt points out that DNT stands for the first initials of the three head executives of the corporation.

DeBolt said that a subdivision built around an airstrip is nothing new. There are similar developments in California, Ohio and Pennsylvania. In the Chicago area, such subdivisions exist near Downers Grove and Naperville.

Hampshire's subdivision may be one of a kind for DNT, DeBolt said. However, DNT may build another depending on how the Hampshire project goes.

the word as I am about the inner value system of these kids. I'm concerned about affecting the kids and getting to their alienation and inner feelings — their feelings of anti-society and anti-school. We have to do this if we want to steer them away from burning down the building."

ZETEK SHOUTED, "I had the village prepared to pay $500 a month for rent for a decent place for youth services and you blew it. You blew it when they saw that building!"

"Do you think they'll pay $500 a month so kids can express themselves on the walls?"

Board member James Morita said, "The total community has to be taken into consideration. We stand a chance of losing everything by permitting these things."

"I wouldn't let my kids write on the walls at home, would you?"

Smith said, "Jim, I hope my kids don't have the attitude these kids have."

Goodrich cut off the comments to continue with the meeting's business on the agenda. However, he said, "We realize our staff is spread too thin but there is no excuse for not controlling the area. We don't have a flexible budget where we can add staff."

"The kids can express themselves but not in a permanent way through the destruction of a building or on the walls. Common sense standards must be applied. I think Chuck (Charles Zetek) was right that it should not stay on the walls. It implies that we consent."

"We must remember that our existence is at the will of the taxpayers."

THE MEETING ended at 12:30 a.m. with few decisions made. Those that were included:

— The profanity would be removed from the walls.

— The offices would be kept clean.

— Tom Woodard would be in charge until a new director was chosen.

— The offices would be closed unless a responsible adult was present.

Most of these had already been in effect following a policy statement written by Goodrich after he met with village officials immediately following the first inspection.

Police Here Nab Man Wanted In Chicago

A man wanted by Chicago police on an auto theft charge was arrested last week by Elk Grove Village plainclothesmen Ronald Iden and Robert Salvatore.

Police arrested Robert J. Feracotta, 25, address unknown to local police, after they said he was speeding on Touhy Avenue. Feracotta's car was later stopped in the Schmerler Ford Inc. parking lot, 1200 Busse Rd., after a minor accident.

Iden said he recognized Feracotta and his car from a description given to him six days earlier by the Chicago police auto theft unit.

Iden said Feracotta had a record ranging from narcotic offenses to auto theft. Feracotta was turned over to Chicago police.

Burglary Reported

A burglary in which $1,500 worth of office equipment was taken was reported last week at the Inland Robbins Co., 1100 Elmhurst Rd., Elk Grove Village.

Itasca Planners Urge Rezoning Of 262 Acres

Itasca's Village Board Tuesday accepted a recommendation from the plan commission to rezone 262 acres north of Thorndale Avenue and west of Arlington Heights Road, between Itasca and Elk Grove Village.

The commission recommended the parcel be rezoned from R-1 (residential) to M-1 (light manufacturing).

Village Pres. Wilbert Notke said members of his board would take the matter under advisement, and that they would meet with officials from Elk Grove Village for further discussion before final action would be taken.

Elk Grove Village and Itasca entered an agreement in 1968 saying the area would not be rezoned from residential by either of the communities.

AT THE PLAN commission's meeting Jan. 12, Edward Hofert, village attorney for Elk Grove Village, requested action be delayed so that officials from both villages could discuss the issue because the land could be put to "better use" than industrial.

Hofert suggested Itasca consider other uses for the land, such as commercial and multiple-residential.

Speaking for Elk Grove Village, Hofert said the land should be developed in the light of its benefit to homeowners north of Devon Avenue, because industrial zoning adjacent to residential would decrease the value of their property.

George Coney, director of finance for Elk Grove Village, who was present at Tuesday's board meeting, asked Notke that in light of the board's decision "do you intend to meet with Elk Grove Village officials in the near future?"

NOTKE ANSWERED that Itasca would notify Elk Grove Village officials and would meet with them to discuss the situation.

Charles Hodgins, chairman of the plan commission, said the recommendation was made for the following reasons:

—The property will be contiguous to the Elgin-O'Hare Expressway.

—The parcel is large enough so that adequate buffers can be arranged for nearby areas.

—At present, this plan seems to present the best tax base for our school districts.

—With this area, our northern boundary to Devon Avenue will be secured.

At a public hearing in November, representatives of Seay and Thomas and Payne and Southernland requested rezoning of the area to jointly locate an industrial subdivision on the site.

College Hospitality Goes Unrewarded

by LESTER KINSOLVING

St. Mary's College, in a suburb of Oakland, Calif., was nationally known as "the Notre Dame of the West" in the golden (and, eventually, the disastrously expensive) era of the inimitably colorful coach Patrick ("Slip") Madigan.

Today, this Christian Brothers institution ought to be known nationally for its charitable hospitality — despite rather extraordinary circumstances.

For St. Mary's provides its spacious and attractive chapel (capacity: 700) for the four Sunday Masses of suburban Moraga's Catholic Parish. St. Monica's, which has no building of its own, St. Monica's contributes a mere $500 per month for this privilege — a fraction of what it would cost if the parish constructed its own building and paid such attendant costs as utilities, janitorial services and grounds keeping.

Yet, despite this bargain, the clergy and students of St. Mary's College have not always fared well at the hands of their guest parish.

On May 28, 1968, at what was designated as a Mass for students, student Rick Anderson, under the direction of St.

Mary's chaplain Father Roderick Garvey, CSSR, took the pulpit and quoted a number of Papal Encyclicals on the subject of peace (an apparently controversial subject in some sections of Moraga).

St. Monica's pastor, Father Edward Casey, immediately rose and told the startled student congregation:

"AS LONG AS I am here, no layman, student or adult, is going to give a testimonial unless the charismata is so evident that the Holy Spirit comes down in some visible form and picks up the preacher by the hair of his head and lifts him into the pulpit!" (This is the same month that Britain's Cardinal Heenan had laymen preaching in Catholic pulpits all over England.)

Six days later, Chaplain Garvey's CSSR Provincial withdrew his priestly faculties — at the request of Bishop Floyd Begin of the Diocese of Oakland. (After news of this disciplinary action broke in The San Francisco Chronicle, Bishop Begin's office announced that the Bishop had merely asked Father Garvey not to say Mass for one Sunday. But the St. Mary's chaplain insisted that there had been no such time limitation in the action taken against him.)

This Fall, St. Monica's Pastor Casey again went to bat, by barring from his parish's (borrowed) pulpit one of St. Mary's College's most renowned faculty members, Father Peter Riga.

Father Riga, a professor of theology, had been preaching every Sunday (for which he was paid $25 by St. Monica's) as well as hearing confessions and instructing parish education classes, for the past four years. But Father Riga is a decidedly liberal theologian, a prolific writer, a compelling orator, and an extremely outspoken opponent of: (1) the Vietnam War (2) compulsory clergy celibacy (3) draft exemption for clergy (4) capital punishment (5) the treatment of farm laborers by agribusiness (6) the Pope's opposition to contraception — among other issues.

What particularly drives conservative Catholics up the wall, however, is this insufferably brilliant priest's expressed opposition to what he regards as unrealistic pornography laws — and his having testified for the defense in obscenity trials.

"IN THE CATHEDRAL at Chartres," notes the tall, raven-haired theologian,

"there is a very interesting tableau divided into two parts . . . 'Husbands, love your wives' appears above the clear image of a Christian couple in bed in the evident act of sexual intercourse. Then the second frame has 'As Christ loved the Church,' over the clear image of Christ (with divine halo) in bed with his wife, the Church, in the evident act of sexual embrace."

"Such an image is beautiful," contends Father Riga, "since it expresses so well the incarnational reality of human married love in its relation to Christ." But, he adds, "This would shock many Christians today."

Father Riga is right — certainly in Moraga. For the Parish Council of St. Monica's Parish decided that "Father Riga's sermons are too 'political' and disturbing to the people."

So, despite petitions from 250 people, Father Casey says: "The case is closed, and I do mean closed."

The doors of St. Mary's Chapel have not been closed on Father Casey and his parish, however. And this appears to be not only an example of particularly charitable "turning of the other cheek" by St. Mary's, but a vivid illustration that the Catholic Church is not the rigid monolith which some of its enemies suppose it to be.

For the Rev. Peter Riga, even though banned from St. Monica's (Borrowed) Catholic pulpit, is still teaching in St. Mary's Catholic classrooms, as well as preaching every Sunday in another parish of the Oakland Diocese, St. Joseph's in Pinole. (Copyright Chronicle Publishing Co. 1971)

Insure Against Mutual Fund Loss

by RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

"Guaranteed success, or your money back"

This is a familiar advertising slogan, but it has never yet been used to advertise shares in a mutual fund. And for a very good reason.

Up to now, mutual fund buyers have been expected to take their chances right along with every other investor in the stock market, where the only thing certain has been uncertainty.

Now along comes a plan to guard mutual fund participants against loss. It's nothing less than insurance that guarantees you against leaving the fund with less than you came in with.

If this sounds almost suspicious, like a street corner peddler with dollar bills at a discount, set your mind at rest. It's real enough, and will do just what it says it will do. But it may not be quite the bargain it first appears.

For one thing, it's the shareholder himself who is going to have to pay for it. As it stands now, that charge will amount to about 6 per cent of the amount he has invested.

That may be fair enough, but it has to be compared with the coverage the bank saver gets on his deposit. That comes to him free, with the bank picking up the tab.

THEN THERE'S the term involved. The investor who buys such coverage right now has to sign up for a minimum of 10 years. In other words, if he invests $5,000 now, his only chance to collect will be if his investment can't be liquidated for at least $5,000 in 1980.

In the meantime, of course, he has to keep paying those premiums to keep the policy in force.

Then there's the matter of income, or nonincome, to be more precise. One of the requirements for insurance is that the investor must agree to reinvest all dividend payments and capital gains distributions.

This rules out all those investors who put their money into funds that aim for current income rather than growth. The dividends they would otherwise receive would have to be plowed back into the plan to make them eligible for the insurance.

Such transfusions of additional dollars into the basic investment make it all the more likely, of course, that the investor will keep his stake intact. If he does, the insurer won't have to pay off.

But with all the negative aspects, the plan will perform as advertised. When the end of the insurance period arrives, the investor need have no doubts about getting at least his money back.

Of course, he probably would have gotten it back anyway. Despite the current doldrums, the market trend is generally up. Not all fund performances follow the market averages, of course, but the odds do seem good.

If they don't, chances are this insurer won't be in any hurry to offer this kind of coverage.

Libertyville To Eye 'New Century' Annex

The Libertyville village board will consider the annexation of "New Century Town," a $250 million residential and commercial development tomorrow night at its weekly meeting.

The development planned for a tract of land south of the village, has been proposed by the Urban Investment and Development Corp., Marshall Field and Co. and Sears Roebuck and Co.

A citizen's group has been formed to oppose the project and is circulating a petition calling for a voter referendum on the annexation question.

The group opposes the annexation because the development calls for high-rise apartment buildings and a potential population increase of 10,000 persons. That would more than double Libertyville's present population.

For $230 Million Budget

County Hearings Set Today

Committee hearings get underway this morning on a major portion of a record $230 million budget for Cook County.

County Board President George W. Dunne Friday presented a 1971 operating budget of $119,636,857 at a special meeting of the board. The proposed appropriation did not include an additional $111 million from the county hospital commission.

After reading a prepared statement explaining highlights, Dunne referred the budget to Commissioner Jerome Hupbert, finance committee chairman, for hearings with county department heads to review various appropriations requests.

Dunne noted the funds request from the hospital commission was still being prepared and would be presented later. He explained States Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan advised him adoption of the corporate fund and hospital budgets did not have to coincide. Hanrahan based his opinion on legislation last year that created a commission to run the hospital independent of the county board, said Dunne.

Although the organizational structure has changed, the hospital commission must still depend on the county board for money to run two hospitals and a school of nursing.

THE PROPOSED corporate fund appropriation compared with a 1970 budget of $101.5 million, exclusive of the hospital's share totaling more than $82.5 million. The total figure last year was $184 million.

Comparison of combined figures showed the new budget more than 20 per cent over that of 1971.

Dunne said a 1971 property tax levy of $43,085,563 would be required to support the corporate fund. Earlier in the week, he reported the corporate fund plus the anticipated budget request from the hospital commission would push up the property tax rate 5 cents over its current 70 cents per $100 evaluation. This is only one cent below the legal ceiling the county is authorized to levy.

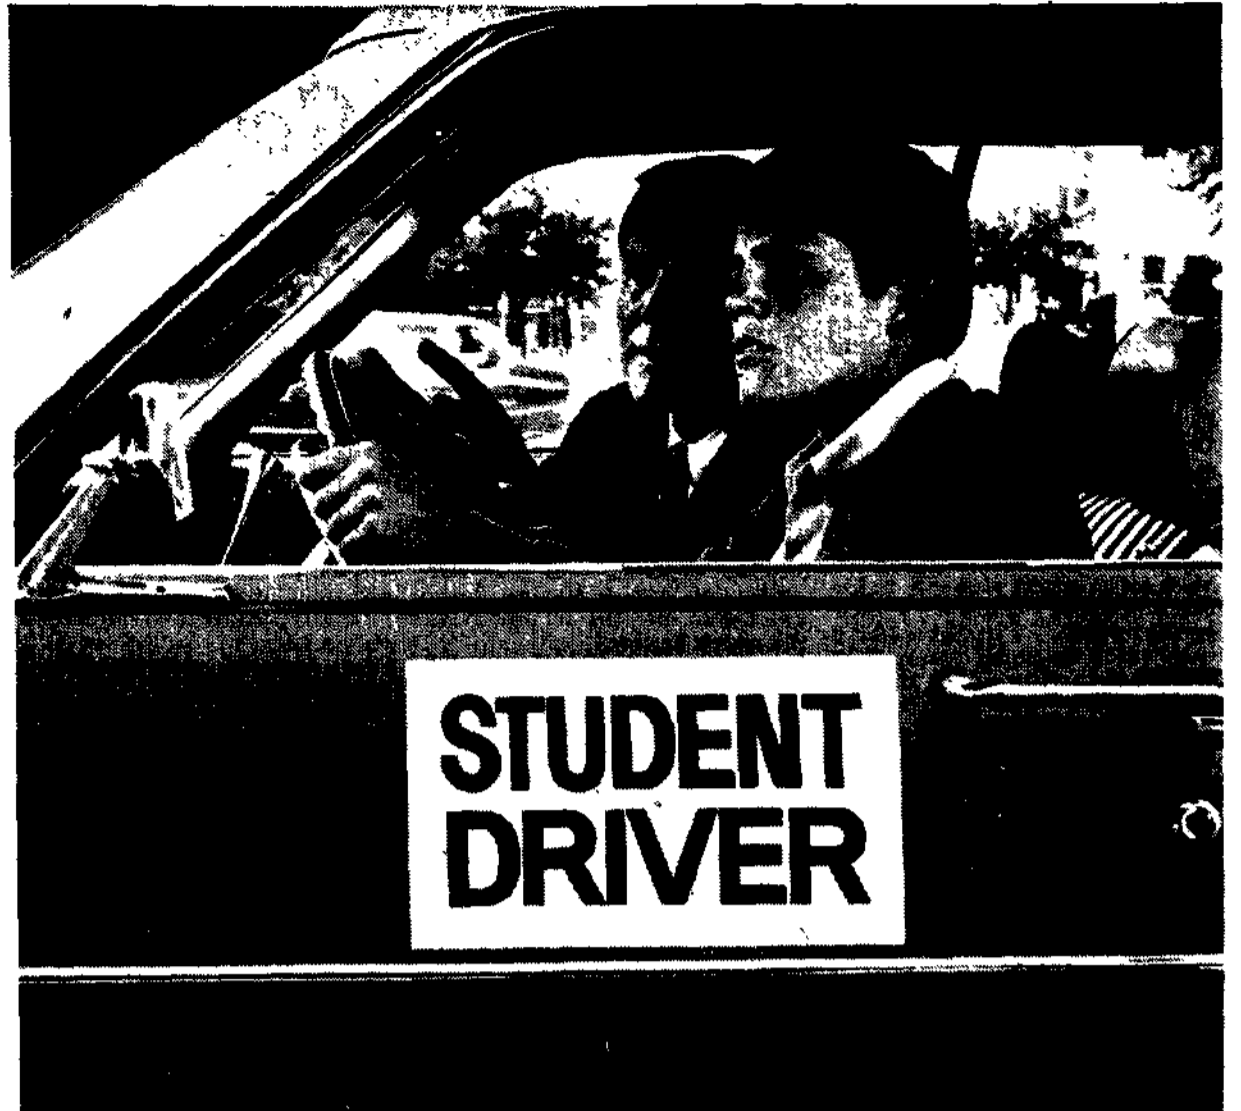

Explaining some of the reasons behind budget hikes, Dunne said, "The major increase in the corporate budget has been brought about by a readjustment of our compensation plan. This accounts for a $7,752,613.00 increase."

Moreover, Dunne noted, 137 new jobs under his office will cost an additional $1,094,707. Another $2.2 million will go for new positions being added to other county agencies.

Dunne also described widespread salary hikes as a key factor pushing up the budget request.

Finance committee hearings will begin today at 10 a.m. and will run until noon Wednesday when a special session of the board is scheduled to review findings.

A public hearing has been set for Feb. 8.

STUDENT DRIVER

Dunne Proposed 'Presidents Office Of Inquiry'

Suburban taxpayers unhappy over the high cost of Cook County government will have a place to complain if the county's $230 million budget request for 1971 is approved.

In describing the county's financial plans Friday, County Board Pres. George W. Dunne outlined a proposal for creation of a new agency called, "The President's Office of Inquiry and Information."

The office would be manned by four persons whose combined annual salaries account for $31,470 of the $46 million increase over last year's budget.

Dunne said the new agency would make special efforts to reach residents in suburban areas.

"The shifting tide of our urban population from the center of the city to the suburban areas has brought the need for extending the services of the county to remote sections of this metropolitan area. The Office of Inquiry and Information will bring not only a knowledge of services offered, but will carry county government itself from downtown Chicago to the corner of every township in Cook County," Dunne stressed.

HE NOTED THAT the office staff would hear complaints from citizens and attempt to provide satisfactory answers to any questions. The board president's mobile office would be used to reach residents in outlying areas.

A consumer sales unit to hear complaints and answer questions from residents on living costs was proposed as part of the agency.

The Office of Inquiry and Information was one of two new agencies Dunne proposed for funding under the 1971 appropriations. He has also sought information an Environmental Control Bureau as an expansion of the present Air Pollution Control Bureau. The new bureau would direct efforts towards curbing water and noise problems, as well as air pollution.

Approximately $70,000 was included in the budget for the bureau.

Those three days mark the windup of the Palatine community college's registration for spring semester classes, both for part-time and full-time students.

In addition, registration will be conducted all week for continuing education classes which start during the first week of February.

For part-time students, there is no telephone registration this week. Rather, students must report in person to the College Center, located at the center of the campus at Algonquin and Roselle roads.

On Wednesday, students whose last names begin with W-Z should report at 6:30 p.m.; T-V, at 7; R-S, at 7:30; P-Q, at 8; N-O, at 8:30 and M, at 9 p.m.

Students will not be allowed prior to their assigned time. However, they may register any time after their initial comes up, according to college officials. A part-time student is anyone carrying 21 semester hours or less.

During the day on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, registration of full-time students will be going on in the College Center.

On Wednesday, full-time students whose last names begin with X-Z, should report at 9 a.m.; U-W, at 10; T, at 11; S, at 1 p.m.; R, at 2 p.m.; and P-Q, at 3.

On Thursday, students whose last names begin with N-O should report to the College Center at 9 a.m.; E-F, at 10; D, at 11; C, at 1 p.m.; B, at 2; and A, at 3.

On Friday, students whose last names begin with G, should report to the College Center at 9 a.m.; E-F, at 10; D, at 11; C, at 1 p.m.; B, at 2; and A, at 3.

Students who are taking noncredit continuing education and extension courses which begin in the first week of February must register this week, administrators plead, to get the best chance of getting a seat in courses.

Registration is available between 4 and 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Otherwise, students can register before the first night of classes.

Students taking courses beginning in March can register in room A-213 at the same hours through March 27.

The Way We See It

Metro Deserves Rational Study

Metropolitan Government.

Rarely have two words generated as much apprehension and controversy as these did several years ago when former Arlington Heights Mayor John G. Woods proposed a merger of 10 Northwest suburban communities into one.

"You'll destroy our local identity."

"We'll become another Chicago."

"We'll have high crime rates and ghettos."

"It's all part of a takeover by the state and we'll end up with socialism."

Emotion, rather than reason, characterized the reaction to Woods' proposal, after a few months of conversation and study, the proposal quietly faded and hasn't been heard from since.

Until now. Last week, the Commission on Urban Area Government submitted to Governor Ogilvie a legislative program aimed at "the survival of the institution of local government."

There has been little publicity given the proposal thus far and that apparently explains the lack of opposition.

But opposition will surely come, and our hope now is that the proposal can get a fair and impartial hearing before any decision is made to accept or reject it.

We will reserve our judgment of the proposal until specific legislation is offered and the legislative process begins.

But we do think some points should be made concerning the proposal and the current status of government in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Because of a provision in the 1870 Illinois Constitution that restricts the debt limit of government units, Illinois has been plagued by an over-abundance of such units, many created for the sole purpose of dealing with a particular problem which other units could not deal with because the Constitution would not allow them to spend the necessary money.

As a result, Illinois currently has 6,453 units of local government, more than any other state. As the commission pointed out in its report, there are more local government units serving Illinois residents than there are dentists.

The effects of this are felt most severely in the suburbs where population growth and the demand for immediate services is generally several years ahead of the expanded tax base that can keep taxes at a reasonable level. The result is higher taxes and more governmental units.

The average homeowner in the Northwest suburbs is paying taxes to as many as 11 different local government units. These include village, township, county, forest preserve district, fire protection district, elementary school district, high school district, junior college district, mosquito abatement district, sanitary district, park district and tuberculosis protection district.

It costs money to administer each of these districts and, without a doubt, it would cost less if some were consolidated. It also would cost less if, for example, 10 towns had one police department with one police chief and one communications system.

There can be no denying that some form of consolidation would result in a lower price tag — and lower taxes — for government services. It has worked in the past and, in at least one case, the results have been dramatic.

In 1967, voters in Jacksonville, Fla., and Duval County agreed to consolidate the functions of the two government agencies. The outcome has been astounding.

Not only have taxes gone down each year since the merger, but with revenue saved by avoiding duplication, the community has been able to add 134 policemen and 200 firemen, it has been able to install 7,500 street lights, it has paved or resurfaced 676 miles of streets and has replaced 132 miles of sewers. And taxes have decreased.

Those are impressive facts; the tax decrease alone would be welcomed with open arms in the Northwest suburbs. There is no reason to believe that similar economies would not follow such a consolidation in the Chicago area, either as a metropolitan unit or a series of regional units similar to the one proposed by Woods.

We are not endorsing metropolitan government for the Chicago area at this time. We want to hear more facts and more about the commission proposal. But we do think the available facts and possible tax savings are substantial enough that the Commission on Urban Area Government's proposal must be given a fair and open hearing without the emotional outcry that accompanied the previous discussion.

The Fence Post

PHIA 'Facts' Insufficient

I attended a meeting of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association at Hersey High School on January 19, 1971.

The purpose of this meeting, as I understood it, was to inform the members of PHIA of the facts in the case for incorporation, annexation, or status quo.

This was not done. The PHIA Board had already made up their minds to push for incorporation. To make matters worse, their preparation and presentation was extremely poor. Their figures were vague and what figures they had were for the entire Prospect Heights area including approximately 20,000 to 25,000 people, and they were really discussing a much smaller area of about 8,000 people. They could not validate these population figures. They could not outline the actual area they were thinking of incorporating. They could not give us any factual figures on income or expenses proposed.

Given this information, I will have to stand against incorporation. Not because I'm against it, but because I cannot make an intelligent and independent decision on the information provided.

Does each member of PHIA have to get their own figures? Or will PHIA attempt to present information more factually and impartially?

This group may have spent many hours and given up many other activities to be on the PHIA Board, however, I cannot appreciate it if their information does not help me make up my own mind. I do not want this group to spearhead my new village or city government, if they cannot do a more complete job before making up their minds.

Marijuana Isn't Pink Tea

by DOROTHY MEYER

If it's possible to talk something to death, marijuana may keel over tomorrow. I'm getting my kicks in on the subject today. Don't expect a lofty opinion about whether or not the stuff should be legalized, moralized, fertilized or pasteurized. I don't know.

What I do know about using marijuana is that it's stupid, dangerous and expensive. I know this because I read a lot of suburban newspapers every day, and everything I read and mark is clipped and filed in Paddock Publications' editorial library. That's my job here.

Filing news stories means making thousands of reference cards on thousands of people so that we can find any given item a month, a year or five years later. And the reference cards for kids picked up on marijuana charges tell a sad sad story. Only once could I grin a little and that was two years ago when I read about the juvenile who paid $5 for a joint that turned out to be parsley. That's why I say using marijuana is stupid. Even as a dumb bride I knew better than to pay $5 for a bunch of parsley.

The sadness comes when I make a reference card on an attempted suicide and discover that I already have a card on him for marijuana. Some time after the marijuana entry he must have slipped into using the hard stuff (82 per cent of the "weed is wonderful" kids do) because there was the ultimate need for a third reference. Suicide. The poor kid finally made it.

'Doesn't Anybody Care?'

by SANDRA BROWNING

The Volunteer Bureau of Northwest Cook County is going to die if no one cares.

The bureau, which serves as a clearing house for volunteers, has been struggling from month to month to keep financially alive. This critical life or death struggle has been going on for about a year.

And the main reason for the problems seems to be because the bureau is so needed and so popular, it has been forced to constantly expand. Expansion costs money.

Formed about two years ago, the bureau serves both the person who wants to volunteer his time and the agencies which seek people with special talents and time to give. The main branch of the bureau operates from donated space at John Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

Although the office doesn't cost any money, the telephone does. And so does the executive director (who is paid the unbelievably low salary of $500 per month) and other necessary items. Four branch offices of the bureau being served by volunteer coordinators have been established to serve Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Township. Plans are presently underway to start an additional branch office in the Elk Grove Village area.

During the period of Aug. 31 to Dec. 31, the bureau has placed a total of 536 volunteers in various assignments. A large number of the volunteers work in schools and during this period, school Dist. 52 received 4,396 hours of volunteer time, Dist. 57 received 418 hours of free time and Dist. 23 received 484 hours.

The predominance of volunteer time spent in Dist. 25, which serves Arlington Heights, stems from the bureau's beginnings. The concept was developed by a committee of the Arlington Heights Clergy Fellowship and the bureau started in the village.

However, judging from what has happened in one town, the same type of growth will be found in other towns, school districts and areas. As a branch office is organized and begins operating, the number of volunteers and the hours they serve increase rapidly.

The entire area of Northwest suburban Cook County will undoubtedly call on the resources of the bureau in the future... that is, if the bureau is still there.

The bureau operates strictly from donated funds. It was originally supported by donations from churches, community organizations and other groups. As the bureau grew and the need was apparent for a full-time directorship, the board of the bureau hired a director. As the growth kept multiplying, there was an obvious need for paid secretarial help, but none was hired because there wasn't any money.

Last week, the bureau's executive director, Esther Rabchuk, resigned effective March 1. In her resignation, she stated the bureau has reached the point where it needs a full-time professional director, preferably someone with a background in social work and business asleep, too. Their arguments are so monotonously alike I sometimes think they all come equipped with tapes, like talking dolls. Cold logic tells me that half of them make a profit on the stuff and the other half are willing sheep who believe the profiteers' propaganda.

Cold logic also tells me that I have a valid comeback to those who will claim that I err technically when I file marijuana as a narcotic. It isn't pink tea, junior. And if it's non-narcotic marijuana today it's probably going to be hard narcotics tomorrow so why not save reference cards and file it 82 per cent right the first time.

Although I don't always swallow statistics whole, I think I have to believe that 82 per cent bit. Logic again. If a kid is so jaded with life by the time he's 16 that he has to turn to the phony high of marijuana for kicks, he sure isn't going to think the simple pleasures of life are great when he's 18. Marijuana will be kid stuff by then.

I get ticked off by the advocates' argument. "Dad gets high on martinis, Mom on pills, why not the kids on marijuana," because we Meyers aren't like that. But even if we were I'd use disc jockey Larry Lujack's answer, "So where is it written you gotta be as stupid as your parents?"

And I'd add my own, "So show me a martini drinker who'd pay $5 for a bunch of parsley."

The Fence Post

Manager Wanted?

I honestly believe, after comparing our controversial Village Manager ordinance with State Statutes on the subject, that our Village Board does not want a manager type of government here. This in spite of statements made favoring it at the time of the referendum. The Board is not willing to give up any of the powers they have had for so long to any manager.

In the State Statutes the manager has control of administration of Village affairs. He shall "enforce the laws and ordinances . . ." "appoint and remove all directors of departments . . ." "exercise control of all departments and divisions thereof . . ." that may be created by the . . . board of trustees." "appoint and remove all officers who are not required to be elected . . ." and so on.

It is true that the statutes do not stipulate any qualifications of education or experience for manager applicants. Our timorous Village Attorney pretends to be afraid to add any for fear of violating state statutes. The loss of our "non-solicitation" case must have been a traumatic experience. He trembles if anyone suggests a slight variation. I am convinced that is only an act and "that case" is cited only when it serves a purpose. I've heard his weak "legal" points, his "interpretations" and his quavering fears voiced in every controversial issue since July. But see how bravely he writes the rest of the Manager ordinance . . . adding and changing words with gay abandon:

The manager "shall be RESPONSIBLE TO THE BOARD" for the management and operation of all the affairs and the departments of the Village. "shall also have SUPERVISION of such other . . . departments . . . created by the Board (unless the management and control . . . is expressly designated elsewhere)." . . . "shall RECOMMEND TO THE BOARD the appointment . . . removal or suspension . . . of all officers when such is consistent with the best interests of the Village." (In whose opinion?) "With the approval of the Board he SHALL "make organizational changes in departments, etc., under his jurisdiction. He "has the power to appoint and to discharge ANY employee of the Village . . ." Who are employees of the Village? Doesn't that include those appointive officers, like Commissioners, Attorneys, etc.? Or aren't they employees of the Village?

So, after stripping him of his powers, the ordinance goes on to outline restrictions and duties which change the Manager to a glorified clerk, typing reports and requisitions (in triplicate, no doubt) making sure he orders office supplies and stationery in large quantities to get the discount price.

No one, except the Board, can tell the Manager what to do — and, Boy! do they tell him! Maybe the Board wants a Manager who will "go along," "not step on toes," "not rock the boat," or take away their nice set-up.

With an ordinance like this, we don't need stated qualifications. No self-respecting person with experience and or special training in Village Management would take the job.

Young Vandals Spoil Holiday

Once again my husband and I packed away our outdoor Christmas lights, and resolved that next year we wouldn't go to the bother. At least five acts of vandalism were committed in the past two weeks on our meager, but very dear to us, property. Heaven knows what others had to endure. Lights were stolen, broken and strewn around our yard; rose cones were smashed in the process and light wires snipped with cutters. We did report this to our very fine police department, but we realize how difficult a situation such as this is to control.

By the time the holidays come around again, we will probably put our lights and decorations out again, for we enjoy them very much. I only wish that the youngsters who delight in this destructive activity could be encouraged somehow to stop just a moment and try to see the beauty of the celebration of Christmas.

If you think that your child might even possibly be involved in this, please take the time to read this to him and discuss it. To respect the property of others is a valuable lesson, one which can be learned and understood early in life. Thank you.

Cut Your Own Taxes

Remember To Ponder Taxes And Interest

by RAY DE CRANE

The most common taxes to be listed on your return will be real estate taxes, sales tax, gasoline tax and personal property taxes.

Charts prepared by Internal Revenue Service and included in your manual of instructions containing your income tax forms show the allowable gasoline tax and sales tax.

Depending upon the number of non-business miles driven and the per gallon state tax on gasoline, the chart will calculate your gas tax deduction. Don't forget to take credit for a second or even a third car in the family if you are buying the gas for it. Should an unusually high gas tax deduction be claimed because of ownership of a second or third car, it would be well to note that fact on your return for the guidance of the IRS examiner.

The sales tax charts for the various states will show the accepted deduction dependent upon gross income and the number in the household. Don't forget to add to the normal chart allowance for sales tax the actual amount of sales tax on an automobile purchased in 1970.

Real estate taxes are deductible for the year in which paid. If you have a mortgage on your home and the real estate taxes are included in your monthly payment, your real estate tax deduction is not necessarily the amount put aside for taxes. That money went into a tax reserve account. Check your bank or savings and loan to determine the exact amount of real estate taxes paid for the year.

ANY INTEREST paid for the use of money of a nonbusiness nature is fully deductible. This will generally include interest on a home mortgage, home improvement loan, car purchase, interest on notes to a bank, savings and loan, credit union or a finance company.

Interest paid to a broker for a margin account is also deductible. So, too, is the prepayment penalty on a mortgage paid off before maturity.

Carrying charges on installment purchases generally include a service and insurance charge in addition to interest. To determine the allowable interest, multiply the average monthly unpaid balance by 6 per cent.

Interest paid to Internal Revenue Service for late payment on a tax return is deductible. But a penalty payment for late payment of a bill is not deductible. — (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Dist. 214 To Award Bus Contracts

The High School Dist. 214 board tonight will act to award three-year bus contracts to Ritzenthaler Bus Co. and the Cook County Bus Co.

As proposed by the district's administration, Ritzenthaler would continue to supply buses for Arlington, Prospect, John Hersey and Wheeling High School, while Cook County would provide service to Forest View, Elk Grove and the new Rolling Meadows High school. The pattern is similar to past busing patterns.

The daily rate per bus for Ritzenthaler would be $39.50, the daily rate per bus, with Cook County set at $41.30.

For the 1972-73 year, that rate would increase by 3 per cent for Ritzenthaler, 4 per cent for Cook County, with both companies increasing the rates by another 3 per cent the following year.

In other action at the meeting, scheduled to begin at 7:30 at 799 W. Kensington, Mount Prospect, the board will act on a resolution to set the time and the place to file petitions for the April 10th school board elections.

THE ADMINISTRATION has recommended that petitions be accepted on weekdays and Saturdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. from Feb. 24 to March 19.

The two incumbent board members, Leah Cummins of Elk Grove Village and chairman Richard Bachhuber of Mount Prospect, recently announced they would seek reelection.

No other persons have announced as candidates.

The board will also hear a report from member Arthur Aronson on a meeting of the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC), held on Jan. 9.

The meeting was held to discuss the future role of the cooperative, which came under fire recently from board members in districts 54, 211 and 214.

Jim: "Declarer's first consideration in no-trump play is to look around for ways he can develop tricks to add to the sure ones he started with."

Oswald: "If he can develop enough tricks to guarantee his contract by going after one specific suit he should go after that suit. If he can attack two or even three suits he should start with the suit that will allow him to go after the others later on."

Jim: "South has seven top tricks to start with. He can surely get one more in spades and two more if West holds the king. He will get one extra trick in hearts if the suit breaks 3-3; one extra trick in clubs if the finesse is on; two extra tricks in diamonds if the suit behaves very nicely or one extra trick if the suit behaves fairly well. The prospects are pleasing, but a careless declarer might well get himself set."

Oswald: "If he attacks spades at trick two East will get on lead with the king and shift to a club. South will play the queen. West will take his king and clear the suit before South has a chance to develop a diamond trick and another game will have disappeared."

Jim: "If South attacks diamonds at trick two he will be able to keep the dangerous hand out of the lead. The winning play is to take the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts, lead a diamond and play the eight or 10. This will lose to West's jack, but he can't hurt you in clubs. South will have set up his third diamond trick and will be left with time to knock out the king of spades."

Oswald: "Should West hold four diamonds to the queen-jack South won't be able to set up a third diamond trick, but he will still have time for other suits."

Smith And Jones 'Pleasant Enough'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Alias Smith and Jones," television's first series to be influenced by the comedy — western movie, "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," had an amiable one-hour debut on ABC Thursday night.

A 90-minute preview of the new series was broadcast early this month on ABC's "Movie of the Week" and got a whopping rating with its tale of two notorious outlaws who decide to go straight because modern times and techniques are catching up with them.

As a series, though, "Alias Smith and Jones" is going to have much stiffer ratings competition because it is directly opposite NBC's Flip Wilson Show, a runaway hit in its freshman season.

The same two stars of the 90-minute preview are the headliners of the weekly version of "Alias Smith and Jones." They are Pete Duel, who once appeared in ABC's "Love on a Rooftop" series, and Ben Murphy, who bears a remarkable resemblance to Paul Newman, one of the stars of "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

IN THE DEBUT of "Alias Smith and Jones" Thursday night, it was immediately established that the two outlaws have a promise of amnesty from a governor if they can stay out of trouble for a while. The most difficult part of this proposition for the easygoing, notorious pair is that they have to try to earn an honest living in the meantime.

The premier episode concerned their involvement with a rich rancher Burl Ives who hires them to retrieve a bust of Caesar which he says was stolen from him by a wealthy fellow across the border in Mexico, Caesar Romero. Ives, however, turns out to be a pretty smooth operator who tries to win back at cards what he pays Smith and Jones.

This first episode wasn't as good as the 90-minute outing, but for video western fans it was still a pleasant enough hour, particularly because of its humorous approach to what has usually been such a deadpan format.

Hearings On Tap For Viator Parents

Hearings that will give parents with students at St. Viator High School a chance to express their opinions on changes at the school will be held soon.

The hearings are an outgrowth of meetings by the Parent-Student-Teacher Forum, which was formed to promote understanding between the three groups.

The forum has 25 members representing the three groups and has discussed many proposed changes in scheduling, classes and conduct rules and the philosophy behind them.

The forum is the first of its kind in any public or private high school in the area, school officials say.

Letters explaining plans for the hearings have been sent by a four-member forum committee. The letter says discussions will include "apprehensions concerning changes taking place at St. Viator."

THE LETTER CONTINUES: "We realize that there are parents who feel that an easing of the dress code could signal a further relaxation of standards they associate with Catholic schools and in particular with St. Viator."

"School officials are aware that parents may also feel the same way about changes in courses and scheduling. 'I would suspect that this same apprehension is being felt by public schools that implement individualized instruction and modular scheduling,' says Rev. James Michaelitz, St. Viator principal.

"The Parent-Student-Teacher Forum serves as an advisory group to Father Michaelitz. It may eventually make recommendations to him regarding changes at the school.

"Where we won't agree, we certainly hope to have each of us better understand the others' points of view," says John Carley of 123 S. Lancaster, Mount Prospect, the Forum chairman."

Rocks Palatine, Holds Lead

Hersey Keeps Rolling In North

THE ELUSIVE SPHERE. None of a half-dozen cagers is able to corral the basketball in this bit of action from Hersey's 83-47 victory over Palatine in the Hersey gym Friday. Looking on as the ball escapes out of bounds are Huskies Mark Leonhard (left) and John Tilhou (behind Leonhard) along with Pirates Doug Fyfe (13), Doug Sander (23), who seems to be saying "to heck with it," and Jim Stauner (15).

One big boy, one little guy, and one of in-between size occupied center stage for Hersey's first-place basketball team Friday night.

It was this terrific trio — 6-8 Andy Paneratz, 5-9 Bruce Frase and 6-4 John Tilhou — who wrought most of the destruction of visiting Palatine, as Hersey breezed to an 83-47 victory, their second romp of the season over the Pirates.

Here were the Big Three's contributions: Paneratz led all rebounders with 18 and tossed in 17 points, Frase took game scoring honors with 22 (his first time over 20 in a three-year career) and Tilhou fired in 21.

Despite being a little sluggish at first, Hersey broke loose to pile up an insurmountable margin and coast to victory, their seventh in as many Mid-Suburban League encounters to keep their two-game lead in the North Division.

The hosts raced to a 27-point second quarter and 31 in the third. At that pace they could have broken 100, but reserves played most of the fourth period. By that time, the three leading stars had 13 fouls among them, anyhow.

A disheartened Palatine coach Ron Finfrock summed up the evening when he said, "We stunk. And Hersey is a fine basketball team."

Roger Steingraber, Hersey belmsman, was asked how he managed to keep his troops in a fighting mood even in a game they figured to win easily. "I tell them that I am interested in improvement," he replied. "They're the type of kids who know they've got to keep building up, never slacking off."

Finfrock offered, "We were up for the start of the game in the sense that the kids were willing to work out there. But their adrenalin was flowing so fast that they (the Pirates) were tired out by the end of the first quarter, even though they're in excellent condition."

"Our forwards and centers were just standing around all night. I thought Rick McCormick (Palatine sophomore guard who had 14 points) did an excellent job. He was going against one of the best defensive guards (Frase) in the league. But he couldn't do anything with the ball because nobody else was moving."

"Our two sophomores (McCormick and Jim Sander) were our best players on the floor."

Hersey dominated every statistical category. Even though they shot a mediocre 40 per cent (35 of 87), Palatine was worse with an anemic 26 per cent (15 of 56). The Huskies collared 44 rebounds to 28 for Palatine and the latter was guilty of 20 turnovers while the hosts committed just eight.

The guests kept the game slowed down for most of the first quarter but could not keep Hersey from garnering a 16-7 advantage at the end of that session. Then the Pirates were ice-cold in the second quarter, having difficulty getting good shots off, while Hersey got its fast break in gear.

The Huskies started getting steals that turned into easy baskets with the same quick-handed man-to-man defense that buried Palatine in their first meeting.

There were two distinct trends in the span that took in the late stages of the second quarter and early part of the third. Hersey scored 14 unanswered points and Frase exploded for five baskets in about two and a half minutes.

The same high-powered attack for the Huskies carried right through the third quarter and by the break the scoreboard read 74-38.

Steingraber cleared his bench in the fourth period when neither side could do much.

Junior center Doug Fyfe paced Palatine with 16 points, including 10 of 15 from the free throw line.

Prospect Stays On Top In South Chase

by MARV PRELLBERG

RUSH! RUSH! RUSH! That seems to be the pattern of life in our suburban areas.

RUSH! RUSH! RUSH! That is the pattern of basketball drilled into the Prospect High varsity basketball team.

RUSH! RUSH! RUSH! That is the name of the lad who propelled the Knights to an important 77-61 victory at Glenbard North last Friday evening.

Casey Rush, a versatile Prospect athlete, who makes up for his lack of muscular-type physical attributes with speed, quickness, and savvy, led a determined Knight quintet to its fifth South Division MSL win in seven starts.

The senior cager, operating at both the forward and the post position on offense, sneaked, weaved, and bolted his way through the Glenbard North defenses for 26 points in garnering the hero role in this victory. He personally accounted for one third of the Knights' 33 field goals and was only three short of matching the Glenbard North team field goal total.

The triumph was a big one for Coach Bill Slayton's charges, as Glenbard North was right on the heels of the league leading Knights in the South Division MSL race. The win shoved the Panthers two games off the pace and kept Prospect a notch above second place Conant.

When you glance at the difference in the field goal totals between the two teams, it is surprising that the game was as close as the final 16 point difference.

Prospect poured in 19 more field goals than did Glenbard, hitting 33 of 62 attempts. This 53.2 per cent rating was substantially better than the Panthers 14 for 46 total. Even in spite of the wide Prospect advantage in this department, it was not until late in the third quarter that the Knights were able to consider the conquest as safely theirs.

The officials weren't letting Prospect get by with any contact in its aggressive pressing defense. The Knights were charged with 31 foul violations, and this opened the door for Glenbard North to get plenty of action from the free throw lane. The Panthers fired up 45 free throws and connected on 33 of them. This was the key to Glenbard keeping its victory hopes alive against the Prospect field goal avalanche.

The locals took a big step towards wrapping up this contest in the opening quarter. With forward Dave Lundstedt initiating the scoring with a three point play for Prospect, the Knights put six men in the scoring column in opening up a 14 point, 25-11, margin.

Glenbard North wiped out some of this deficit in the second period, as it rallied late in the quarter for 10 points, while holding Prospect to a pair of free throws. This rally cut the Knight lead, which at one point in the quarter reached 18 points, to a 10 point, 43-33, count at the intermission.

The host school stayed with Prospect in the third quarter, twice moving to within nine points, until two straight buckets by Lundstedt and Rush late in the period boosted the Knight lead to 59-45.

Coach Slayton's quintet put the game away for safe keeping early in the final quarter and just past the mid-point had built up a 23 point bulge. With 1:15 left in the tilt Rush was waved to the bench and received his plaudits for his all-around game performance and the 26 point out-pur.

The last minute was meaningless as far as the final outcome was concerned, but was time enough for Glenbard North's ace Bill Wright to tally four more times from the charity stripe. This boosted his all time MSL point total to 524 points, enabling him to move ahead of two former Paddock area cage stars, Tom Lundstedt and Jack Bastable. Interestingly enough Lundstedt, who now makes his home in Scottsdale, Ariz., was in the crowd, witnessing Wright's 21 point effort.

The Wright performance was one of the few bright spots left for the downhearted Panthers. The Knights cared less. They had an important 77-61 victory.

Earliest Start

Major league baseball will get off to its earliest start ever in 1971.

American League President Joe Cronin announced the Washington Senators will meet the Oakland Athletics in the season opener at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium in the nation's capital April 5, one day earlier than the 1970 start when the Senators hosted the Detroit Tigers.

NIT For Big Ten?

At least one. Probably two, and maybe as many as three.

That's how many Big Ten basketball teams will be competing in post-season tournaments this year.

The Big Ten faculty representatives and athletic directors voted last month to approve participation by league teams in the National Invitational tournament in New York.

The Big Ten is assured of a spot in the NCAA tournament field, but any number of additional teams who are invited to compete in the NIT could do so if their schools permit the participation.

"Obviously, the NIT cannot make any definite policy statement on the matter until the measure is given final approval by the Big Ten," said an official of the NIT over the weekend, "but it's obvious that it would be good for the tourney to have at least one team, maybe two this year in the first season of allowable participation by the league."

A final decision will be rendered by the Big Ten on the resolution at the League meetings in early March and no problems are anticipated.

Takes Joe From Books

Joe Jackson of the Northwest Travelers had his Judson College scoring record of 41 points wiped out last week by Corum Turner, junior transfer from Pittsburg, Ill. Turner scored 43 points, hitting 29 in the second half.

Minds On Money

Jack Nicklaus, the Golden Bear of golf, says, "It costs $300 a week for a player to live on the tour. These young golfers have it in their minds to make $100,000 or even $200,000. They're all thinking of the money factor, not on learning how to improve their game."

Cougars Clip Falcons

And Conant Stays Close

by PAUL LOGAN

Someone labeled the turning point of the Conant-Forest View game "when the buzzer sounded." That just about summed it up.

Forest View, much improved since its first loss to the Cougars, came to Conant with one thing in mind — an upset. The Falcons nearly pulled it off. Led by Ed Bansfield, almost unstoppable from the field in the second half, the Falcons came back to take the lead at the end of three quarters.

With Bansfield bombing away at a seven for eight clip, the visiting Falcons matched their bigger, stronger rivals point for point. But Forest View went cold in the last three minutes, made several costly turnovers and allowed the Cougars to slip away with a 63-60 victory Friday night at Conant.

The Cougars' crucial win kept them close to Prospect in the fight for the Mid-Suburban League's South Division leadership. Conant, 4-3 in the league, is just one game behind Prospect.

Dick Redinger, Conant's coach, knew his team had escaped a close call as he uttered over and over, "They just plain out hustled us."

Conant came out in the first quarter and really put on a field goal shooting show by hitting 10 of 12 to take a 22-12 lead. Then the hosting ball club reversed itself and went one for nine to allow Forest View to catch up, 35-31, at the half.

However, in that second quarter the Cougars did what they did all night — convert free throws. They hit 11 of 15 in that quarter and finished with 21 of 31 for the game.

"That's what wins close games for you," said Redinger. "You preach it all the time and that was living proof tonight."

But the second half seemed like Forest View would prevail despite the Cougars clutch free throws. And Bansfield was the difference. His four-for-four outside shooting in the third quarter drove Redinger and his Cougars nuts.

"Those weren't 15-footers either," said

Easy Win For Card Gymnasts

Arlington raced out to a 21.30 to 16.30 lead after the free exercise and then coasted the rest of the way for an easy 133.20 to 112.7 victory over Fremd.

The Cardinals, entertaining the Vikings, swept the free exercise event behind Craig Combs (7.85), John Gibbel (8.96) and Steve Brogdon (6.5).

Jeff McGuire paced Arlington, now 59-0 in dual meets, on the side horse with an 8.2. However, that fine score was belated in the next event — horizontal bar — by teammate Joe Temko who hit an 8.3, tops for the night. In the latter event, Craig Combs dislocated a finger. The Cards totaled a 23.50 on the high bar — their top event total of the night.

Tom Sayre took first place on trampoline with a fine 8.1. Then Doug Law won the parallel bars with a 7.8 and Bob Wilson finished out the first place sweep with an 8.05 on the still rings.

Brogdon, Arlington's all-around man, had a real fight with Bill Anderson before winning 6.40 to 6.07.

Arlington's sophomore team also won handily, 62.54 to 47.10.

Hersey Bounces To Win

John Weaver's best effort of the conference campaign paced a Hersey surge on the trampoline that carried them past Wheeling and on to their ninth dual win in ten outings overall at the Wildcat gym.

Final verdict of the league gymnastics meet was 123.68 to 117.21 in favor of the Huskies, overshadowing a new team high by Wayne Selvig's hosting outfit.

Weaver's flashy routine netted the senior specialist an 8.65 and Pat Treacy and Jack McLaughlin added nifty 7.8 and 6.35 performances respectively, awarding Hersey a 22.80 total for the event. They had gone into tramp action trailing the 'Cats 58.15 to 55.75 but soared ahead by seven and were never headed again.

Wheeling came back to capture the rings event, collecting team verdicts in three of the six events all told, and Rene Mathis finished up with all around laurels but the hosts still ended up absorbing their second setback in nine meets — both coming on conference play.

Don Von Ebers guest group, utilizing their own regular all around man Jeff Farris in just one event, still annexed four individual firsts in upping their loop slate to 4-1. Farris dominated the one event he did enter — the parallel bars — despite an excellent performance by Mathis.

Mathis tallied a 7.75 on the p-bars, his best this season, but it fell somewhat short of the 8.4 showing turned in by Jeff. Other Huskie firsts in addition to Weaver, were gained by Steve Schwabe in floor exercise at 7.15 and Ed Hemmb on the side horse with a .7 demonstration.

Rene came in for his share of the limelight too, earning a prize-winning 7.45 score in the high bar en route to fine all around average of 6.31. Rick Bieg netted the other individual Cat first, hitting his best at 7.3 on the still rings.

Bieg, Mathis and Reinhard Broy teamed to net the hosts a three-point edge in the final event and Wheeling also domi-

HEAD TO HEAD. Palatine's Jim Sander (23) just manages to get a shot off despite intimidating tactics of Andy Pancratz. Big Andy played his usual tough defen-

Grove Swamps Palatine

Elk Grove was double trouble while much for the Grenadiers meet. Part of the problem was the 124.51 to 62.05 final score — more than twice as much for the Grenadiers. Individually, Landy Fernandez and Mark Damore handed Palatine fits all evening with sparkling performances. Landy, coach Fred Gaines' all-around entry, carried a hefty 6.68 average through five events while Damore added a 5.18 for three events.

The shining light for the Pirates was senior Jim Yaeger who was near flawless during an 8.55 routine on the rings. But the Grove even had an answer for that.

Jim Malmendahl clicked to an even better 8.8 performance to haul away the rings championship. Not to be outdone were teammates Al Mitsos who landed an 8.4 on the trampoline and Fernandez who swung to an 8.1 on the parallel bars.

Damore contributed his three important totals of 5.05, 4.55 and 5.95 in the free exercise, high bar and side horse, respectively.

Palatine responded with Tom Schergen who notched a 5.35 in free ex, 4.2 on the side horse, 5.6 on the high bar, 5.75 on the parallel bars and 5.6 on the rings.

Conant Triumphs

Redinger. "He was pumping them in from the 20 to 25 foot range. And he was pressured."

Bansfield's third field goal tied the game at 39-all. Then his four teammates joined in to keep close when Don Woodsmall, on an assist from George Bauer, gave the Falcons the lead for the first time, 44-42. A short time later Bansfield hit a field goal to give them a five point margin, 50-48.

The lead went back and forth in the final eight minutes. Bansfield hit a jumper with four minutes left to tie the score at 54-54. But the Falcons came no closer after that as their next two shots were blocked by the taller front line of Conant.

Bill Arkus gave the Cougars the lead for good with a layup, 60-58, soon after. John Macdonald came through with a timely eight footer from the base line to ice the game, 63-58, with a minute left. But Forest View wasn't done yet.

Bansfield connected from 25 feet to make it 63-60. The Falcons had four more tries from the field, two coming on Conant turnovers, but they couldn't find the range.

"We should have beat them," said Ken Arneson, Forest View's coach, afterwards. "We outplayed them. I feel we should have won that one. Our defense was good, real good."

The Falcons pressed full court the whole game and in the second and third quarters, when they made their move, it bothered the Cougars. But they just ran out of steam in the last minute.

Redinger attributed Conant's halfcourt pressure with slowing up Forest View late in the last quarter. But the big Cougar coach admitted that nothing could stop Bansfield who finished with 18 points.

Matching him from Conant was Dave Iron. Eight of his 18 came from the foul line. Macdonald had 16, eight in the first quarter, and Chet Pudlosky had 12. Forest View's only other player in double figures was George Bauer with 13. Bob Kasper, who had eight as a sub, was praised by Arneson for his solid performance.

Forest View, now 2-5 in the league, out-rebounded its taller opponents, 24-21, but was out-shot, 437 to 398. And then there was that final score...

At Rose Bowl

Susan Klein had high series of 587 and Harriet Thielke hit high game of 211 in the Cambridge Quartette bowling league at Rose Bowl. Other high series were a 561 by Darlene Carter and 541 by Jill Klein, while other high games were recorded by Josie Pitzen with 198 and Pat Bores with 196. Josie Pitzen picked up the 3-7-10 split. The Swingers took four points to swing out in first place by two games with 48 points. Team No. 15 is second with 46 points and the Four Alley Oats and the Ups and Downs are tied for third with 42 apiece.

Falcon Swimmers Whip Elk Grove

It was more than the keen rivalry that surrounds each Elk Grove and Forest View swim meet. It was a battle of brothers, the Schlaks, who were competing head-to-head as members of the opposing team.

Cliff Schlak, a junior from Grove, won the individual duel, but Doug Schlak, a freshman member of the Forest View varsity tankers, emerged in the long run as the Falcons conquered, 65-30.

Each of the brothers is a freestyle distance specialist, so both were listed on opposite ends of the 200-yard, 400-yard and 400-yard freestyle relay events.

Cliff was unbeatable in the 200-free as he journeyed to the winner's circle in 1:58.5. Brother Doug was fourth in 2:06.4. In the 400-free, Cliff again won out, this time notching second for Elk Grove in 4:22.1 while Doug followed right behind in third in 4:49.3.

In the final 400-yard freestyle relay event, though, Doug combined with teammates Mark Bailey, Peter Lenkelt and John Mate to overthrow Cliff's team of Mike Bachus, Jack Imlah and Spencer Huebner, 3:38.9 to 3:49.6.

Otherwise, the Falcons dominated the blue ribbon awards by touching first in nine of the 11 events. Their contingent of Mate, Fred Westdale, Scott Patience and Bailey took the opening 200-yard medley relay in 1:48.7.

Elk Grove came roaring back, however, as Schlak triumphed in the 200-free and Dave Toler walked off with 106-yard individual medley relay honors in 2:12.9.

It was the last Grenadier winner of the afternoon, though, as Patience took the 50-free in 22.9, Jim Johnson the diving with 135.25 points, Mate the 100-butterfly in 59.3, Patience again, in the 100-free, Lenkelt in the 400-free in 4:19.0, Jim Davies in the 100-back in 1:06.5, and Westdale in the 100-breaststroke in 1:10.

Elk Grove's bid for a conference winner on the frosh-soph level became more of a reality as the Grenadiers won 66-29.

Five Fremd Firsts In Gymnastics Victory

Fremd captured five first places including two sweeps as the Vikings took the hosting Falcons of Forest View, 87.13 to 72.89.

Bob Mellin got the Vikings off to a fast start with a 7.55 — the top score of the meet — in free exercise. This helped give the visitors a 17.55 to 16.25 lead.

But Forest View came back to take the lead on Bruce Pierce's first (5.35) on the side horse. That made it 28.45 to 42.65.

The Vikings took the advantage for good on the horizontal bar behind Don Neuman's 6.15 first place showing. Fremd led 42.65 to 40.55.

Fremd nearly doubled the score on trampoline, 12.75 to 6.60, with Bill Osborne winning with a 7.35.

The parallel bars also went the Vikings' way, 13.75 to 13.55, with John Williams winning the event with a 7.05. They also won the still rings when Jeff Weber hit a 6.55. They swept both this event and trampoline.

Williams won the all-around title with a 3.88 compared to Jim Pergander's 3.04. Forest View did win the sophomore meet with a 63.44 to 62.86. The Falcons were led by Mike Ferraro's 6.4 on the tramp and Don Lanham's 5.1 on the horizontal bar.

Wheeling Explodes Early, Dumps Fremd

by KEITH REINHARD
Last time around the decision was in doubt down to the last few minutes of play. Wheeling wanted no such action this time.
So coupling a 28-point second-quarter outburst with some nifty defensive play, the Wildcats shot ahead by 20 at intermission and danced to an 81-59 verdict over visiting Fremd Friday.
Roger Wood and Mike Groot did their thing, as usual. Each canned 23, Wood interspersing his nine field goals with seven blocked shots and Groot bagging four assists along the way as Ted Ecker's outfit captured their fifth of seven conference games while dropping the Vikings below .500 in the North Division race.

"I had them thinking a little more about defense tonight," Ecker noted of his charges. "That first half had to be one of their best efforts this season."
Offensively, it only took about eleven minutes of that first half for the hosts to do most of the damage.
With 3:29 to go in the first period, Fremd had fashioned an 8-4 lead and their controlled offense — an abrupt departure from the usual fast-moving Viking attack — appeared to be setting the game style.
Then when Groot and Tony Schuld started hitting from outside while Big Rog was striking underneath. With 40 seconds to go Groot pilfered the ball and raced down for a layup that put the home team in the lead and the lead was never again in question.
Wood paced the second stanza uprising, leading off with a tip to Jay Rusek on a jump ball with Rusek converting inside. Rog poured in a dozen tallies and Al Syfert added nine more to lead the 44-25 mid-game bulge.
About 10 minutes were offered during that time by Leon Kasuboske's club came on a pair of inside shots by Craig Johnson and Mark Hollinger, who exhibited a soft outside touch.
The third quarter started off in much the same fashion. Keyed by another Groot steal and layup the 'Cats rocketed ahead 50-27 and after Bill Whiteley had countered with a 15-footer, Groot slammed in an 18-foot jump shot, raced from midcourt to score on the drive and then exchanged layups with Syfert. The score with 3:40 to go was 58-29.
Wheeling eventually widened the gap to 30 with less than four minutes to go in the final period. Then Viking pivotman Randy Hague, who had been limited to seven points the whole game, went on a rampage.
The 6-6 senior hit twice in a row inside, then plunked in seven straight free throws, trimming the spread by eleven just about singlehandedly in little more than two minutes.

Randy's antics netted him 18 for the game and moved him up past former teammate Mike Kolze into sixth place on the Mid-Suburban league's career scoring honor roll. Hague now has 447 conference points, tying him with Arlington's John Brodnan, just 39 behind former Prospect great Tom Lundstedt.
While Hague was the only Fremd cager in double figures, Wheeling just missed putting five at that level with Syfert backing up Wood and Groot at 14 and Rusek on another scoring rampage pocketing 10.
Wheeling is now 9-5 overall. Fremd is 6-8.

scoring combined well with the rebounding of Steve Yellin and Joe Trawinski, who each pulled down six boards. Add to that some fine defensive work on Crusader ace Bob Okrzesik by the Lions sticky zone defense, and the Lions came off of the court at intermission on top by a 33-31 count.
The third quarter was Viator's low point as the Lions hit a cold streak that lasted almost eight full minutes and shot an ice-cold .238 from the floor, hitting only 5 of 21 attempts. Fortunately for the Lions, Holy Cross could not capitalize on the situation, as several Crusader turnovers destroyed any momentum that the home team might have developed and Viator held on to go into the final period with a four point lead, 48-44.
Holy Cross closed the gap at the top of the fourth quarter to 52-50. But six straight points by Pettenuzzo, who hit for a total of 14 points in this period, stretched the lead to eight. Holy Cross was finished despite the departure of Viator's center Steve Yellin via personal fouls with more than four minutes remaining in the quarter, as Pettenuzzo scored the last two buckets to give Viator the 67-61 victory.
This game also displayed the two top scorers in the division, St. Viator's 6-2 guard Mike Pettenuzzo and Holy Cross forward 6-6 Bob Okrzesik.
Pettenuzzo had 12 field goals and hit on seven out of seven from the free throw line for a total of 31 points and 164 counters for eight conference games and a 20.5 average. The Crusader's Okrzesik

Lions Topple Holy Cross

by JAY JENNI
The St. Viator Lions are tied for fourth in the East Division of the Suburban Catholic and Mike Pettenuzzo is the loop's leading scorer and all because the Holy Cross Crusaders could not put the ball in the hole.
The Crusaders shot a cold .333 from the floor Friday on their home court and their half court zone press was mostly ineffective as St. Viator's Pettenuzzo pumped in 31 points to lead the Lions to a 67-61 conference victory. Viator and Holy Cross both are now 3-5 in league play.
Holy Cross drew first blood as guard Marc Porter dropped one in from the charity stripe. This was the last time that the Crusaders were in the lead. Viator poured in six straight points and led at the end of the first stanza 15-14, thanks to eight points from Lion guard Bob Rech.
Viator opened up some daylight in the second period as Pettenuzzo came to life and poured in eleven points. Pettenuzzo's scoring combined well with the rebounding of Steve Yellin and Joe Trawinski, who each pulled down six boards. Add to that some fine defensive work on Crusader ace Bob Okrzesik by the Lions sticky zone defense, and the Lions came off of the court at intermission on top by a 33-31 count.

Fuel Taxes
America's pleasure boatmen last year coughed up $85.1 million in state fuel taxes on the 1.2 billion gallons of fuel they bought, according to the Boating Industry Association. These boatmen only got $19.3 million back in the form of allocations for boating purposes such as facilities and marine safety.
Average Outboard
The average outboard boat purchased in 1970 was 15.4 feet long and had a 30.0 h.p. motor, according to the Boating Industry Association.
Fewer Accidents
With the advent of more and better boating education programs, the number of boating accidents has decreased, according to the Outboard Boating Club of America. Fire and explosion continue to be the leading causes of property loss in boating, with overloading third.

Cardinals Win, Brodnan Moves To No.3

by JIM COOK
Somewhat echoing the famous words of astronaut Neil Armstrong as he descended the ladder to the moon: one big step for Arlington: one giant step for John Brodnan.
The Cardinal phenom passed another milestone Friday night in leading the Redbirds over a stout and stubborn Elk Grove contingent, 84-71.

Brodnan entered the clash just seven points short of becoming the third leading career scorer in Arlington High School history. Less than four minutes into the game, the record books made room for the multi-talented guard.
Clearing the way for Brodnan was George Bork who retired with 783 points during the 1958-59 and 1959-60 seasons. Alumni Steve Allen (1,124) and Chuck Close (954) still stand ahead of Brodnan, who now has 800 career points.
John's high game honors of 30 points Friday night included nine field goals and a perfect 12-for-12 showing at the free throw line.
But Elk Grove didn't exactly line up in a parade route for Brodnan and Company. Yielding a convincing height advantage plus a step in quickness and a year in experience, the Grenadiers fell behind early, but never threw in the towel.
By the time people were just getting settled in their seats, Brodnan had thrown in seven points and Arlington led, 11-6.
The black-haired bandit had gunned for half of his 30 point total by the end of the first quarter which included a 35-footer at the buzzer. As Brodnan went, so went Arlington — to the tune of a 23-14 first horn margin.
Grenadier Mark Hopkins did all he could to keep pace with the quick Cards, but he and his teammates had the chore of cracking a 3-1-1 full court press every time they brought the ball up.

Even if that trick was accomplished, Elk Grove was forced to offer long jumpers from outside the Arlington zone and often over the far-reaching efforts of Cardinal towers Mike Mandele and Bill Kieck.
The result was a 42-27 Arlington gap at halftime as Mandele stepped in to share the Cardinal scoring chores with eight second-period points.
Elk Grove caught on in the final 16 minutes of play. They began splitting the full court press with efficiency and penetrated the Cards' sticky zone.
With Dave Chernick at the reins, the Grove erupted from a 20-point deficit in the initial stages of the final stanza to pull within 10 at 81-71, but Arlington's cushion was just too comfortable.
Mandele (23), Mike Cleveland (13) and Kieck (10) joined Brodnan in the twin-figure column while Ken Peters just missed with eight points.
Chernick paced the potent Grenadier attack with 25 points while teammate Mark Hopkins contributed 19.
If records were made to be broken, John Brodnan was made to break them.

Delay Decision On Multi-Unit School Proposal

by NANCY COWGER

School Dist. 54 board Thursday night delayed decision on the first commitment to establishing a pilot program for a new system of education.

The board was asked by Supt. Wayne Schaible and a number of staff members to approve affiliating with the University of Wisconsin Research and Development Center. Affiliation is the first step in establishing multi-unit schools, where children with a 3-year age spread are grouped in large units with a staff of teachers and teacher aides.

Before Dist. 54 can go any further in studying the system, said Schaible, it must affiliate with the research center. The center has developed films, manuals and other materials on the system, which it makes available only to affiliated schools. While the affiliation would cost nothing, use of the materials was estimated in a board memorandum at about $300 per school building.

Schaible told the board he hoped for approval Thursday night, so he could order the materials, some to be rented and others purchased, in time to develop the program for an 8-room addition to the Hanover Highlands School. It would house first and second grades.

THEN, IN "A MONTH or two," said Schaible, he would ask the board to approve designing the addition to suit the educational program.

The board tabled the matter until its next meeting, after discussing it about three hours Thursday night.

The board first was introduced to the proposal at its last meeting, two weeks ago, when Schaible presented a memo proposing the Hanover school addition be designed with flexible space and large open areas with movable partitions to allow varied room sizes for varied teaching activities.

Schaible said then he would not ask for a vote on the addition that night. At last Thursday's meeting, he said he was seeking immediate approval of the research center affiliation, and would ask approval for the new style design for the addition next month or the following one.

BEFORE OPENING the matter for discussion, the board saw a film provided by the research center, titled "One at a Time, Together." The film showed how the new system works at a Wisconsin school. Later, Robert Summerfield, Hanover principal, and three district teachers discussed the program. All of them had attended a 3-day workshop on the system at the Wisconsin college.

As the system was described, a school would be divided into units instead of classrooms. Each unit would consist of from 75 to 150 children, with four or five teachers, a secretary and at least one teacher aide. The teachers, working together and with the school principal, consultants and specialists, would plan the entire "school experience" of the children.

The children would be grouped by ages rather than grade levels. In one school, there might be separate units for children aged five to seven, eight to 10, and 11 to 13. Depending on the number of children in the school, there might be more than one unit for an age grouping.

THE BASICS OF THE program indicating variations in what each child learns, how rapidly he learns it and by what method he learns it. The three points would vary according to the individual needs, capabilities and interests of each child. Certain subject matter would be required learning for all children.

The teachers would hold regular sessions, planning the education of each child. Certain children might be grouped for reading instruction, if they work best in a group. Others, who work better alone, might be given a project to study independently. Children needing the individual guidance of a teacher would be scheduled for tutoring sessions.

As outlined, one unit might have many groups operating at the same time, each of a different size, some with teachers and others with teacher aides, each studying a different subject and using different materials.

As each child accomplished the work presented to him, he would be advanced to the succeeding level of work. Slower learners might repeat the same information presented in a different way.

Each child would be tested before and after presentation of new materials, to assess his needs and achievement.

SUMMERFIELD compared the system to what now is used, where classes are determined by age, not grouped according to needs and abilities.

"What we're doing now is criminal. We've got a wonderful educational system. I just don't think we can go on serving the public with a model T Ford when we're in an age of Imperials," he said.

The current system of grouping children of widely-varied abilities is a "crucifixion," he said. "We are dragging half of our children and teaching the rest," when many children are unable to comprehend material but continue to move up in grade levels because of their psychological needs, he said.

The teachers who spoke were Miss Carol Pickhardt, Pat Knauer and Phillip Valette. Miss Pickhardt listed deficiencies in the current system as requiring a teacher to be an expert in all subjects, requiring detailed planning in all subjects from each teacher, grouping of children with a wide range of learning speeds, lack of sharing ideas between teachers and difficulty in obtaining teaching materials, such as films, when they are needed.

BENEFITS FROM THE new system she listed would be children learning at their own natural pace, children and teachers sharing in setting goals, children having the benefits of several teachers rather than one and children learning to make decisions and to assess their own abilities.

Several board members asked if children achieved better under the new system.

"There is no achievement record test that shows to date achievement scores are better with this," said Schaible, but he added he felt the children's attitude toward school and other persons improved with the new system.

Mrs. Dianne Hart, board member, raised a number of questions on the

Another Apartment Building Fire; None Hurt

Firemen from 10 suburban communities battled for more than four hours Saturday to bring fire under control at a Meadow Trace apartment building in Rolling Meadows.

No injuries were reported from the fire, but residents of 28 apartments in the building were left homeless. Fire broke out about noon in the building located just south of Algonquin Road and west of Rte. 53.

Most of the apartment dwellers were given temporary housing in the Holiday Inn on Algonquin Road by the American Red Cross. Their furniture and other belongings were either destroyed by the fire or scattered in the snow a few feet from the building as smoke that could be seen from a mile away billowed black and high from the structure.

The cause of the blaze is still undetermined, according to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty. Both the chief and a state fire marshal investigated the scene yesterday.

Fogarty theorized the fire apparently started in the basement of the building. After firemen extinguished the blaze, they worked all night Saturday clearing rubble from the smoldering ruins.

ED BERRY, Meadow Trace assistant manager, was the first to see the fire. "The circuit breakers started popping and smoke started coming through the circuit box and phone box in the office," he said. Berry said he immediately telephoned the fire department and began notifying occupants of the 28 persons in the building to evacuate.

Although there are 32 apartments in the building, only 28 of them were occupied at the time of the fire. Occupants of 26 of the apartments registered with the Red Cross for emergency aid. It's believed residents of the other two apartments were out of town at the time of the fire.

"A little girl and I ran up and down the halls telling people there was a fire," according to Miss Mary Overman, a secretary at Meadow Trace. "I knew it was nothing to mess around with," she said.

The blaze that began in the basement was contained in the western half of the building, but all apartments received water and smoke damage, according to fire officials. There was a boiler room and a washing machine room in the basement. Each tenant also had a locker for personal belongings in the basement.

JOHN BLYTH, Meadow Trace building manager, said the building was probably totally destroyed. "Structurally it is ruined," he said.

The south wall of the building collapsed after firemen had battled the blaze for more than two hours.

Other apartment buildings nearby were not damaged. The unit gutted by fire was one of several identical wood-frame structures that house more than 700 apartments in the complex. The apartment complex was built in 1966.

Meadow Trace officials called a detec-

Fires Prompt Improvement Of Code, But-

by JAMES VESELY

Saturday's fire which destroyed part of the Meadow Trace apartment complex is the latest in a long history of apartment house fires which have plagued Rolling Meadows in the span of four years, and the latest of four severe fires within two years.

In November, 1966, ten families were evacuated from apartments at Algonquin Park after a fire raged through the basement of the complex. The fire was quickly brought under control by Rolling Meadows firemen but the flames caused apartments above the basement storage area to suffer some damage.

In February, 1969, the first of two fires at the Three Fountains apartment complex on Algonquin Road caused $700,000 damage to the nearly completed structure. According to a man at the scene at the time, the center building of the apartment complex literally exploded in a mass of flames. Cause of the blaze was attributed to an overheated furnace.

The first Three Fountains fire prompted Rolling Meadows officials to consider the purchase of new fire equipment for the city.

In fact, it was during a discussion of new equipment purchase at the city hall that fire struck the King's Walk Apartments at Euclid and Plum Grove Road. Three buildings were destroyed in that fire and one structure was completely razed before firemen could get to the scene. icy winds that night spread the fire and witnesses to the scene said the glow of the blaze could be seen three miles away. King's Walk was also under construction at the time of the fire.

Shortly after the two major fires occurred in February and March, 1969, city officials of Rolling Meadows began a hard look at their fire codes. Local officials admitted then that Rolling Meadows had been designed as a single family residential community and that the local fire code had fallen behind the times.

In April, 1969, city officials took steps to enforce stricter building rules and decreed that new construction would not be allowed to advance above the foundation level until new requirements were added to the fire code.

Then, tragically, more than 100 persons were made homeless in a second major fire at Three Fountains.

In May, 1970, firemen from four suburban departments fought all night to curb flames from a three-story, 48-apartment building at Three Fountains. Although the city of Rolling Meadows had adopted the Building Officials of America fire code (BOCA) by that time, inspection of the remaining Three Fountains buildings showed that the structures had no sprinkler system or fire alarm, fire walls that did not go completely to the roof and less than the number of fire doors recommended by the fire chief.

The Three Fountains fire caused new criticism of the fire codes and their enforcement in the city, and in the summer of 1970, the Rolling Meadows Fire Department issued a booklet to residents of the six major apartment complexes in the city giving instructions what to do in case fire struck.

Although a great deal of emphasis has been placed by Rolling Meadows officials on revising and updating fire codes, Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty said Saturday that the Meadow Trace units were built before the city's fire code was adopted.

Bombard The Enemy... With Letters

Through Project POW, Hoffman Estates Jaycees are planning to literally bombard the government of North Vietnam in Hanoi with letters concerning American prisoners of war, according to Kenneth W. Grachus, chairman of the project.

Local Jaycees, under Grachus' direction, plan to conduct a door-to-door canvass in the village asking residents to sign and mail copies of a letter concerning the issue of prisoners of war.

With assistance from a Chicago newspaper, Hoffman Estates Jaycees were able to obtain Vietnamese translations of their letter which will be individually mailed to Hanoi.

The letter notes that "one of the major obstacles to peace in Southeast Asia has been the issue of prisoners of war."

"The American public and the United States government both are greatly concerned about the safety and well-being of the possibly 1,500 Americans believed to be held prisoner by Communist forces," the letter states, but further explains that only a few prisoners have been able to contact their families through the International Red Cross and other organizations.

"Most Americans feel that a withdrawal of American forces from Southeast Asia — much as that may be desired by both sides — is impossible so long as no meaningful accord on the prisoner of war issue has been reached.

"They feel that short of such accord, a withdrawal of forces would constitute an abandonment of our captured men — something that is unthinkable to most Americans.

"We assume you feel similarly about the nearly 33,000 Communist prisoners of war — including numerous North Vietnamese — currently in the hands of the South Vietnamese," the letter continues.

IT ASKS "in the interest of humanity, as well as in the hope of removing this barrier to fruitful peace negotiations" that an inspection of all POW facilities by members of the International Red Cross be carried out as well as notification of families of all prisoners of war that their loved ones are alive, and finally, pleads for release of mail and gift packages to all POWs.

"Needless to say, all of the above measures would, of course, be reciprocated in full by the South Vietnamese as, indeed, most of them already have," the letter says.

Decision On Plan Is Delayed

practicality of the proposal. The new system would not lend itself to double-shifting, she said, adding double shifting will face the district a "number of years." The system perpetuates itself she said, whether the district is happy with it or not. It would not lend itself to over crowding, she said, and it would limit possible boundary changes between schools to adjust class sizes.

"BUT THE BIG THING that bothers me is cost," Mrs. Hart said. While she has visited schools operating under the new system with the same number of teachers they previously had, the principals told her it was not as effective as they would like, she said. The necessary increases in staff could raise the district cost by 50 per cent, she said, although Schaible and his assistant, Milton Derr, disagreed.

"We have so many problems just with growth, I fail to see how we can take on more," she said.

Board President Gordon Thoren referred to a checklist for schools considering the new system, saying he did not even know what some of the items listed as essentials were. The list was prepared by the research center.

Thoren said he had many unanswered questions, and suggested tabling the proposal to the next meeting, to allow the board to study information it received and administrators time to prepare answers to questions.

'Sales Pitch' Out Of Line

by NANCY COWGER

School administrators in Dist. 54 did not play fair with their board of education Thursday night.

Obviously sold on the benefits of a new system of teaching children, the administrators tried to sell the board in a crash series of movies, pitches by principals and teachers, and a flood of written material.

As Supt. Wayne Schaible, and Milton Derr, assistant superintendent, pointed out, they were not asking the board to adopt the system. But, they did ask for a fairly strong commitment to affiliation with the University of Wisconsin to study the system. They wanted action "right now."

While the system may be good, as the administrators think, they haven't given the board sufficient time and information with which to decide. The administrators have visited several schools using the system, they have been studying it for weeks, and have reviewed much available information.

The board had an introduction to the idea at one meeting and a sales pitch at the next, coupled with a demand for immediate action.

THE ADMINISTRATORS also should seek feedback from teachers and the public before going off full tilt. If either group is unhappy and refuses to cooperate, the system can't work. It is based on cooperative teaching. Unhappy teachers may not cooperate. Angry parents may make uncooperative children.

The need for haste in the action is questionable. Why must it be sped for use in the Hanover Highland School addition with full approval in the next two months. The district is committed to much future building, and implementing the proposal in a later addition or school would allow more groundwork.

Although Schaible and Derr admit the system has not raised children's achievement levels at schools where it is in use, they insist it is essential for good education.

Let them convince the board and us, the public, with facts, instead of demanding we take their word for it.

Three Suspects In Gas Station Holdup Arrested

by CRAIG GAARE

Buffalo Grove police captured three suspects just an hour after a Kenosha, Wis., gas station attendant had been robbed at gunpoint Saturday.

The three, Donald Hass, 17, of 255 MacArthur Dr., Kenneth Huth, 18, of 249 MacArthur Dr. and Alfredo Giacchetti, 19, of 256 MacArthur Dr., all of Northlake were charged with armed robbery by Kenosha County police.

The youths were arrested at Old McHenry Road and Dundee Road in Wheeling with the assistance of Wheeling police.

They were taken to the Lake County Courthouse in Waukegan Saturday for extradition to Wisconsin.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith said village police were notified of the $100 robbery shortly after 6 a.m. Saturday by Wisconsin authorities via radio.

"WE WERE GIVEN the description of the car and the subjects and notified our units," Smith said.

Patrolman Arthur Voigt was stationed at the corner of Buffalo Grove Road and Rte. 83 when he noticed a car fitting the description pass the intersection shortly before 6:30 a.m. He began following the car and radioed Sgt. Frank Harth, who was patrolling in the vicinity of Arlington Heights Road and Rte. 83, for assistance.

The two policemen followed the car and radioed Wheeling police for further assistance. The car was stopped at the corner of Old McHenry Road and Route 88 in Wheeling, where the arrest was made by Harth and Voigt.

The three offered no resistance, according to the two policemen.

"I WENT to the corner of Buffalo Grove Road and Rte. 83, because about four years ago Sgt. Harth had arrested two men who had robbed a tavern in Kenosha and used 83 to return to Illinois," Voigt said.

"They were behind a truck when I started following them. There were two subjects in the front seat and one in the back."

Sgt. Harth said the car wasn't stopped until it reached Wheeling because there wasn't a suitable location on Route 83 to make the arrest. "We like to make the arrest where it's well lighted and where we have enough help," Harth said.

Harth said when he approached the car after it was stopped, he could see coins strewn about the back seat and floor of the car and a manila envelope bearing the name of the gas station which had just been robbed, partly concealed under the back seat.

HE THEN searched the car and found part of a handgun under the back seat of the car. The remaining parts of the gun were found on one of the suspects. Harth recovered $100.41 and two cartons of cigarettes.

Following the arrest, the three were taken to the Buffalo Grove police station where they were photographed and fingerprinted. The Kenosha County police arrived about 10 a.m. Saturday with the robbery victim Thomas Ogden, 21, of Kenosha, and took statements from him, the arresting officers and the three suspects.

Chief Smith praised the policemen who made the arrests. "I would like to publicly commend patrolman Voigt and Sgt. Harth for their work on this case and thank the Wheeling Police Department for their help also."

Victim's 1st Day On Duty

It was the first day on duty for the Kenosha, Wis., gas station attendant who was robbed at gunpoint Saturday morning.

The victim, Thomas Ogden, 21, of Kenosha told the Herald he was working the 10 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift at a Clark gas station at the intersection of Wisconsin Highway 50 and Interstate 90, about 3 miles outside of Kenosha.

Ogden appeared calm, was smoking a cigarette, and reading "In Cold Blood," a book about the murder of a family, while waiting to be interviewed by Kenosha County police at the Buffalo Grove Police station.

"Three men stopped at the station just before 6 a.m. and the driver asked for $5 worth of gas. I gave it to him, he paid me and all three of them got out of the car and went into the station," Ogden said.

"ANOTHER CUSTOMER came and I took care of him. I returned to the station and one of them pulled a gun on me and said 'Can I have your money, sir?'" Thomas went on.

"I gave them the money (about $100) and one of them took the mouthpiece out of the phone so I couldn't call the police and they all left, heading west toward the interstate," Ogden said.

He said two customers stopped at the station about five minutes later and he told them to notify police about the robbery. The customers went to the next gas station and within the hour suspects were taken into custody by Buffalo Grove Police.

Another Apartment Building Fire; None Hurt

Firemen from 10 suburban communities battled for more than four hours Saturday to bring fire under control at a Meadow Trace apartment building in Rolling Meadows.

No injuries were reported from the fire, but residents of 28 apartments in the building were left homeless. Fire broke out about noon in the building located just south of Algonquin Road and west of Rte. 53.

Most of the apartment dwellers were given temporary housing in the Holiday Inn on Algonquin Road by the American Red Cross. Their furniture and other belongings were either destroyed by the fire or scattered in the snow a few feet from the building as smoke that could be seen from a mile away billowed black and high from the structure.

The cause of the blaze is still undetermined.

mined, according to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty. Both the chief and a state fire marshal investigated the scene yesterday.

Fogarty theorized the fire apparently started in the basement of the building. After firemen extinguished the blaze, they worked all night Saturday clearing rubble from the smoldering ruins.

ED BERRY, Meadow Trace assistant manager, was the first to see the fire. "The circuit breakers started popping and smoke started coming through the circuit box and phone box in the office," he said. Berry said he immediately telephoned the fire department and began notifying occupants of the 28 persons in the building to evacuate.

Although there are 32 apartments in the building, only 28 of them were occupied at the time of the fire. Occupants of 26 of the apartments registered with the Red Cross for emergency aid. It's believed residents of the other two apartments were out of town at the time of the fire.

"A little girl and I ran up and down the halls telling people there was a fire," according to Miss Mary Overman, a secretary at Meadow Trace. "I knew it was nothing to mess around with," she said.

The blaze that began in the basement was contained in the western half of the building, but all apartments received water and smoke damage, according to fire officials. There was a boiler room and a washing machine room in the basement. Each tenant also had a locker for personal belongings in the basement.

JOHN BLYTH, Meadow Trace building manager, said the building was probably totally destroyed. "Structurally it is ruined," he said.

The south wall of the building collapsed after firemen had battled the blaze for more than two hours.

Other apartment buildings nearby were not damaged. The unit gutted by fire was one of several identical wood-frame structures that house more than 700 apartments in the complex. The apartment complex was built in 1966.

Meadow Trace officials called a detective agency to guard the furniture that was removed from the building. Saturday night all of the furniture was loaded on trucks for storage.

Some of the tenants of the fire gutted building found temporary lodging and protection from the cold with friends and neighbors. The American Red Cross arranged housing for many of the homeless Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows.

MEADOW TRACE officials said that temporary housing will be provided for the homeless at other apartments in the area.

Representatives of the Salvation Army, Civil Defense, Commonwealth Edison and the Army Nike Base on Central Road were on hand to assist firemen and residents.

This was the first fire that has called for the recently approved mutual aid agreement between 20 Northwestern suburban fire departments. Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Fogarty, who answered the original call, asked for the aid after arriving at the scene of the fire.

Fogarty said the response from the other departments was excellent, and that the agreement "worked out very well." Only a week ago, the first emergency fire drill, involving 18 fire departments, was held at Randhurst Center in Mount Prospect.

Fires Prompt Improvement Of Code, But-

by JAMES VESELY

Saturday's fire which destroyed part of the Meadow Trace apartment complex is the latest in a long history of apartment house fires which have plagued Rolling Meadows in the span of four years, and the latest of four severe fires within two years.

In November, 1966 ten families were evacuated from apartments at Algonquin Park after a fire raged through the basement of the complex. The fire was quickly brought under control by Rolling Meadows firemen but the flames caused apartments above the basement storage area to suffer some damage.

In February, 1969, the first of two fires at the Three Fountains apartment complex on Algonquin Road caused $700,000 damage to the nearly completed structure. According to a man at the scene at the time, the center building of the apartment complex literally exploded in a mass of flames. Cause of the blaze was attributed to an overheated furnace.

The first Three Fountains fire prompted Rolling Meadows officials to consider the purchase of new fire equipment for the city.

In fact, it was during a discussion of new equipment purchase at the city hall that fire struck the King's Walk Apartments at Euclid and Plum Grove Road. Three buildings were destroyed in that fire and one structure was completely razed before firemen could get to the scene. icy winds that night spread the fire and witnesses to the scene said the glow of the blaze could be seen three miles away. King's Walk was also under construction at the time of the fire.

Shortly after the two major fires occurred in February and March, 1969, city officials of Rolling Meadows began a hard look at their fire codes. Local officials admitted then that Rolling Meadows had been designed as a single family residential community and that the local fire code had fallen behind the times.

In April 1969 city officials took steps to enforce stricter building rules and decreed that new construction would not be allowed to advance above the foundation level until new requirements were added to the fire code.

Then, tragically more than 100 persons were made homeless in a second major fire at Three Fountains.

In May 1970 firemen from four suburban departments fought all night to curb flames from a three-story 48-apartment building at Three Fountains. Although the city of Rolling Meadows had adopted the Building Officials of America fire code (BOCA) by that time inspection of the remaining Three Fountains buildings showed that the structures had no sprinkler system or fire alarm fire walls that did not go completely to the roof and less than the number of fire doors recommended by the fire chief.

The Three Fountains fire caused new criticism of the fire codes and their enforcement in the city and in the summer of 1970, the Rolling Meadows Fire Department issued a booklet to residents of the six major apartment complexes in the city giving instructions what to do in case of fire.

Although a great deal of emphasis has been placed by Rolling Meadows officials on revising and updating fire codes, Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty said Saturday that the Meadow Trace units were built before the city's fire code was adopted.

Motorists' Headache: Road Holes

Numerous deep ruts and potholes have reappeared on the northern extension of Arlington Heights Road in Buffalo Grove and are causing trouble for motorists using the black topped road.

One resident, Thomas Fitzgerald reported to police Friday his car hit a pothole causing a blowout. His tire rim was also damaged.

The worst part of the road is from Lake-Cook to Dundee Road in that section, there are many large ruts and potholes several inches deep.

Friday afternoon village employees were filling the holes with cold asphalt patching material.

HAROLD SMITH, Buffalo Grove police chief, said the road was "decaying," and repairs being carried out would only be temporary. "The whole surface has to be replaced including the roadbed itself," Smith said Friday.

Plans have been announced by the state to widen and realign the road at a cost of $1 million. Work, scheduled to begin last July, is connected with the state project to widen Dundee Road through the village.

The village, however, has refused to approve the state's construction plans on the grounds that if the road were to be built to the state's specifications, surrounding areas would flood in a heavy rain.

Village Board To Weigh Plan

Youth Services To Merge?

Wheeling's village board tonight will consider a proposal by three area youth counseling services to combine into one organization and seek a state grant to finance the venture.

The groups TORCH, HELP and the Wheeling Youth Commission, are seeking a grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission to establish a youth services center, encompassing a wide range of counseling and youth activities.

Buffalo Grove's village board endorsed the proposal last Monday. The youth services center would serve Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights.

Richard Wynn, director of the Torch Mental Health Clinic, has estimated that the youth services center will cost between $100,000 and $150,000 per year including staffing and operating expenses.

The ILEC will finance between 60 and 80 per cent of the program for the first year, Wynn said.

AT THE END of the first year, the ILEC would review the program and decide whether to finance it again, Wynn said. However, he said he hoped that by that time the program would be financed by the communities it serves.

The three communities also will have to pay 20 to 40 per cent of the cost for the first-year operations, he said.

"Really, all we are seeking now is endorsement of the program (by Wheeling and Buffalo Grove village boards) because we have to go into subsequent negotiations with the ILEC and we need your endorsement to get the grant from the state," Wynn told Buffalo Grove trustees last week.

Endorsements by the village boards are necessary to obtain state funds.

FUNDS FROM LOCAL sources can come from various sources in addition to village funds, he said.

Buffalo Grove officials voted to endorse the program but did not commit any village funds.

Wynn has estimated that if state approval is granted the program could be implemented by July.

One of the main goals of the program would be the establishment of a teen center to be operated with the cooperation of professional and adult volunteers. Other projects include treatment, counseling and mental health education for troubled youths and their families.

Clay, Paint 'Old Friends' Of Dist. 21 Art Head

Watercolors, modeling clay, woodcuts and ceramics are old friends to Len Presley.

Presley, director of art curriculum for School Dist. 21, works with elementary teachers in developing classroom art programs.

A relative newcomer to the district 21 staff, he joined the district last fall when the school board approved his appointment to the newly-created position.

"We're not interested in developing artists and covering the walls with pretty pictures but in developing an appreciation of art in each student," Presley said.

A busy man, Presley visits as many as five or six schools each week, helping the regular elementary teachers with their art projects, since the district does not have special art teachers at the elementary level but only in the junior high schools.

He also talks to students on art history, illustrating the talks with slides and filmstrips, and conducts teacher art workshops.

PRESLEY'S INVOLVEMENT with art doesn't stop with Dist. 21.

He paints in his free time and has exhibited his work in many art shows, including the annual Randhurst Art Fair at the Randhurst Shopping Center, the Mount Prospect Country Club and the state art show held each year in Springfield. He also teaches an adult art class for Dist. 21.

"People have more and more free time all the time. Many adults are finding that art is a good way to fill the leisure hours," he said.

Presley recalled that as a child, "I was never particularly good in art. And when I first went to college (at Illinois State University) I wanted to go into medicine. But then I took an art course and liked it so I switched over."

He graduated from Illinois State with a B.S. in education, majoring in art, and then went on for an M.S. in art education.

Woman Injured In Two-Car Accident

A Glenview woman was treated and released from Holy Family Hospital last Wednesday night following a two-car accident in Wheeling.

The injured woman, Patricia E. Anderson, 27, was charged by police with failure to yield the right of way at a stop sign. She will appear in Arlington Heights district court, Feb. 16 on the charge.

Damage to her car was estimated at $800 by police and damage to the other car was estimated as $700. The other driver was Paul B. Mellette, 17, of 918 Vera Ln., Wheeling.

The accident occurred on the south side of Dundee Road west of Wheeling Avenue at 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Troop 212 Wins At Klondike Derby

Wheeling Boy Scout Troop 212 won the Top Patrol Award at the Annual Klondike Derby of the North Star District of the Boy Scouts.

More than 400 boys from troops in five northwest suburban communities took part in the activities in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve on Jan. 16.

The members of the winning Wheeling troop were Marty Knutilla, Steve Pierce, Mark Schauer, Jeff Pierce and Dan Schumh. Their scoutmaster is G. E. Gray Jr.

He spent six years with Dist. 54 in Schaumburg, first as an art teacher and then as head of the art department.

THE ART DIRECTOR feels that "Art is a personal thing, it's not cut and dried. Each child in our district has a different set of needs and we try to cater to all of them — crayon and ink drawings, soap sculpture, ceramics, pottery making.

"So many children feel that everything they do must be a success, including their art projects. And if they can't get an 'A' they feel they've failed."

"But the grade isn't so important to me. I think even the less coordinated can enjoy art. Many of the children with learning disabilities (visual, hearing or perceptual handicaps) or EMH (educable mentally handicapped) children can be creative in their own right."

"One of the best pieces of children's work I've ever seen was done by an EMH child. Kids can be so original and creative. They haven't developed the stereotypes that many adults have."

Pool Building Door Gets OK

Wheeling's Park Board approved a $1,910 door to be added to the Neptune's Pool building.

Last Thursday the park board approved installation of the new door after reaching an agreement with pool architects Orput and Orput that the company would pay $300 of the cost of the door.

The door is necessary to bring the pool building up to state standards for use by schools.

Without state approval the pool could not be used by large Wheeling High School classes.

The architect agreed to pay the costs resulting from adding the door after the building was completed because they had not secured approval from the County Schools Superintendent's office before building the pool.

The architects also agreed to forego their commission on the addition of the door.

The door in the pool room will provide an emergency exit.

Close Rte. 53 Exit Onto Rand

The northbound exit ramp from the Rte. 53 expressway onto Rand Road has been closed permanently, state highway division officials said Friday.

Drivers going north on Rte. 53 will now have to exit either at Palatine Road or at Dundee Road.

Original plans for the design of Rte. 53 had called for the closing of temporary ramps at Rand Road once the expressway was extended northward, state officials explained.

The closing of the exit ramp had only been deferred until the signals at Dundee Road were working properly, according to Ted Koczynski, of the highway division's traffic operations department.

Koczynski said one result of the ramp closing will be that the frontage road on the east side of Route 53 (called Wilke Road by Arlington Heights officials) will be open for two-way traffic.

While the frontage road was being used as a temporary exit only northbound traffic could travel on it, he said.

A new development being built in a triangular piece of property along that frontage road is another reason for closing the ramp, Koczynski said. THAT DEVELOPMENT, named Rand Haven Terrace, has received final plan commission approval from the Arlington Heights Plan Commission. Work cannot begin, however, until the Arlington Heights Village board approves the planned development.

The 28-acre plot will include 344 apartment and townhouse units.

Closing the ramp will allow two-way traffic along the west edge of the development.

Koczynski said Friday, however, that the southbound entrance from Rand Road onto the Rte. 53 expressway will remain open "for a while."

Drivers are not yet able to enter Rte. 53 at Dundee Road going southbound, he said, because of efforts to provide the safest flow of traffic in the area.

"It's safer to get onto Rte. 53 from Rand Road than from Dundee Road," he explained.

However, the expressway entrance at Rand will also be closed when construction of the Rte. 53 expressway nears completion, he said.

Suggest Drug 'Crisis Phone'

Installation of a crisis phone for drug users was suggested to the Wheeling Park District board Thursday.

A representative of a group of residents who have banded together under the auspices of School Dist. 214 told park district commissioners that the group would like to use the park district building at 222 S. Wolf Rd. late at night for a phone location.

Dorothy Leimetter, the representative of the group, explained that the small organization is working with staff members from St. Leonard's House, a drug rehabilitation center in Chicago.

Park board members agreed to allow the group to make a written presentation of their plan for the crisis phone at a Feb. 4 committee meeting. A decision will be made on the proposal at the board's Feb. 18 meeting, they said.

Mrs. Leimetter told the park board members that the group had organized "because we feel the drug problem is very bad in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove."

In addition to the proposal for a hotline for drug users the group is also talking of incorporating to get state funds for drug abuse projects or a teen center.

The group is interested in the projects of the combined TORCH, HELP, and the Wheeling Youth commission, but is now working on a smaller, more personal scale than the other three organizations, representatives have said.

The group has been meeting at Wheeling High School.

Swan Lake Project To Be Discussed

Discussion of a planned development project proposed for property directly north of St. Alphonsus Church is slated for tonight's meeting of the Wheeling Village Board.

The proposed 40-acre Swan Lake apartment project on Wheeling Road has been tabled since September hearings at which the zoning board of appeals recommended denial of rezoning for the project.

However, a final decision on the rezoning request lies with the village board.

Problems cited by Prospect Heights residents included traffic problems, getting fire equipment to the project site and a school-park site designation on the proposed project property.

Also on the agenda for tonight's meeting are discussions of proposed rezoning to allow a duplex at 231 S. Wheeling Ave. proposal for outside storage of paper at the Olinkraft Inc. at 1175 Wheeling Rd. will also be discussed.

Pool Rental, Sauna Rate Change OK'd

A new policy on pool rentals and a reduced rate for sauna baths was approved last Thursday night by the Wheeling Park District Board of Commissioners.

Saunas will now cost 75 cents rather than the earlier rate of $1.50, park board members decided.

The rates were lowered to encourage more use of the sauna facilities.

Park board members also amended the district's policy on rentals. In the future rentals will only be allowed beginning at 8:30 p.m. Saturday evenings.

If the pool is not rented for a Saturday evening, open swimming will be available until 10 p.m.

Open swims will always be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on Saturday evenings.

The new pool rental policy will not go into effect until March, however, because of prior rental commitments.

Open swim hours next Saturday will be from 7 to 9 p.m.

There will be no open swim on the evenings of Feb. 6, 13, 20 or 27.

Zoning For 3 Projects To Be Considered

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals today will review proposals to construct a planned development, an office building and a service station that would be built in unincorporated areas.

The zoning board will hold a hearing today at 4 p.m. in the Arlington Heights Municipal Building.

Albert Robm plans to request a special use permit to construct a planned development in unincorporated Wheeling. The development, consisting of 640 bi-level condominium units, is slated for 40.5 acres east of Wolf Road and south of Palatine Road. Robm's land is now zoned for general residences.

An office building has been proposed for the southeast side of the intersection of Palatine and Elmhurst roads in Prospect Heights. Paul F. Sandquist will request rezoning to general business for three-fourths of an acre now zoned for single-family residences. The land is held in trust by the Chicago Title and Trust Co.

Fred and Hilda Kolze will request rezoning from single-family residence to restricted service district for an acre they own on the northwest corner of Rand Road and Waterman Avenue. Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel will appear at the hearing. The village now is preparing a long-range plan for Rand Road.

THREE NORTHLAKE youths were taken to court Saturday afternoon after they were arrested by Buffalo Grove Police in connection with an armed robbery of a gas station in Kenosha, Wis. earlier

Three Suspects In Gas Station Holdup Arrested

by CRAIG GAARE

Buffalo Grove police captured three suspects just an hour after a Kenosha, Wis., gas station attendant had been robbed at gunpoint Saturday.

The three, Donald Hass, 17, of 255 MacArthur Dr., Kenneth Huth, 18, of 249 MacArthur Dr. and Alfredo Giacchetti, 19, of 256 MacArthur Dr. j, all of Northlake were charged with armed robbery by Kenosha County police.

The youths were arrested at Old McHenry Road and Dundee Road in Wheeling with the assistance of Wheeling police.

They were taken to the Lake County Courthouse in Waukegan Saturday for extradition to Wisconsin.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith said village police were notified of the $100 robbery shortly after 6 a.m. Saturday by Wisconsin authorities via radio.

"WE WERE GIVEN the description of the car and the subjects and notified our units," Smith said.

Patrolman Arthur Voigt was stationed at the corner of Buffalo Grove Road and Rte. 83 when he noticed a car fitting the description pass the intersection shortly before 6:30 a.m. He began following the car and radioed Sgt. Frank Harth, who was patrolling in the vicinity of Arlington Heights Road and Rte. 83, for assistance.

The two policemen followed the car and radioed Wheeling police for further assistance. The car was stopped at the corner of Old McHenry Road and Route 68 in Wheeling, where the arrest was made by Harth and Voigt.

The three offered no resistance, according to the two policemen.

"I WENT TO the corner of Buffalo Grove Road and Rte. 83, because about four years ago Sgt. Harth had arrested two men who had robbed a tavern in Kenosha and used 83 to return to Illinois," Voigt said.

"They were behind a truck when I started following them. There were two subjects in the front seat and one in the back."

Sgt. Harth said the car wasn't stopped until it reached Wheeling because there wasn't a suitable location on Route 83 to make the arrest. "We like to make the arrest where it's well lighted and where we have enough help," Harth said.

Harth said when he approached the car after it was stopped, he could see coins strewn about the back seat and floor of the car and a manila envelope bearing the name of the gas station which had just been robbed, partly concealed under the back seat.

HE THEN searched the car and found part of a handgun under the back seat of the car. The remaining parts of the gun were found on one of the suspects. Harth recovered $100.41 and two cartons of cigarettes.

Following the arrest, the three were taken to the Buffalo Grove police station where they were photographed and fingerprinted. The Kenosha County police arrived about 10 a.m. Saturday with the robbery victim Thomas Ogden, 21, of Kenosha, and took statements from him. The arresting officers and the three suspects.

Chief Smith praised the policemen who made the arrests. "I would like to publicly commend patrolman Voigt and Sgt. Harth for their work on this case and thank the Wheeling Police Department for their help also."

Victim's 1st Day On Duty

It was the first day on duty for the Kenosha, Wis., gas station attendant who was robbed at gunpoint Saturday morning.

The victim, Thomas Ogden, 21, of Kenosha told the Herald he was working the 10 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift at a Clark gas station at the intersection of Wisconsin Highway 50 and Interstate 90, about 3 miles outside of Kenosha.

Ogden appeared calm, was smoking a cigarette, and reading "In Cold Blood," a book about the murder of a family, while waiting to be interviewed by Kenosha County police at the Buffalo Grove Police station.

"Three men stopped at the station just before 6 a.m. and the driver asked for $5 worth of gas. I gave it to him, he paid me and all three of them got out of the car and went into the station," Ogden said.

"ANOTHER CUSTOMER came and I took care of him. I returned to the station and one of them pulled a gun on me and said 'Can I have your money, sir?'" Thomas went on.

"I gave them the money (about $100) and one of them took the mouthpiece out of the phone so I couldn't call the police and they all left, heading west toward the interstate," Ogden said.

He said two customers stopped at the station about five minutes later and he told them to notify police about the robbery. The customers went to the next gas station and within the hour suspects were taken into custody by Buffalo Grove Police.

Another Apartment Building Fire; None Hurt

Firemen from 10 suburban communities battled for more than four hours Saturday to bring fire under control at a Meadow Trace apartment building in Rolling Meadows.

No injuries were reported from the fire, but residents of 28 apartments in the building were left homeless. Fire broke out about noon in the building located just south of Algonquin Road and west of Rte. 53.

Most of the apartment dwellers were given temporary housing in the Holiday Inn on Algonquin Road by the American Red Cross. Their furniture and other belongings were either destroyed by the fire or scattered in the snow a few feet from the building as smoke that could be seen from a mile away billowed black and high from the structure.

The cause of the blaze is still undetermined.

mined, according to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty. Both the chief and a state fire marshal investigated the scene yesterday.

Fogarty theorized the fire apparently started in the basement of the building. After firemen extinguished the blaze, they worked all night Saturday clearing rubble from the smoldering ruins.

ED BERRY, Meadow Trace assistant manager, was the first to see the fire. "The circuit breakers started popping and smoke started coming through the circuit box and phone box in the office," he said. Berry said he immediately telephoned the fire department and began notifying occupants of the 28 persons in the building to evacuate.

Although there are 32 apartments in the building, only 28 of them were occupied at the time of the fire. Occupants of 26 of the apartments registered with the Red Cross for emergency aid. It's believed residents of the other two apartments were out of town at the time of the fire.

"A little girl and I ran up and down the halls telling people there was a fire," according to Miss Mary Overman, a secretary at Meadow Trace. "I knew it was nothing to mess around with," she said.

The blaze that began in the basement was contained in the western half of the building, but all apartments received water and smoke damage, according to fire officials. There was a boiler room and a washing machine room in the basement. Each tenant also had a locker for personal belongings in the basement.

JOHN BLYTH, Meadow Trace building manager, said the building was probably totally destroyed. "Structurally it is ruined," he said.

The south wall of the building col-

was removed from the building. Saturday night all of the furniture was loaded on trucks for storage.

Some of the tenants of the fire gutted building found temporary lodging and protection from the cold with friends and neighbors. The American Red Cross arranged housing for many of the homeless Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows.

MEADOW TRACE officials said that temporary housing will be provided for the homeless at other apartments in the area.

Representatives of the Salvation Army, Civil Defense, Commonwealth Edison and the Army Nike Base on Central Road were on hand to assist firemen and residents.

This was the first fire that has called for the recently approved mutual aid agreement between 20 Northwestern suburban fire departments. Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Fogarty, who answered the original call, asked for the aid after arriving at the scene of the fire.

Fogarty said the response from the other departments was excellent, and that the agreement "worked out very well." Only a week ago, the first emergency fire drill, involving 16 fire departments, was held at Randhurst Center in Mount Prospect.

Other apartment buildings nearby were not damaged. The unit gutted by fire was one of several identical wood-frame structures that house more than 700 apartments in the complex. The apartment complex was built in 1966.

Meadow Trace officials called a detective agency to guard the furniture that

Fires Prompt Improvement Of Code, But-

by JAMES VESELY

Saturday's fire which destroyed part of the Meadow Trace apartment complex is the latest in a long history of apartment house fires which have plagued Rolling Meadows in the span of four years, and the latest of four severe fires within two years.

In November, 1966, ten families were evacuated from apartments at Algonquin Park after a fire raged through the basement of the complex. The fire was quickly brought under control by Rolling Meadows firemen but the flames caused apartments above the basement storage area to suffer some damage.

In February, 1968, the first of two fires at the Three Fountains apartment complex on Algonquin Road caused $700,000 damage to the nearly completed structure. According to a man at the scene at the time, the center building of the apartment complex literally exploded in a mass of flames. Cause of the blaze was attributed to an overheated furnace.

The first Three Fountains fire prompted Rolling Meadows officials to consider the purchase of new fire equipment for the city.

In fact, it was during a discussion of new equipment purchase at the city hall that fire struck the King's Walk Apartments at Euclid and Plum Grove Road. Three buildings were destroyed in that fire and one structure was completely razed before firemen could get to the scene. icy winds that night spread the fire and witnesses to the scene said the glow of the blaze could be seen three miles away. King's Walk was also under construction at the time of the fire.

Shortly after the two major fires occurred in February and March, 1969, city officials of Rolling Meadows began a hard look at their fire codes. Local officials admitted then that Rolling Meadows had been designed as a single family residential community and that the local fire code had fallen behind the times.

In April, 1969, city officials took steps to enforce stricter building rules and decreed that new construction would not be allowed to advance above the foundation level until new requirements were added to the fire code.

Then, tragically, more than 100 persons were made homeless in a second major fire at Three Fountains.

In May, 1970, firemen from four suburban departments fought all night to curb flames from a three-story, 48-apartment building at Three Fountains. Although the city of Rolling Meadows had adopted the Building Officials of America fire code (BOCA) by that time, inspection of the remaining Three Fountains buildings showed that the structures had no sprinkler system or fire alarm, fire walls that did not go completely to the roof and less than the number of fire doors recommended by the fire chief.

The Three Fountains fire caused new criticism of the fire codes and their enforcement in the city, and in the summer of 1970, the Rolling Meadows Fire Department issued a booklet to residents of the six major apartment complexes in the city giving instructions what to do in case fire struck.

Although a great deal of emphasis has been placed by Rolling Meadows officials on revising and updating fire codes, Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty said Saturday that the Meadow Trace units were built before the city's fire code was adopted.

Motorists' Headache: Road Holes

Numerous deep ruts and potholes have reappeared on the northern extension of Arlington Heights Road in Buffalo Grove and are causing trouble for motorists using the black topped road.

One resident, Thomas Fitzgerald, reported to police Friday, his car hit a pothole, causing a blowout. His tire rim was also damaged.

The worst part of the road is from Lake-Cook to Dundee Road, in that section, there are many large ruts and potholes several inches deep.

Friday afternoon village employees were filling the holes with cold asphalt patching material.

HAROLD SMITH, Buffalo Grove police chief, said the road was "decaying," and repairs being carried out would only be temporary. "The whole surface has to be replaced, including the roadbed itself," Smith said Friday.

Plans have been announced by the state to widen and realign the road at a cost of $1 million. Work, scheduled to begin last July, is connected with the state project to widen Dundee Road through the village.

The village, however, has refused to approve the state's construction plans on the grounds that if the road were to be built to the state's specifications, surrounding areas would flood in a heavy rain.

"BUHNY" came to school with his master, Bill Malicki, Wednesday, when first graders at Mark Twain School in Wheeling brought their pets to school and set up a "pet store." The project was part of a class lesson in learning about various occupations. Before the pet store was opened, the youngsters heard an employee from a local pet store talk about running a pet shop.

Parents Feel Kids Need Drug Use 'Crisis Phone'

"We've got to have a crisis phone into this community. These kids need help."

"I know a man who says he would beat his kid if he ever caught him using drugs. This strikes me as a ridiculous attitude."

The speakers were part of a small group of parents and community residents, who gathered together Wednesday evening at Wheeling High School to discuss drug abuse.

The session, conducted in seminar fashion around a table in the high school counseling office, was led by Wheeling High School counselors and staff members from St. Leonard's House, a drug rehabilitation center in Chicago.

The sessions were made possible when Dist. 214 last year appropriated funds for drug abuse seminars for counselors, students and adults at all six Dist. 214 high schools.

The main topic in the three-hour session was the need for drug abuse projects in the community. Participants talked about establishing a crisis phone where persons with a drug problem can call for help — a youth center, or a communications center to provide emergency help for persons with drug trouble.

NORMAN ORR, director of research at St. Leonard's pointed out the group "has no plans to duplicate the efforts of HELP," another local group which is also attempting to do something about the drug abuse problem in the area.

"We are smaller, more interpersonal, than HELP," he stated, adding the seminar participants are nevertheless interested in HELP's activities.

Several of those in the seminar plan to attend the Wheeling Village Board meeting on Jan. 25, when a joint proposal to aid youth will be outlined by representatives of HELP, the Wheeling Youth Commission and the TORCH Mental Health Clinic.

A lawyer from St. Leonard's discussed the possibilities of incorporation as a non-profit organization, which would allow them to receive grants for drug abuse projects.

He said "seed" money from the state Department of Mental Health might be obtained to finance the renting of a local building for a teen center.

He added incorporation would be necessary if the group decided it would like to pursue this project.

SEVERAL SEMINAR participants said they plan to look into the possibility of obtaining a building in the Wheeling area for a teen center. Others are looking for a local lawyer to discuss with them the possibilities of incorporating the group.

"We're kicking around a lot of ideas," commented Wheeling High School counselor Doris Deaton afterwards.

"We've been having these open-ended discussions since December among people that share the common concerns and problems of drug abuse. We hope that from these meetings we can strengthen ourselves and our community and formulate some goals about what we can contribute toward solving the problems."

She explained that a group of 12 Wheeling High School students meets in similar sessions once a week at the high school with the St. Leonard's staff.

These sessions are more personal. The students aren't discussing starting any community action programs, as is the adult group.

The last of the current set of adult seminar sessions will be on Feb. 10. After that, a new set will start with new participants.

"After that last meeting, they'll go off on their own and disband, or join another group or start their own projects. I think they'll try to start some projects of their own," Miss Deaton said.

He added that the idea to form a civil defense commission is being considered because "all of the applicants were so strong in qualifications."

Buffalo Grove has been without a civil defense director since last June when Village Mgr. Richard Decker was fired. He also was Civil defense director.

Clay, Paint 'Old Friends' Of Dist. 21 Art Head

Watercolors, modeling clay, woodcuts and ceramics are old friends to Len Presley.

Presley, director of art curriculum for School Dist. 21, works with elementary teachers in developing classroom art programs.

A relative newcomer to the district 21 staff, he joined the district last fall when the school board approved his appointment to the newly-created position.

"We're not interested in developing artists and covering the walls with pretty pictures but in developing an appreciation of art in each student," Presley said.

A busy man, Presley visits as many as five or six schools each week, helping the regular elementary teachers with their art projects, since the district does not have special art teachers at the elementary level but only in the junior high schools.

He also talks to students on art history, illustrating the talks with slides and filmstrips, and conducts teacher art workshops.

PRESLEY'S INVOLVEMENT with art doesn't stop with Dist. 21. He paints in his free time and has exhibited his work in many art shows, including the annual Randhurst Art Fair at the Randhurst Shopping Center, the Mount Prospect Country Club and the state art show held each year in Springfield. He also teaches an adult art class for Dist. 211.

"People have more and more free time all the time. Many adults are finding that art is a good way to fill the leisure hours," he said.

Presley recalled that as a child, "I was never particularly good in art. And when I first went to college (at Illinois State University) I wanted to go into medicine. But then I took an art course and liked it so I switched over."

He graduated from Illinois State with a B.S. in education, majoring in art, and then went on for an M.S. in art education.

Woman Injured In Two-Car Accident

A Glenview woman was treated and released from Holy Family Hospital last Wednesday night following a two car accident in Wheeling.

The injured woman, Patricia E. Anderson, 27, was charged by police with failure to yield the right of way at a stop sign. She will appear in Arlington Heights district court, Feb. 16 on the charge.

Damage to her car was estimated at $800 by police and damage to the other car was estimated as $700. The other driver was Paul B. Mellette, 17, of 918 Vera Ln., Wheeling.

The accident occurred on the south side of Dundee Road west of Wheeling Avenue at 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Troop 212 Wins At Klondike Derby

Wheeling Boy Scout Troop 212 won the Top Patrol Award at the Annual Klondike Derby of the North Star District of the Boy Scouts.

More than 400 boys from troops in five northwest suburban communities took part in the activities in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve on Jan. 16.

The members of the winning Wheeling troop were Marty Knutilla, Steve Pierce, Mark Schauer, Jeff Pierce and Dan Schumbl. Their scoutmaster is G. E. Gray Jr.

He spent six years with Dist. 54 in Schaumburg, first as an art teacher and then as head of the art department.

"So many children feel that everything they do must be a success, including their art projects. And if they can't get an 'A' they feel they've failed.

"But the grade isn't so important to me. I think even the less coordinated can enjoy art. Many of the children with learning disabilities (visual, hearing or perceptual handicaps) or EMH (educable mentally handicapped) children can be creative in their own right.

"One of the best pieces of children's work I've ever seen was done by an EMH child. Kids can be so original and creative. They haven't developed the stereotypes that many adults have."

Pool Building Door Gets OK

Wheeling's Park Board approved a $1,910 door to be added to the Neptune's Pool building.

Last Thursday the park board approved installation of the new door after reaching an agreement with pool architects Orput and Orput that the company would pay $800 of the cost of the door.

The door is necessary to bring the pool building up to state standards for use by schools.

Without state approval the pool could not be used by large Wheeling High School classes.

The architect agreed to pay the costs resulting from adding the door after the building was completed because they had not secured approval from the County Schools Superintendent's office before building the pool.

The architects also agreed to forego their commission on the addition of the door.

The door in the pool room will provide an emergency exit.

emotions about modern art.

"Some of these modern artists are pulling the wool over people's eyes. Here we teach discipline in design. You wonder if some of these artists know about discipline when you see something slapped together with no rhyme or reason. I think the works that have some discipline behind them will last. But time will be the judge of that. "Art isn't a thrill. It's a reflection of the times and the culture of the period. It isn't a coincidence that the violence in today's society is reflected in our art."

Zoning For 3 Projects To Be Considered

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals today will review proposals to construct a planned development, an office building and a service station that would be built in unincorporated areas.

The zoning board will hold a hearing today at 4 p.m. in the Arlington Heights Municipal Building.

Albert Robin plans to request a special use permit to construct a planned development in unincorporated Wheeling. The development, consisting of 640 bi-level condominium units, is slated for 40.5 acres east of Wolf Road and south of Palatine Road. Robin's land is now zoned for general residences.

An office building has been proposed for the southeast side of the intersection of Palatine and Elmhurst roads in Prospect Heights. Paul F. Sandquist will request rezoning to general business for three-fourths of an acre now zoned for single-family residences. The land is held in trust by the Chicago Title and Trust Co.

Fred and Hilda Kolze will request rezoning from single-family residence to restricted service district for an acre they own on the northwest corner of Rand Road and Waterman Avenue. Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel will appear at the hearing. The village now is preparing a long-range plan for Rand Road.

Close Rte. 53 Exit Ramp To Rand Road

The northbound exit ramp from the Rte. 53 expressway onto Rand Road has been closed permanently, state highway division officials said Friday.

Drivers going north on Rte. 53 will now have to exit either at Palatine Road or at Dundee Road.

Original plans for the design of Rte. 53 had called for the closing of temporary ramps at Rand Road once the expressway was extended northward, state officials explained.

The closing of the exit ramp had only been deferred until the signals at Dundee Road were working properly, according to Ted Kopczynski, of the highway division's traffic operations department.

Kopczynski said one result of the ramp closing will be that the frontage road on the east side of Route 53 (called Wilke Road by Arlington Heights officials) will be open for two-way traffic.

While the frontage road was being used as a temporary exit only northbound traffic could travel on it, he said.

A new development being built in a triangular piece of property along that frontage road is another reason for closing the ramp, Kopczynski said.

THAT DEVELOPMENT, named Randhaven Terrace, has received final plan commission approval from the Arlington Heights Plan Commission. Work cannot begin, however, until the Arlington Heights Village board approves the planned development.

The 28-acre plot will include 344 apartment and townhouse units.

Closing the ramp will allow two-way traffic along the west edge of the development.

Kopczynski said Friday, however, that the southbound entrance from Rand Road onto the Rte. 53 expressway will remain open "for a while."

Drivers are not yet able to enter Rte. 53 at Dundee Road going southbound, he said, because of efforts to provide the safest flow of traffic in the area.

"It's safer to get onto Rte. 53 from Rand Road than from Dundee Road," he explained.

However the expressway entrance at Rand will also be closed when construction of the Rte. 53 expressway nears completion, he said.

Civil Defense Post Interviews Tonight

Buffalo Grove village trustees will interview the final two candidates for the post of village Civil Defense director in an executive session at tonight's board meeting.

The trustees will also consider a proposal to establish a civil defense commission, rather than appointing a director.

Village Pres. Donald Thompson said a final decision to appoint a director or create a commission will not be made until all the applicants for the director's job have been interviewed.

He added that the idea to form a civil defense commission is being considered because "all of the applicants were so strong in qualifications."

Buffalo Grove has been without a civil defense director since last June when Village Mgr. Richard Decker was fired. He also was Civil defense director.

Meadow Trace Building Guttured -- None Injured

Firemen from 10 suburban communities battled for more than four hours Saturday to bring fire under control at a Meadow Trace apartment building in Rolling Meadows.

Saturday's fire which destroyed part of the Meadow Trace apartment complex is the latest in a long history of apartment house fires which have plagued Rolling Meadows in the span of four years, and the latest of four severe fires within two years.

Last Step For Pebble Creek Annex Expected

The final step in making the annexation of the Pebble Creek Golf Course to Palatine official, is expected tonight.

The Palatine Village Board will vote on a revised annexation agreement recently reached between village officials and the developer of the 66-acre site at Baldwin and Hicks roads.

A $30 million high-rise apartment complex and a large (26-acre) commercial district are planned for that location by Sellsberg Inc., a Park Ridge developer.

A week ago, following months of negotiations, the village board approved an annexation agreement which set conditions for annexation which the developer did not accept in total.

Subsequently, a modified agreement between Mayor John L. Moodie and James Sellsberg, vice president of the corporation, was reached last Thursday.

Tonight, the board will vote on that revised agreement at 8 p.m. in the Village Hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

BASICALLY, THE agreement calls for four, 13-story buildings, housing 1,000 units on a 40-acre site, and a commercial district bordering Northwest Highway on a 26-acre site.

Sellsberg wanted to build 14-story structures with a density of 1,180. He agreed to accept the latter terms however, providing he is allowed to build a 14th floor on top of one wing of each of the four buildings. The additional story, bringing the buildings to a total height of 140 feet, will house a private club for apartment dwellers.

Preceding this agreement with Palatine, Sellsberg was seeking permission to build under Cook County regulations and an unincorporated status.

He has zoning from the county and permission to build and operate a sewage treatment plant and private wells on the site. But he does not have the Illinois Commerce Commission's certification to sell the utilities.

Friday, an ICC hearing was continued to Feb. 16 by Grant Nordstedt, hearing examiner, who said any further proceedings will depend on the outcome of the annexation vote tonight. "It would be senseless for the ICC to go on with these hearings if an annexation is reached," he said.

The first in a series of four meetings on natural feeding by a new mother, arranged by the La Leche League, was held recently. The next three meetings in the series will cover all aspects of the breast feeding of infants.

According to the La Leche League some of the advantages of breast feeding to the baby are that breastmilk is a superior infant food. It is easily digested by the baby because it forms a smaller curd in the stomach and is almost completely absorbed into the baby's system. It cannot be duplicated as all the ingredients in breast milk are not known.

There is no fear of contamination as breast milk affords natural protection against infection in the babies' mouth and in his intestinal tract. It promotes the growth of beneficial bacteria in the intestine which produce an environment unfavorable for the growth of harmful bacteria which may cause diarrhea. Complete breastfeeding for four to six months with late introduction of solids helps to protect the baby against allergies according to discussion at the La Leche meeting.

IT WAS ALSO brought out during the meeting that because less energy is required for the baby to digest his food, his energy is conserved for better growth of this brain and body — an important consideration during the early months, when the rate of growth is far greater than at any other period of his life.

An advantage to the mother is that nursing could help avoid breast cancer. Another bonus is the gift of time not spent in preparing, sterilizing, warming, cooling and cleaning up after formula. This is particularly great in the middle of the night. Then too, the mother also has complete freedom of movement for family trips and excursions, since nature provides the milk supply.

There is also a saving in money. One mother once figured that six months formula and baby food equaled the price of that length of time.

LaLeche tries to encourage good "mothering" not only to the mother who decides to breastfeed, but also in the mother who decides to bottlefeed. "Mothering" that includes not only feeding the baby but keeping him warm and comfortable, soothing his feelings of fear or anger, and letting him develop at his own pace. It means accepting the child for what he is... a helpless baby, not a miniature adult.

Anyone interested in knowing more about the LaLeche League contact Mrs. Kenneth Jacobs, 257 N. Benton, 353-3623.

MRS. RICHARD WILSON of Paddock PTA has arranged a program in a unique manner — there'll be a matinee and an evening session, each with the same speakers. This will eliminate the excuse: if only it were in the afternoon.

This evening, at 7:45 p.m. Emerson Thomas will discuss the "Community Aspect of Drugs." Mrs. Florence Anderson, Palatine Township Committee youth worker will be available to discuss her experiences and to answer questions. A repeat program will be held at Paddock School at 1:30 p.m. on Jan. 28.

On Feb. 9 at 7:45 p.m., and again on Feb. 10 at 1:30 p.m. at Paddock school, Sgt. Gordon Mosby, of the Palatine Police Department, and a local attorney, Harrington Pierce, will discuss the "Legal Aspect of Drugs." Again the meetings are open to the public.

Mini-Course Survives 'Sneak Preview'

To find out what public reaction will be toward a new movie, the theaters in downtown Chicago hold sneak previews and let the audience rate what they saw.

If the movie gets a good reaction, it will get a good booking when it is officially released. If reaction is bad, the film may start at local theaters as the second half of a double feature.

This same system was tried at Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows, from Jan. 4 to 15. Instead of a movie, the school was trying out something different in the way of education called the mini-course.

According to Sacred Heart Principal Len Baenan, both the faculty and students declared the mini-course program a success.

As a result, the program will be held again next year for one week only, but two or three times during the school year.

TEACHERS AT Sacred Heart have said the mini-course program opened up new insights concerning education, students, teaching in general, and the learning process. They and the students agreed the period the courses were taught were the most enjoyable have ever spent in school.

There were many courses that proved popular. Because of student and faculty interest, the Educational Seminar and the International Cooking courses will be continued into the second semester, which began last week.

Drug Use and Abuse was another popular course. About 187 students signed up for it, but only 51 took it. Several stu-

Firm Plans Homes Around Airstrip

by JIM HODL

While current suburbs are built around the automobile, a new suburb being planned by a Palatine corporation will be built around the airplane.

DNT, Inc., 537 Echo Ln., Palatine, is planning to develop a new subdivision near Hampshire, 12 miles west of Elgin.

President of DNT, Don DeBolt, said the subdivision will be like most new communities being built today, except that in the center of the community will be an airstrip.

DNT is selling lots along the airstrip, which the company is building. When buying a lot, the owner will build his own house. In all, DNT will be selling 45 lots ranging from three-quarters to one acre each, DeBolt said. They will sell from $12,000 to $14,000 each.

All lots will be next to the landing strip, DeBolt explained. When a person builds his home on the lot he buys, he can attach an air hanger to his house like most suburbanites do with garages for their car.

In buying a lot, DeBolt said, a person also buys stock in Casa de Aero, Inc., a company DNT set up to own the airstrip. This makes the resident partial owner of the airstrip.

DeBOLT EXPLAINED that this type of land development project is not for everybody. While the company will sell lots to people who do not own airplanes, he said the property will appeal mainly to air enthusiasts.

DNT selected the location for the subdivision because it was suited for this kind of development. In building a new airstrip, one must consider O'Hare Airport. The developers had to consider the inverted pyramid where most of the O'Hare traffic will congregate. The Hampshire site is many miles away from this busy zone, even at 5,000 feet up.

DNT also had to get a special use permit to build the airstrip, DeBolt said. In Kane County, where the strip is located, one has the land zoned for farming and then applies for a special use permit.

DeBolt feels that there is a need for such a subdivision among airplane enthusiasts. Flying, as a hobby, is time consuming, he said. After a person comes home from work and wants to work on his hobby, he has to travel many miles to a country airport.

In recent years, the number of private airstrips in the Chicago metropolitan area have been decreasing. By buying a lot and building a home in the DNT development, a person can work on his hobby right in his own backyard. After spending a day in the office, a commuter can drive home and go flying for an hour, he said.

WHEN DeBOLT IS NOT working for DNT, he is an airline pilot for American Airlines. He flies on Monday and Tuesday and spends the west of the weekdays working on DNT.

Other executives with DNT are also airline pilots. Vice president Ed Nunby works for American and Don Taylor. DNT's secretary is employed by United Air Lines.

Taylor is also vice president of the Experimental Aircraft Association.

When setting up DNT, the company located its headquarters in DeBolt's home in Palatine. DeBolt points out that DNT stands for the first initials of the three head executives of the corporation.

DeBolt said that a subdivision built around an airstrip is nothing new. There are similar developments in California, Ohio and Pennsylvania. In the Chicago area, such subdivisions exist near Downers Grove and Naperville.

Hampshire's subdivision may be one of a kind for DNT, DeBolt said. However, DNT may build another depending on how the Hampshire project goes.

TWO AIRLINE PILOTS Don Taylor and Don DeBolt are secretary and president respectively of DNT, Inc., a company developing a subdivision built around an airstrip. Both examine plans for the project, which will be built near Hampshire, a small community in Kane County, west of Elgin.

Urge Parks Merger Probe

Members of the Salt Creek Rural Park Board suggested that the Arlington Heights Park Board start doing some homework on the possibilities of a merging of portions of the two park districts.

During a joint meeting held by the two boards last week, members of the rural park board stated that Arlington Heights board members should contact two other park districts about a splitting of the rural park district. The other two park districts are Rolling Meadows and Palatine.

Arlington Heights Park Board will also be preparing some type of proposal about what the district could offer to residents of the rural park district.

Arlington Heights has been interested in annexing a portion of the rural park district which includes Arlington Heights Race Track. The track was annexed by the village, a separate taxing body, but could not be annexed by the park district because the track was already within the boundaries of Salt Creek Rural Park District.

Salt Creek's jurisdiction includes the race track and two other parcels of land. One parcel is bordered by Northwest Highway, Palatine Road, Wilke Road and Rohlwing Road. The other parcel is bounded by Rohlwing and Kirchhoff roads, Route 53 and Euclid Street.

If the Arlington Heights Park District did annex a portion of the district, it would divide the rural park district in two parcels. These parcels could logically be annexed by Palatine and Rolling Meadows park districts.

During the joint meeting between the Salt Creek Rural and the Arlington Heights park boards, members of the rural park board said they would not take any formal action on any annexation questions until they had consulted extensively with residents of the district. Rural park board members stressed that no decision could be made until a complete study of the advantages and disadvantages had been made.

Members of the Arlington Heights Park Board agreed to contact the Rolling Meadows and Palatine Park Districts and to begin preparing a proposal of what Arlington Heights could offer to residents of the areas to be annexed.

Meeting Set Thursday On Flooding

John Guillou, head of the Illinois Division of Highways, will discuss flooding problems with Winston Park residents Thursday.

Clayton Brown, village trustee who arranged for Guillou's visit, said the meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the basement of St. Thomas of Villanova school, located at Anderson and Williams Drive.

Both Brown and Guillou will present plans designed to alleviate serious and recurrent flooding problems which Salt Creek has caused area residents over the years.

Guillou is expected to discuss the possibility of expediting work on the new culvert planned for the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks underpass.

JOHN SNOWDEN, president of the Winston Park Homeowners Association, said 317 residents signed petitions sent to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie in an effort to speed up the state's construction schedule to have the culvert completed in time to handle spring flooding.

Guillou said the new 10 by 13-foot structure, which is being funded by a $650,000 state appropriation, could be partially completed to handle the bulk of flood waters by May.

It will replace an inadequate structure which the railroad built around the turn of the century, and which has been singled out by state and local officials as being the major source of Winston Park flooding problems.

Clayton Brown said he will also present plans the village has to supplement the state's work to ensure a total relief of flooding problems.

He said the planning and public works committee of the village board asked Walter Hodel, village engineer, to prepare a plan which will accomplish this. The plan has been completed and will be presented by Brown Thursday night.

HODEL HAS recommended the installation of new storm sewer lines from Rohlwing Road to Virginia Lake. The pipeline would pick up storm water from Units 3 and 4 of Winston Park and help stop flooding at the Williams Drive and Baldwin Road intersection.

Brown said the proposed system would also relieve the existing storm drainage system in this area, which experienced some of the worst flooding in Palatine's history last summer.

Timetables for construction, preliminary cost estimates and more details of the plan will be made available by Brown on Thursday.

The meeting will be open to the general public and residents outside of Winston Park have been invited to attend.

THE FOURTH major apartment fire within two years in Rolling Meadows erupted Saturday and brought firemen from 10 suburban departments to the blaze. Fire at Meadow Trace Apartments caused an estimated $250,000 damage and displaced 32 families. Officials are still investigating the cause of the fire.

Meadow Trace Building Guttled -- None Injured

Firemen from 10 suburban communities battled for more than four hours Saturday to bring fire under control at a Meadow Trace apartment building in Rolling Meadows.

No injuries were reported from the fire, but residents of 28 apartments in the building were left homeless. Fire broke out about noon in the building located just south of Algonquin Road and west of Rte. 53.

Most of the apartment dwellers were given temporary housing in the Holiday Inn on Algonquin Road by the American Red Cross. Their furniture and other belongings were either destroyed by the fire or scattered in the snow a few feet from the building as smoke that could be seen from a mile away billowed black and high from the structure.

The cause of the blaze is still undetermined, according to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty. Both the chief and a state fire marshal investigated the scene yesterday.

Fogarty theorized the fire apparently started in the basement of the building. After firemen extinguished the blaze, they worked all night Saturday clearing rubble from the smoldering ruins.

ED BERRY, Meadow Trace assistant manager, was the first to see the fire. "The circuit breakers started popping and smoke started coming through the circuit box and phone box in the office," he said. Berry said he immediately telephoned the fire department and began notifying occupants of the 28 persons in the building to evacuate.

Although there are 32 apartments in the building, only 28 of them were occupied at the time of the fire. Occupants of 26 of the apartments registered with the Red Cross for emergency aid. It's believed residents of the other two apartments were out of town at the time of the fire.

"A little girl and I ran up and down the halls telling people there was a fire," according to Miss Mary Overman, a secretary at Meadow Trace. "I knew it was nothing to mess around with," she said.

The blaze that began in the basement was contained in the western half of the building, but all apartments received water and smoke damage, according to fire officials. There was a boiler room and a washing machine room in the basement. Each tenant also had a locker for personal belongings in the basement.

JOHN BLYTH, Meadow Trace building manager, said the building was probably totally destroyed. "Structurally it is ruined," he said.

The south wall of the building collapsed after firemen had battled the blaze for more than two hours.

Other apartment buildings nearby were not damaged. The unit gutted by fire was one of several identical wood-frame structures that house more than 700 apartments in the complex. The apartment complex was built in 1966.

Meadow Trace officials called a detective agency to guard the furniture that was removed from the building. Saturday night all of the furniture was loaded on trucks for storage.

Some of the tenants of the fire gutted building found temporary lodging and protection from the cold with friends and neighbors. The American Red Cross arranged housing for many of the homeless Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows.

MEADOW TRACE officials said that temporary housing will be provided for the homeless at other apartments in the area.

Representatives of the Salvation Army, Civil Defense, Commonwealth Edison and the Army Nike Base on Central Road were on hand to assist firemen and residents.

This was the first fire that has called for the recently approved mutual aid agreement between 20 Northwestern suburban fire departments. Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Fogarty, who answered the original call, asked for the aid after arriving at the scene of the fire.

Fogarty said the response from the other departments was excellent, and that the agreement "worked out very well." Only a week ago, the first emergency fire drill, involving 16 fire departments, was held at Randhurst Center in Mount Prospect.

Past Fires Have Prompted Improvements, But—

by JAMES VESELY

Saturday's fire which destroyed part of the Meadow Trace apartment complex is the latest in a long history of apartment house fires which have plagued Rolling Meadows in the span of four years, and the latest of four severe fires within two years.

In November, 1966, ten families were evacuated from apartments at Algonquin Park after a fire raged through the basement of the complex. The fire was quickly brought under control by Rolling Meadows firemen but the flames caused apartments above the basement storage area to suffer some damage.

In February, 1969, the first of two fires at the Three Fountains apartment complex on Algonquin Road caused $700,000 damage to the nearly completed structure. According to a man at the scene at the time, the center building of the apartment complex literally exploded in a mass of flames. Cause of the blaze was attributed to an overheated furnace.

The first Three Fountains fire prompted Rolling Meadows officials to consider the purchase of new fire equipment for the city.

In fact, it was during a discussion of new equipment purchase at the city hall that fire struck the King's Walk Apartments at Euclid and Plum Grove Road. Three buildings were destroyed in that fire and one structure was completely razed before firemen could get to the scene. Icy winds that night spread the fire and witnesses to the scene said the glow of the blaze could be seen three miles away. King's Walk was also under construction at the time of the fire.

Shortly after the two major fires occurred in February and March, 1969, city officials of Rolling Meadows began a hard look at their fire codes. Local officials admitted then that Rolling Meadows had been designed as a single family residential community and that the local fire code had fallen behind the times.

In April, 1969, city officials took steps to enforce stricter building rules and decreed that new construction would not be allowed to advance above the foundation level until new requirements were added to the fire code.

Then, tragically, more than 100 persons were made homeless in a second major fire at Three Fountains.

In May, 1970, firemen from four suburban departments fought all night to curb flames from a three-story, 48-apartment building at Three Fountains. Although the city of Rolling Meadows had adopted the Building Officials of America fire code (BOCA) by that time, inspection of the remaining Three Fountains buildings showed that the structures had no sprinkler system or fire alarm, fire walls that did not go completely to the roof and less than the number of fire doors recommended by the fire chief.

The Three Fountains fire caused new criticism of the fire codes and their enforcement in the city, and in the summer of 1970, the Rolling Meadows Fire Department issued a booklet to residents of the six major apartment complexes in the city giving instructions what to do in case fire struck.

Counselor Signup Form Distribution Today

Applications for positions as Rolling Meadows Youth Referral Committee volunteer counselors will be available at the Rolling Meadows Community Church starting today.

The city-sponsored youth referral committee will help area youth with emotional, legal or drug problems from the headquarters of the Northwest Human Resources Development Center on Central Road.

According to the Rev. William Herman, chairman of the referral committee, "the enthusiasm has been extremely good" by adults who want to become involved in the program. A number of residents have already asked to be considered as counselors for the committee, he said.

The counselors will talk to youth and parents and try to solve some of the youth's problems. The juvenile may be referred to the counselors by anyone in the city, but it is expected that the Rolling Meadows police department will be the initial referral arm of the group.

Thomas Jauch, director of the Northwest Human Resources Development Center, will conduct a 10-week training program for the counselors. The training sessions will begin Feb. 1, and will be held primarily in the evening and on weekends.

AFTER FOUR weeks of training, the counselors will be able to take their first cases, Jauch said. Counselors will be trained in causes of delinquency, drug use, and social psychology.

Jauch said that the training will help the counselors understand the causes of some of the traditional youth problems. "The counselors won't become social workers, just aware citizens," according to Jauch.

The youth referral program was established, according to its proponents, so that the youth problems in Rolling Meadows can be solved within the community itself. City council approved the first funds for the referral program last week. The city gave the group $500 to begin training of the volunteer counselors.

Where were you last Thursday night? If you have a junior high schooler and you didn't attend the Family Recreation Night sponsored by the Carl Sandburg PTA, you really missed an evening of fun!

There must be an enrollment of over 850 children at Sandburg but only about thirteen parents attended the meeting.

Jim Hess was in charge of the games and he really put the parents through their paces, playing volleyball and hockey. Those who weren't too tired played basketball and only one father ripped his pants!

Quiet games were in the cafeteria and refreshments were served.

Cub Scout Pack 68 will be participating in their annual Pinewood Derby on January 26, at Cardinal Drive School.

THE FOURTEEN dens which comprise the pack will be competing in this race car derby. This is a father-son project. The cars are whittled from balsawood, sanded and painted. The derby begins Tuesday at 7:15 p.m.

Ducks, Unlimited, a non-profit organization for the conservation of ducks, will be the guest of the Salk PTA Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. Buzz Ruffing, a representative from Ducks, Unlimited, will show and narrate a colored film entitled The Wetlanders, which is the story of Ducks, Unlimited and what they do for the preservation of wild fowl.

According to Mrs. Esther LaPointe, program chairman, this is the annual father-son nite for Salk PTA and the program begins at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria.

Mrs. Muriel Killhoff, PTA president, will conduct a short business meeting first to choose a nominating committee. During the business meeting, Martin Pratt, from the Northwest Mental Health Council will explain the Mental Health Referendum.

REFRESHMENTS WILL be served at the meeting, so all you dads, bring your sons out to an enjoyable and interesting evening.

How can olympics be non-athletic?

Mrs. Carl Couve, Central Road PTA president, stresses there will be no strenuous activities at their Family Olympics Night at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 27 at Central Road School. She should know as her husband, Carl Couve, has planned the evening of games which include discus throwing, javelin throwing, golf, shot put, cross country, swimming, hurdles, broad jump, pole vault, and hammer throw. They sound strenuous but the participants will be in for a surprise!

Medals will be awarded to the men, women, boys and girls placing first, second and third in the olympics.

Admission (which is optional) is one white elephant, wrapped and marked either for a boy or girl, man or woman. These will be exchanged for another white elephant.

There will be a short business meeting before the olympics to choose a nominating committee. (You can be sure the meeting will be short as there will be no chairs set up due to lack of space for the olympics.)

The Bluebird Group sponsored by Joyce Ford and Pat Sloane will present the colors at the meeting.

Mrs. Couve emphasized that this is an informal evening and slacks will be appropriate for the ladies. Children must be accompanied by an adult.

Don't throw away your L'eggs!! You know, the egg-shaped containers those new nylons come in.

A use has been found for the empty eggs after you've removed the nylons. Three student aides from Forest View High School and their teacher, Mrs. Fenner, are using them in their special education classes at Holmes Junior High School.

The girls say they are great Christmas tree decorations and nice for Easter too. The girls need more eggs so if you're willing to donate them, please call Carla Lebben at 255-1925 or Nancy Koc at 258-0384. Carla and Nancy live here in Rolling Meadows so give them a call to make arrangements to drop off your L'eggs.

Firm Plans Homes Around Airstrip

by JIM HODL

While current suburbs are built around the automobile, a new suburb being planned by a Palatine corporation will be built around the airplane.

DNT, Inc., 537 Echo Ln., Palatine, is planning to develop a new subdivision near Hampshire, 12 miles west of Elgin.

President of DNT, Don DeBolt, said the subdivision will be like most new communities being built today, except that in the center of the community will be an airstrip.

DNT is selling lots along the airstrip, which the company is building. When buying a lot, the owner will build his own house. In all, DNT will be selling 45 lots ranging from three-quarters to one acre each, DeBolt said. They will sell from $12,000 to $14,000 each.

All lots will be next to the landing strip, DeBolt explained. When a person builds his home on the lot he buys, he can attach an air hanger to his house like most suburbanites do with garages for their car.

In buying a lot, DeBolt said, a person also buys stock in Casa de Aero, Inc., a company DNT set up to own the airstrip. This makes the resident partial owner of the airstrip.

DeBolt explained that this type of land development project is not for everybody. While the company will sell lots to people who do not own airplanes, he said the property will appeal mainly to air enthusiasts.

DNT selected the location for the subdivision because it was suited for this kind of development. In building a new airstrip, one must consider O'Hare Airport. The developers had to consider the inverted pyramid where most of the O'Hare traffic will congregate. The Hampshire site is many miles away from this busy zone, even at 5,000 feet up.

DNT also had to get a special use permit to build the airstrip, DeBolt said. In Kane County, where the strip is located, one has the land zoned for farming and then applies for a special use permit.

DeBolt feels that there is a need for such a subdivision among airplane enthusiasts. Flying, as a hobby, is time consuming, he said. After a person comes home from work and wants to work on his hobby, he has to travel many miles to a country airport.

In recent years, the number of private airstrips in the Chicago metropolitan area have been decreasing. By buying a lot and building a home in the DNT development, a person can work on his hobby right in his own backyard. After spending a day in the office, a commuter can drive home and go flying for an hour, he said.

WHEN DeBOLT IS NOT working for DNT, he is an airline pilot for American Airlines. He flies on Monday and Tuesday and spends the rest of the weekdays working on DNT.

Other executives with DNT are also airline pilots. Vice president Ed Nurbury works for American and Don Taylor, DNT's secretary is employed by United Air Lines.

Taylor is also vice president of the Experimental Aircraft Association.

When setting up DNT, the company located its headquarters in DeBolt's home in Palatine. DeBolt points out that DNT stands for the first initials of the three head executives of the corporation.

DeBolt said that a subdivision built around an airstrip is nothing new. There are similar developments in California, Ohio and Pennsylvania. In the Chicago area, such subdivisions exist near Downers Grove and Naperville.

Hampshire's subdivision may be one of a kind for DNT, DeBolt said. However, DNT may build another depending on how the Hampshire project goes.

TWO AIRLINE PILOTS Don Taylor and Don DeBolt are secretary and president respectively of DNT, Inc., a company developing a subdivision built around an airstrip. Both examine plans for the project, which will be built near Hampshire, a small community in Kane County, west of Elgin.

Urge Parks Merger Probe

Members of the Salt Creek Rural Park Board suggested that the Arlington Heights Park Board start doing some homework on the possibilities of a merging of portions of the two park districts.

During a joint meeting held by the two boards last week, members of the rural park board stated that Arlington Heights board members should contact two other park districts about a splitting of the rural park district. The other two park districts are Rolling Meadows and Palatine.

Arlington Heights Park Board will also be preparing some type of proposal about what the district could offer to residents of the rural park district.

Arlington Heights has been interested in annexing a portion of the rural park district which includes Arlington Heights Race Track. The track was annexed by the village, a separate taxing body, but could not be annexed by the park district because the track was already within the boundaries of Salt Creek Rural Park District.

Salt Creek's jurisdiction includes the race track and two other parcels of land. One parcel is bordered by Northwest Highway, Palatine Road, Wilke Road and Rohlwing Road. The other parcel is bounded by Rohlwing and Kirchhoff roads, Route 53 and Euclid Street.

If the Arlington Heights Park District did annex a portion of the district, it would divide the rural park district in two parcels. These parcels could logically be annexed by Palatine and Rolling Meadows park districts.

During the joint meeting between the Salt Creek Rural and the Arlington Heights Park boards, members of the rural park board said they would not take any formal action on any annexation questions until they had consulted extensively with residents of the district. Rural park board members stressed that no decision could be made until a complete study of the advantages and disadvantages had been made.

Members of the Arlington Heights Park Board agreed to contact the Rolling Meadows and Palatine Park Districts and to begin preparing a proposal of what Arlington Heights could offer to residents of the areas to be annexed.

Meeting Set Thursday On Flooding

John Guillou, head of the Illinois Division of Highways, will discuss flooding problems with Winston Park residents Thursday.

Clayton Brown, village trustee who arranged for Guillou's visit, said the meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the basement of St. Thomas of Villanova school, located at Anderson and Williams Drive.

Both Brown and Guillou will present plans designed to alleviate serious and recurrent flooding problems which Salt Creek has caused area residents over the years.

Guillou is expected to discuss the possibility of expediting work on the new culvert planned for the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks underpass.

JOHN SNOWDEN, president of the Winston Park Homeowners Association, said 317 residents signed petitions sent to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie in an effort to speed up the state's construction schedule to have the culvert completed in time to handle spring flooding.

Guillou said the new 10 by 13-foot structure, which is being funded by a $650,000 state appropriation, could be partially completed to handle the bulk of flood waters by May.

It will replace an inadequate structure which the railroad built around the turn of the century, and which has been singled out by state and local officials as being the major source of Winston Park flooding problems.

Clayton Brown said he will also present plans the village has to supplement the state's work to ensure a total relief of flooding problems.

He said the planning and public works committee of the village board asked Walter Hodel, village engineer, to prepare a plan which will accomplish this. The plan has been completed and will be presented by Brown Thursday night.

HODEL HAS recommended the installation of new storm sewer lines from Rohlwing Road to Virginia Lake. The pipeline would pick up storm water from Units 3 and 4 of Winston Park and help stop flooding at the Williams Drive and Baldwin Road intersection.

Brown said the proposed system would also relieve the existing storm drainage system in this area, which experienced some of the worst flooding in Palatine's history last summer.

Timetables for construction, preliminary cost estimates and more details of the plan will be made available by Brown on Thursday.

The meeting will be open to the general public and residents outside of Winston Park have been invited to attend.

Y Girls Swim Team Loses

Countryside YMCA's girls swim team was defeated by Harvey recently. The score was 195 to 150.

With 12 first place wins and many second and third place wins, the team trimmed their losing margin over the previous year. Last year, the team lost by 100 points to Harvey, but closed the gap to 45 points this year.

As usual, the 100-yard medley relay teams did well, winning several events. The winning cadet team consisted of Robin Peterson, Mindy Rydin, Pam Ratcliffe and Janice Kotany. The victorious prep team consisted of Julie Broders, Kay Blair, Sue Enander and Carol Howland.

Carla Gormsen finished first in the 200-yard freestyle while Dee Fricke placed first in the 50-yard freestyle. Dee's sister Gretchen Fricke won the 50-yard freestyle in her category while Linda White won the 100-yard individual medley.

KAY NIELSON placed first in the 200-yard individual medley while Pam Ratcliffe won the 25-yard butterfly. Molly Enright and Sue Enander each won the 50-yard butterfly in their class.

Kay Blair won the 100-yard freestyle while Linda White finished first in the 50-yard backstroke. Carla Gormsen was winner of the 100-yard backstroke and Marie Spiczka was first to finish in the 50-yard breaststroke. Patti Vatalaro was victorious in the 100-yard breaststroke.

and Wendy Basara won the 25-yard backstroke.

In the freestyle relay events, the cadet team of Mary McGivney, Robin Peterson, Wendy Basara and Mindy Rydin won.

Mini-Course Survives 'Sneak Preview'

by JIM HODL

To find out what public reaction will be toward a new movie, the theaters in downtown Chicago hold sneak previews and let the audience rate what they saw.

If the movie gets a good reaction, it will get a good booking when it is officially released. If reaction is bad, the film may start at local theaters as the second half of a double feature.

This same system was tried at Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows, from Jan. 4 to 15. Instead of a movie, the school was trying out something different in the way of education called the mini-course.

According to Sacred Heart Principal Len Baenan, both the faculty and students declared the mini-course program a success.

As a result, the program will be held again next year for one week only, but two or three times during the school year.

TEACHERS AT Sacred Heart have said the mini-course program opened up new insights concerning education, students, teaching in general, and the learning process. They and the students agreed the period the courses were taught were the most enjoyable have ever spent in school.

There were many courses that proved popular. Because of student and faculty interest, the Educational Seminar and the International Cooking courses will be continued into the second semester, which began last week.

Drug Use and Abuse was another popular course. About 167 students signed up for it, but only 51 took it. Several students commented that the course's instructor was good since he presented both sides of the drug issue, rather than just saying drugs were bad.

Baenan said one of the surprises of the two week period was the popularity of the Nursing course.

"The kids really dug it," he said.

THERE WERE a few complaints about the mini-courses. One student complained she couldn't take Drug Use and Abuse after signing up for it. She took the Malcolm X course instead and her mother hit the ceiling.

A few other students complained Pop Music in the 1960s course wasn't all it was supposed to be.

But, in all, the praises vastly outnumbered the complaints.

Baenan said new courses and many of this year's courses will be presented next year, depending on what the students and faculty request.

One thing that will be continued and expanded will be exchanges with other schools. This year, Sacred Heart had an exchange with Mother Butler High School in New York's the Bronx. Baenan said he could see the day when a girl could spend a whole semester at other schools run by the order of sisters who teach at Sacred Heart in places like Canada and France.

NOT ONLY did Sacred Heart get ideas for new courses to offer and new means of education, the school also came up with new ideas about current subjects. Some teachers are now asking if courses should run for an hour, or should be divided up. A chemistry course could run for two and a half hours while an English course could run for only a half hour.

In all, the type of education offered at Sacred Heart will improve because of the mini-courses and further use of them in the future will bring about more changes.

Other high schools in the Rolling Meadows and Palatine area could take a page from Sacred Heart's experience with mini-courses and try some themselves.

THE FOURTH major apartment fire within two years in Rolling Meadows erupted Saturday and brought firemen from 10 suburban departments to the blaze. Fire at Meadow Trace Apartments caused an estimated $250,000 damage and displaced 32 families. Officials are still investigating the cause of the fire.

Meadow Trace Building Guttled -- None Injured

Firemen from 10 suburban communities battled for more than four hours Saturday to bring fire under control at a Meadow Trace apartment building in Rolling Meadows.

No injuries were reported from the fire, but residents of 28 apartments in the building were left homeless. Fire broke out about noon in the building located just south of Algonquin Road and west of Rte. 53.

Most of the apartment dwellers were given temporary housing in the Holiday Inn on Algonquin Road by the American Red Cross. Their furniture and other belongings were either destroyed by the fire or scattered in the snow a few feet from the building as smoke that could be seen from a mile away billowed black and high from the structure.

The cause of the blaze is still undetermined, according to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty. Both the chief and a state fire marshal investigated the scene yesterday.

Fogarty theorized the fire apparently started in the basement of the building. After firemen extinguished the blaze, they worked all night Saturday clearing rubble from the smoldering ruins.

ED BERRY, Meadow Trace assistant manager, was the first to see the fire. "The circuit breakers started popping and smoke started coming through the circuit box and phone box in the office," he said. Berry said he immediately telephoned the fire department and began notifying occupants of the 28 persons in the building to evacuate.

Although there are 32 apartments in the building, only 28 of them were occupied at the time of the fire. Occupants of 26 of the apartments registered with the Red Cross for emergency aid. It's believed residents of the other two apartments were out of town at the time of the fire.

"A little girl and I ran up and down the halls telling people there was a fire," according to Miss Mary Overman, a secretary at Meadow Trace. "I knew it was nothing to mess around with," she said.

The blaze that began in the basement was contained in the western half of the building, but all apartments received water and smoke damage, according to fire officials. There was a boiler room and a washing machine room in the basement. Each tenant also had a locker for personal belongings in the basement.

JOHN BLYTH, Meadow Trace building manager, said the building was probably totally destroyed. "Structurally it is ruined," he said.

The south wall of the building collapsed after firemen had battled the blaze for more than two hours.

Other apartment buildings nearby were not damaged. The unit gutted by fire was one of several identical wood-frame structures that house more than 700 apartments in the complex. The apartment complex was built in 1966.

Meadow Trace officials called a detective agency to guard the furniture that was removed from the building. Saturday night all of the furniture was loaded on trucks for storage.

Some of the tenants of the fire gutted building found temporary lodging and protection from the cold with friends and neighbors. The American Red Cross arranged housing for many of the homeless Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows.

MEADOW TRACE officials said that temporary housing will be provided for the homeless at other apartments in the area.

Representatives of the Salvation Army, Civil Defense, Commonwealth Edison and the Army Nike Base on Central Road were on hand to assist firemen and residents.

This was the first fire that has called for the recently approved mutual aid agreement between 20 Northwestern suburban fire departments. Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Fogarty, who answered the original call, asked for the aid after arriving at the scene of the fire.

Fogarty said the response from the other departments was excellent, and that the agreement "worked out very well." Only a week ago, the first emergency fire drill, involving 16 fire departments, was held at Randhurst Center in Mount Prospect.

Past Fires Have Prompted Improvements, But—

by JAMES VESELY

Saturday's fire which destroyed part of the Meadow Trace apartment complex is the latest in a long history of apartment house fires which have plagued Rolling Meadows in the span of four years, and the latest of four severe fires within two years.

In November, 1966, ten families were evacuated from apartments at Algonquin Park after a fire raged through the basement of the complex. The fire was quickly brought under control by Rolling Meadows firemen but the flames caused apartments above the basement storage area to suffer some damage.

In February, 1969, the first of two fires at the Three Fountains apartment complex on Algonquin Road caused $700,000 damage to the nearly completed structure. According to a man at the scene at the time, the center building of the apartment complex literally exploded in a mass of flames. Cause of the blaze was attributed to an overheated furnace.

The first Three Fountains fire prompted Rolling Meadows officials to consider the purchase of new fire equipment for the city.

In fact, it was during a discussion of new equipment purchase at the city hall that fire struck the King's Walk Apartments at Euclid and Plum Grove Road. Three buildings were destroyed in that fire and one structure was completely razed before firemen could get to the scene. Icy winds that night spread the fire and witnesses to the scene said the glow of the blaze could be seen three miles away. King's Walk was also under construction at the time of the fire.

Shortly after the two major fires occurred in February and March, 1969, city officials of Rolling Meadows began a hard look at their fire codes. Local officials admitted then that Rolling Meadows had been designed as a single family residential community and that the local fire code had fallen behind the times.

In April, 1969, city officials took steps to enforce stricter building rules and decreed that new construction would not be allowed to advance above the foundation level until new requirements were added to the fire code.

Then, tragically, more than 100 persons were made homeless in a second major fire at Three Fountains.

In May, 1970, firemen from four suburban departments fought all night to curb flames from a three-story, 48-apartment building at Three Fountains. Although the city of Rolling Meadows had adopted the Building Officials of America fire code (BOCA) by that time, inspection of the remaining Three Fountains buildings showed that the structures had no sprinkler system or fire alarm, fire walls that did not go completely to the roof and less than the number of fire doors recommended by the fire chief.

The Three Fountains fire caused new criticism of the fire codes and their enforcement in the city, and in the summer of 1970, the Rolling Meadows Fire Department issued a booklet to residents of the six major apartment complexes in the city giving instructions what to do in case fire struck.

Board Will Consider Merger Of Youth Groups

Wheeling's village board tonight will consider a proposal by three area youth counseling services to combine into one organization and seek a state grant to finance the venture.

The groups, TORCH, HELP and the Wheeling Youth Commission, are seeking a grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission to establish a youth services center, encompassing a wide range of counseling and youth activities.

Buffalo Grove's village board endorsed the proposal last Monday. The youth services center would serve Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights.

Richard Wynn, director of the Torch Mental Health Clinic, has estimated that the youth services center will cost between $100,000 and $150,000 per year including staffing and operating expenses.

The ILEC will finance between 60 and 80 per cent of the program for the first year, Wynn said.

AT THE END OF the first year, the ILEC would review the program and decide whether to finance it again, Wynn said. However, he said he hoped that by that time the program would be financed by the communities it serves.

The three communities also will have to pay 20 to 40 per cent of the cost for the first-year operations, he said.

"Really, all we are seeking now is endorsement of the program (by Wheeling and Buffalo Grove village boards) because we have to go into subsequent negotiations with the ILEC and we need your endorsement to get the grant from the state," Wynn told Buffalo Grove trustees last week.

Endorsements by the village boards are necessary to obtain state funds.

FUNDS FROM LOCAL sources can come from various sources in addition to village funds, he said.

Buffalo Grove officials voted to endorse the program but did not commit any village funds.

Wynn has estimated that if state approval is granted the program could be implemented by July.

One of the main goals of the program would be the establishment of a teen center to be operated with the cooperation of professional and adult volunteers.

Homeowners Divided On Annexation — Incorporation

by BETSY BROOKER

A News Analyst

Once again, Prospect Heights residents are discussing whether they would like to incorporate and form a new city, be annexed to an existing municipality or remain the largest unincorporated area in Cook County.

And for the first time since 1965, the climate of opinion in Prospect Heights on the issue has been tested. But the results of that test show that no majority favors any one of the options. A poll of residents taken by the Prospect Heights Jaycees, shows 33 per cent of those responding favor annexation, 30 per cent favor incorporation and 29 per cent favor keeping the area as it is — unincorporated.

The Jaycees' survey cannot be considered decisive because only one third of those polled responded. And the survey excluded two homeowner associations south of Euclid Avenue in unincorporated Mount Prospect. Nevertheless, certain conclusions can be drawn from the results.

The survey does indicate that while the community as a whole is almost evenly divided, the individual homeowner associations are not. Results from the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA), which represents all of the residents in the "old town area" west of Wolf Road, show 38 per cent favor incorporation, 30 per cent favor unincorporation and 25 per cent favor annexation. On the other hand, results from five new town associations together show 41 per cent favor annexation, 28 per cent favor incorporation and 23 per cent favor unincorporation.

RESIDENTS SHOWED the same reaction more recently at general meetings held by two homeowner associations. At a PHIA meeting, 57 per cent of the members here voted to have their board take steps toward incorporation. And 98 per cent of the residents attending a Euclid-Lake Association meeting in "new town" voted in favor of being annexed to Mount Prospect. Six other "new town" associations have also scheduled general meetings to vote on the issue.

A plurality in "old town" for incorporation and a plurality in "new town" for annexation is a reflection of the division in the community. The community is not only divided physically by Wolf Road; it is also divided by styles of living. The "old town" community dates back to the 1890s. It has a country-like atmosphere with large lots, no sidewalks, wells, custom-built homes and septic systems which are only now being replaced with sewers.

"New town," on the other hand, is little more than a decade old. The homes all conform to the modern subdivision mode. The developments have sidewalks, fire hydrants, street lights, and water and sewer utility lines.

When talking about local government, leaders in both areas say they need something different. "Old town" residents who favor incorporation say they are looking for protection — protection from undesirable rezoning by the county and involuntary annexations by neighboring municipalities. But these residents don't want to change the physical character of their community. Nor do they want the additional services that an existing municipality could provide, but with higher taxes. Forming a new municipality would give them protection without the added expense for various services, they feel.

ANNEXATION OF "old town" by a neighboring municipality could very well mean expensive special assessments for such improvements as sidewalks and city water.

Special assessments for "new town" isn't as serious a problem. The area already has such facilities as sidewalks and fire hydrants. It is possible, however, that the private utility company that now services the community with water may present a problem.

"New town" residents who favor annexation say it will be cheaper than establishing a new municipality. And they say they will benefit by joining a community with established services.

"New town," unlike "old town," does not have 40 years of history to preserve. "Old town" residents have a centralized community with their own post office, library, fire station and stores, all located at Camp McDonald and Elmhurst roads. The "old town" center dates back to the 1930s when the community was first formed.

"New town" is decentralized. Half of the area has a Mount Prospect, rather than a Prospect Heights, mailing address.

It is quite likely that this division between "old town" and "new town" will prevent the entire community from moving in one direction. This possibility is further evidenced by the fact that leaders in both areas have already taken preliminary steps to achieve their separate goals.

THE MECHANICS OF annexation involve petitioning a village board which may, in turn, conduct a feasibility study of the unincorporated area. If the study is favorable, the village board or city council may vote to annex the area.

To incorporate, residents must petition the Cook County Circuit Court. A referendum date will be set if the court approves the petition. Some feel it is quite likely that neighboring municipalities will object to incorporation of "old town" because it would restrict their expansion. These objections may lead to litigation.

Before they can achieve their goals, leaders in both "new town" and "old town" may have to contend with the residents who do not want to change the unincorporated status of the community. In both areas, this group equals approximately 30 per cent of those surveyed.

Since the 1950s and 1960s, the favoring continuation of the status quo group has greatly diminished. In 1962, this group blocked the efforts of other "old town" residents to incorporate. The group was almost twice as strong as the group favoring incorporation at that time. Some community leaders believe this group has diminished because problems such as undesirable rezoning, involuntary annexations and insufficient county services have increased.

5 Homeowner Organizations Meet Tonight

Five different school, park and homeowner organization meetings are scheduled for tonight in Prospect Heights.

The Northwest Suburban Council of Associations is meeting to discuss the feasibility of either having the unincorporated community annexed to a neighboring municipality of making it into a new city. The council represents all of the homeowners organizations in Prospect Heights and a portion of unincorporated Mount Prospect.

The council has requested its member associations to hold general meetings and poll their members on the annexation-incorporation issue. These polls will be compiled by the council, which plans to take action towards whichever alternative the community favors.

The council meeting will be held at 8:15 p.m. in the Indian Grove School Library.

At 7:30 p.m. in the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School library the Dist. 23 School Board will conduct the continuation of an earlier meeting. According to school officials, the only item on the agenda is approval of board meeting minutes.

AT THE SAME TIME, another meeting will be held in the MacArthur cafeteria by the Dist. 23 Caucus. The caucus delegates will select members for a screening committee which will interview school board candidates. Requirements for school board candidate and the procedure for interviews will also be established at the meeting.

The River Trails Park District board is continuing an earlier meeting to discuss the eligibility of the district to received federal aid from the department of Housing and Urban Development. According to the director Marvin Weiss, the park commissioners may request federal aid to assist in the purchase of the Rob Roy Driving Range in Prospect Heights.

The River Trails meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the community building at Burning Bush Trails Park.

The Prospect Heights Park District is also holding a meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the John Muir School library. Park Director Ronald Greenberg plans to propose the park board hire a private patrol service. Greenberg said the Illinois County's Detective Agency has already made a bid for the contract.

The results of a second appraisal of 2.11 acres of land near the park district's Lions Park, on Elm and Camp McDonald roads, will also be discussed. The park commissioners are currently negotiating to buy the back half of three lots.

Meadow Trace Building Guttled -- None Injured

Firemen from 10 suburban communities battled for more than four hours Saturday to bring fire under control at a Meadow Trace apartment building in Rolling Meadows.

No injuries were reported from the fire, but residents of 28 apartments in the building were left homeless. Fire broke out about noon in the building located just south of Algonquin Road and west of Rte. 53.

Most of the apartment dwellers were given temporary housing in the Holiday Inn on Algonquin Road by the American Red Cross. Their furniture and other belongings were either destroyed by the fire or scattered in the snow a few feet from the building as smoke that could be seen from a mile away billowed black and high from the structure.

The cause of the blaze is still undetermined, according to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty. Both the chief and a state fire marshal investigated the scene yesterday.

Fogarty theorized the fire apparently started in the basement of the building. After firemen extinguished the blaze, they worked all night Saturday clearing rubble from the smoldering ruins.

ED BERRY, Meadow Trace assistant manager, was the first to see the fire. "The circuit breakers started popping and smoke started coming through the circuit box and phone box in the office," he said. Berry said he immediately telephoned the fire department and began notifying occupants of the 28 persons in the building to evacuate.

Although there are 32 apartments in the building, only 28 of them were occupied at the time of the fire. Occupants of 26 of the apartments registered with the Red Cross for emergency aid. It's believed residents of the other two apartments were out of town at the time of the fire.

"A little girl and I ran up and down the halls telling people there was a fire," according to Miss Mary Overman, a secretary at Meadow Trace. "I knew it was nothing to mess around with," she said.

The blaze that began in the basement was contained in the western half of the building, but all apartments received water and smoke damage, according to fire officials. There was a boiler room and a washing machine room in the basement. Each tenant also had a locker for personal belongings in the basement.

JOHN BLYTH, Meadow Trace building manager, said the building was probably totally destroyed. "Structurally it is ruined," he said.

The south wall of the building collapsed after firemen had battled the blaze for more than two hours.

Other apartment buildings nearby were not damaged. The unit gutted by fire was one of several identical wood-frame structures that house more than 700 apartments in the complex. The apartment complex was built in 1966.

Meadow Trace officials called a detective agency to guard the furniture that was removed from the building. Saturday night all of the furniture was loaded on trucks for storage.

Some of the tenants of the fire gutted building found temporary lodging and protection from the cold with friends and neighbors. The American Red Cross arranged housing for many of the homeless Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows.

MEADOW TRACE officials said that temporary housing will be provided for the homeless at other apartments in the area.

Representatives of the Salvation Army, Civil Defense, Commonwealth Edison and the Army Nike Base on Central Road were on hand to assist firemen and residents.

This was the first fire that has called for the recently approved mutual aid agreement between 20 Northwestern suburban fire departments. Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Fogarty, who answered the original call, asked for the aid after arriving at the scene of the fire.

Fogarty said the response from the other departments was excellent, and that the agreement "worked out very well." Only a week ago, the first emergency fire drill, involving 16 fire departments, was held at Randhurst Center in Mount Prospect.

THE FOURTH major apartment fire within two years in Rolling Meadows erupted Saturday and caused an estimated $250,000 damage and displaced 32 families. Officials are still investigating the cause of the fire.

Past Fires Have Prompted Improvements, But—

by JAMES VESELY

Saturday's fire which destroyed part of the Meadow Trace apartment complex is the latest in a long history of apartment house fires which have plagued Rolling Meadows in the span of four years, and the latest of four severe fires within two years.

In November, 1966, ten families were evacuated from apartments at Algonquin Park after a fire raged through the basement of the complex. The fire was quickly brought under control by Rolling Meadows firemen but the flames caused apartments above the basement storage area to suffer some damage.

In February, 1969, the first of two fires at the Three Fountains apartment complex on Algonquin Road caused $700,000 damage to the nearly completed structure. According to a man at the scene at the time, the center building of the apartment complex literally exploded in a mass of flames. Cause of the blaze was attributed to an overheated furnace.

The first Three Fountains fire prompted Rolling Meadows officials to consider the purchase of new fire equipment for the city.

In fact, it was during a discussion of new equipment purchase at the city hall that fire struck the King's Walk Apartments at Euclid and Plum Grove Road. Three buildings were destroyed in that fire and one structure was completely razed before firemen could get to the scene. Icy winds that night spread the fire and witnesses to the scene said the glow of the blaze could be seen three miles away. King's Walk was also under construction at the time of the fire.

Shortly after the two major fires occurred in February and March, 1969, city officials of Rolling Meadows began a hard look at their fire codes. Local officials admitted then that Rolling Meadows had been designed as a single family residential community and that the local fire code had fallen behind the times.

In April, 1969, city officials took steps to enforce stricter building rules and decreed that new construction would not be allowed to advance above the foundation level until new requirements were added to the fire code.

Then, tragically, more than 100 persons were made homeless in a second major fire at Three Fountains.

In May, 1970, firemen from four suburban departments fought all night to curb flames from a three-story, 48-apartment building at Three Fountains. Although the city of Rolling Meadows had adopted the Building Officials of America fire code (BOCA) by that time, inspection of the remaining Three Fountains buildings showed that the structures had no sprinkler system or fire alarm, fire walls that did not go completely to the roof and less than the number of fire doors recommended by the fire chief.

The Three Fountains fire caused new criticism of the fire codes and their enforcement in the city, and in the summer of 1970, the Rolling Meadows Fire Department issued a booklet to residents of the six major apartment complexes in the city giving instructions what to do in case fire struck.

Euclid-Lake Group Endorses Annexation

Members of the Euclid-Lake Homeowners Association have endorsed annexation of their area to Mount Prospect by a heavy majority.

The Euclid-Lake area is located east of Wolf Road and north of Euclid Avenue, northeast of Mount Prospect's current village limits. Because the Euclid-Lake area is not adjacent to the village limits, it would have to be part of a larger parcel that would be annexed.

Currently Euclid-Lake members are planning to have an area annexed that would include, in addition to their own parcel, the River Trails and Parkway associations' areas. The River Trails area is adjacent to Mount Prospect's boundaries.

The endorsement by members of the Euclid-Lake group came at a meeting of the membership held last week. The vote on the proposal to seek annexation to Mount Prospect was 49 in favor, one opposed. Of the approximately 500 members of the association, 50 attended the meeting.

The Euclid-Lake group is the second largest of the homeowners associations located in Prospect Heights' "new town" area, east of Wolf Road. It, like other associations in the Prospect Heights and unincorporated Mount Prospect areas, is a member of the Northwest Suburban Council of Associations.

The council has asked all associations to hold general membership meetings similar to the one held by the Euclid-Lake group last week. The council wants the associations to poll their members on annexation and incorporation at these meetings.

According to Marie Caylor, council secretary and 1970 Euclid-Lake president, the results of the associations' polls will be compiled by the council. "The council will then take whatever action is indicated by the plurality of residents," she said.

2nd Negotiations Session Set Tonight At School

Members of the Dist. 57 board of education and Mount Prospect Education Association will sit down for the second negotiations session for the 1971-72 teachers contract 7:30 p.m. tonight at Lincoln Junior High School.

The meeting will not be open to the public.

The first meeting between the MPEA and school board bargaining teams was held Jan. 11.

Like the first meeting, tonight's session will deal with the "procedural aspects of negotiations," said Leo Floros, chairman of the board's negotiating team.

Floros said he hoped both sides could come to an agreement on procedures at tonight's meeting. "We'd like to get the procedures out of the way as soon as possible so we can get down to negotiating," he said.

DAVID METZLER, chairman of the MPEA's negotiating team, called the Jan. 11th meeting, "the most unconstructive, heated negotiating session I have ever been to."

Metzler said he was "terribly disappointed" that the board hired a professional consultant to "handle the bulk of the negotiations." Metzler also contended that by hiring the consultant the board violated one of two agreements arrived at prior to last year's contract talks, which listed "Professional Negotiation Procedures" as a negotiable item.

The consultant, Richard Zweiback, was hired by the board in December to "advise" and "assist" the board during negotiations. The resolution calling for the hiring of Zweiback also stated that he was to be the board's "representative" at the negotiations.

Floros said the hiring of Zweiback fell under a clause in the procedures agreement that states, "The board, or designated representative of the board... will meet... for the purpose of discussion and reaching (a) mutually satisfactory agreement."

METZLER ALSO said that he suggested that the teacher's contract demands be outlined at the same time as the board's offer. Metzler indicated that this would shorten negotiations by "approximately one month."

The board did not make a direct reply to Metzler's suggestion. It is expected that the teachers' demands will be submitted "sometime in February or March" and "one month prior to the board's offer," according to Floros.

Both Floros and Metzler told the Herald the teacher's initial contract demands as well as the first school board's offer will be made public.

Members of the board's negotiations team include Zweiback, Floros and board members Peter Dudrow and Alex Casper. Metzler and Mike Getel served as the MPEA's bargaining agent at the last negotiations session, although representatives from each of the schools in the district also attended the meeting.

The date for the next negotiations meeting will be decided by both sides during tonight's meeting.

Fiedler To Direct School Bands At Pops Concert

The doors at John Hersey High School will open at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow for the annual Pops Concert. Directing the school's bands in the concert will be Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Symphony.

Fiedler is making a two-day visit to Arlington Heights for the concert. It will start at 8 p.m. at the high school located at 1900 E. Thomas in Arlington Heights.

School officials said Friday a small number of tickets would be on sale at the door tomorrow night. There are no reserved seats for the performance.

Fiedler will conduct the band's symphonic winds group in playing "Festive Overture" by Dimitri Shostakovich, "American Salute" by Morton Gould, and "Finale From the New World Symphony" by Antonin Dvorak. The symphonic winds will also play "America the Beautiful," and "Hello Dolly."

Leroy Anderson's "Serenade" will also be conducted by Fiedler and performed by the concert band. The concert band will also play "California Dreamin'," "Monday, Monday," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and "West Side Story."

THE STAGE BAND will open the concert with four tunes ranging from jazz to rock.

The band faculty, including Donald Caneva and Robert Rogers, and the Hersey administration are now making arrangements for Fiedler's visit. Soon after his arrival today, Fiedler will rehearse with the high school bands and later talk to the band members at a reception. Fiedler will attend another reception and luncheon the next day for the parents of the band members, who comprise the Hersey Instrumental Association. Later today the parents will prepare the gym for the concert. Fiedler's appearance is sponsored by the association.

After the concert tomorrow evening,

Fiedler will attend a third reception to which community leaders from throughout the Midwest have been invited.

During a luncheon tomorrow at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, Jack Walsh, village president, is scheduled to present Fiedler a fire hat, making him an honorary member of the Arlington Heights Fire Department.

Correction

An article in Friday's Herald incorrectly stated the date of a paper drive to be held by Boy Scout Troop 23. The Boy Scouts will hold their paper drive this Saturday. The area of the collection is bounded by Northwest Highway, Kensington Road, Main Street and Phelps Street.

Residents living in this area who wish to give their old newspapers to the Scouts can leave them by the curb Saturday morning.

PTA Meets Tonight

The Robert Frost School PTA will be entertained tonight by Ruth Shalett, a vocalist-comedienne, at 8 p.m. in the school gym.

Miss Shalett's performance, ranging from a satire on marriage to renditions of Broadway musicals, will be preceded by a short business meeting.

THE FOURTH major apartment fire within two years in Rolling Meadows erupted Saturday and brought firemen from 10 suburban departments to the blaze. Caucus Rejects Two Incumbents In Fast Session

by SANDRA BROWNING

Yesterday's meeting of the Arlington Heights Caucus was quiet, quick and deadly for the two incumbent Village Board members, Charles O. Bennett and James T. Ryan.

During the meeting, which was called to select a Caucus endorsed slate for four seats on the Village Board, the following men were named as candidates:

Kenneth W. Banet, 30, 2325 South Cedar Glen Dr.

John J. Collins, 43, 1214 S. Ridge Ave.
Eugene L. Griffin, 38, of 603 E. Thorntree Terr.

Theodore H. Salinsky, 43, 2416 S. Evergreen Ave.

Collins will run for the two year term while the other four candidates will run for the four year terms.

For the first time in Caucus history, the two incumbent candidates nominated by the candidate selection committee were dumped by the voters at the open meeting.

IN ADDITION TO the two incumbents, the other two candidates nominated by the Caucus selection committee were Nathaniel P. Leighton, 43, 746 S. Mitchell Ave.; and Mary C. Schlott, 38, 415 S. Evergreen Ave.

No one was nominated from the floor during the meeting to oppose the eight candidates nominated by the selection committee.

The four selected for the endorsement of the Caucus received a majority of the people voting on the first ballot. In past years, balloting has been known to go on for hours. Yesterday's meeting took less than two hours.

Of the 827 ballots cast, the vote totals were: Banet, 483; Bennett, 245; Collins, 415; Griffin, 529; Leighton, 205; Ryan, 307; Salinsky, 462; and Mrs. Schlott, 233. The majority needed for slating was 414, with Collins winning by one vote.

BEFORE THE FIRST and only ballot, the candidates presented speeches to the group of more than 900 people in the gymnasium at Arlington High School. There were 852 registered voters present; the balance were admitted as observers.

The four men selected were actively backed by forces which have publicly opposed the proposal to build low and moderate income housing on the Viatorian land.

Following the announcement of the candidates who will stand for election April 6, a number of people left the meeting without signing petitions for the candidates. However, more than 550 people more than the number required by law, did sign the petitions.

After learning that he was not slated, Ryan said it didn't come as a surprise. He said, "It will be a very interesting election, I promise."

Incumbent Bennett said he expects the formation of an independent slate and he expected the talk of the slate to begin immediately. He said the "action here today will hurt the Caucus and will hurt it seriously."

One person told a Caucus official the meeting had worked like a well oiled machine. The official said, "A little too well oiled."

Injured Youth Improves, Taken Off Critical List

Brad Boice, one of the three Arlington High School seniors seriously injured Wednesday in an accident at the high school, improved substantially over the weekend and has been taken off the critical list at Northwest Community Hospital.

Boice, 17, of 814 S. Ridge Ave., Arlington Heights, received a compressed fracture of the upper spine and internal injuries when a wall collapsed in a second-floor washroom at the school, when they attempted to force open a door.

A spokesman at the hospital said Boice "had a good day" Saturday. He is still being treated in the intensive care unit, and has received 18 pints of blood since he was admitted.

The hospital issued a plea for type O-negative blood early Thursday morning when Boice underwent emergency surgery on his liver, which had been damaged in the accident.

The hospital blood bank reportedly received "well over 100 calls" from persons with the uncommon blood type who wished to donate, ending the need for blood.

BOICE ALSO RECEIVED four broken ribs in the Wednesday morning accident. Of the other two students seriously injured, the hospital spokesman said one remains in serious condition, but has improved, while the other has improved to satisfactory condition.

William Horn, 17, of 1345 N. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights, is listed in serious condition but is said to be much improved. Horn, who was transferred out of the intensive care unit Saturday, received surgery on his back for a compressed fracture of the upper spine. He is reportedly paralyzed below the fracture, but has regained "some feeling in his thighs," according to hospital spokesmen.

William Kelly, 17, of 751 S. Burton Pl., Arlington Heights has reportedly improved substantially and is now listed in satisfactory condition. Kelly also received a compressed fracture of the upper spine, but did not require surgery according to the spokesman.

Another Apartment Building Fire; None Hurt

Firemen from 10 suburban communities battled for more than four hours Saturday to bring fire under control at a Meadow Trace apartment building in Rolling Meadows.

No injuries were reported from the fire, but residents of 28 apartments in the building were left homeless. Fire broke out about noon in the building located just south of Algonquin Road and west of Rte. 53.

Most of the apartment dwellers were given temporary housing in the Holiday Inn on Algonquin Road by the American Red Cross. Their furniture and other belongings were either destroyed by the fire or scattered in the snow a few feet from the building as smoke that could be seen from a mile away billowed black and high from the structure.

Tomorrow: Personal Property Tax Lists

Tomorrow's edition of the Herald will include the 1970 Township Personal Property Tax List.

The cause of the blaze is still undetermined, according to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty. Both the chief and a state fire marshal investigated the scene yesterday.

Fogarty theorized the fire apparently started in the basement of the building. After firemen extinguished the blaze, they worked all night Saturday clearing rubble from the smoldering ruins.

ED BERRY, Meadow Trace assistant manager, was the first to see the fire. "The circuit breakers started popping and smoke started coming through the circuit box and phone box in the office," he said. Berry said he immediately telephoned the fire department and began notifying occupants of the 28 persons in the building to evacuate.

Although there are 32 apartments in the building, only 28 of them were occupied at the time of the fire. Occupants of 26 of the apartments registered with the Red Cross for emergency aid. It's believed residents of the other two apartments were out of town at the time of the fire.

"A little girl and I ran up and down the halls telling people there was a fire," according to Miss Mary Overman, a secretary at Meadow Trace. "I knew it was nothing to mess around with," she said. The blaze that began in the basement was contained in the western half of the building, but all apartments received water and smoke damage, according to fire officials. There was a boiler room and a washing machine room in the basement. Each tenant also had a locker for personal belongings in the basement.

JOHN BLYTH, Meadow Trace building manager, said the building was probably totally destroyed. "Structurally it is ruined," he said.

The south wall of the building collapsed after firemen had battled the blaze for more than two hours.

Other apartment buildings nearby were not damaged. The unit gutted by fire was one of several identical wood-frame structures that house more than 700 apartments in the complex. The apartment complex was built in 1966.

Meadow Trace officials called a detective agency to guard the furniture that was removed from the building. Saturday night all of the furniture was loaded on trucks for storage.

Some of the tenants of the fire gutted building found temporary lodging and protection from the cold with friends and neighbors. The American Red Cross arranged housing for many of the homeless Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows.

MEADOW TRACE officials said that temporary housing will be provided for the homeless at other apartments in the area.

Representatives of the Salvation Army, Civil Defense, Commonwealth Edison and the Army Nike Base on Central Road were on hand to assist firemen and residents.

This was the first fire that has called for the recently approved mutual aid agreement between 20 Northwestern suburban fire departments. Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Fogarty, who answered the original call, asked for the aid after arriving at the scene of the fire.

Fogarty said the response from the other departments was excellent, and that the agreement "worked out very well." Only a week ago, the first emergency fire drill, involving 16 fire departments, was held at Randhurst Center in Mount Prospect.

Earlier Fires Prompted Code Improvements, But —

by JAMES VESELY

Saturday's fire which destroyed part of the Meadow Trace apartment complex is the latest in a long history of apartment house fires which have plagued Rolling Meadows in the span of four years, and the latest of four severe fires within two years.

In November, 1966, ten families were evacuated from apartments at Algonquin Park after a fire raged through the basement of the complex. The fire was quickly brought under control by Rolling Meadows firemen but the flames caused apartments above the basement storage area to suffer some damage.

In February, 1969, the first of two fires at the Three Fountains apartment complex on Algonquin Road caused $700,000 damage to the nearly completed structure. According to a man at the scene at the time, the center building of the apartment complex literally exploded in a mass of flames. Cause of the blaze was attributed to an overheated furnace.

The first Three Fountains fire prompted Rolling Meadows officials to consider the purchase of new fire equipment for the city.

In fact, it was during a discussion of new equipment purchase at the city hall that fire struck the King's Walk Apartments at Euclid and Plum Grove Road. Three buildings were destroyed in that fire and one structure was completely razed before firemen could get to the scene. Icy winds that night spread the fire and witnesses to the scene said the glow of the blaze could be seen three miles away. King's Walk was also under construction at the time of the fire.

Shortly after the two major fires occurred in February and March, 1969, city officials of Rolling Meadows began a hard look at their fire codes. Local officials admitted then that Rolling Meadows had been designed as a single family residential community and that the local fire code had fallen behind the times.

In April, 1969, city officials took steps to enforce stricter building rules and decreed that new construction would not be allowed to advance above the foundation level until new requirements were added to the fire code.

Then, tragically, more than 100 persons were made homeless in a second major fire at Three Fountains.

In May, 1970, firemen from four suburban departments fought all night to curb flames from a three-story, 48-apartment building at Three Fountains. Although the city of Rolling Meadows had adopted the Building Officials of America fire code (BOCA) by that time, inspection of the remaining Three Fountains buildings showed that the structures had no sprinkler system or fire alarm, fire walls that did not go completely to the roof and less than the number of fire doors recommended by the fire chief.

The Three Fountains fire caused new criticism of the fire codes and their enforcement in the city, and in the summer of 1970, the Rolling Meadows Fire Department issued a booklet to residents of the six major apartment complexes in the city giving instructions what to do in case fire struck.

Stenzel 3rd Man To File Petitions For Park Board

Robert Stenzel, 310 S. Dwyer Ave., Friday afternoon became the third man to file petitions for the Arlington Heights Park Board.

A resident of the village for more than three years, Stenzel is a patent attorney for the law firm of Hill, Sherman, Meroni, Gross and Simpson in Chicago.

Stenzel and his wife, Betty, have two daughters, Susan, 11, and Jennie, 4. He is chairman of the patent subcommittee of the Chicago Bar Association and is a member of the South Junior High PTA.

The attorney said he filed for the park board because he is interested in the park district and wants to see that people "receive the maximum use of our park system."

Before moving to Arlington Heights, Stenzel had served as an advisor for Junior Achievement and was a member of the Jaycees.

Stenzel filed his petitions for the six-year term which will be open on the park board. He will be competing against Lewis O'Donnell, 815 Kimber Ln., who filed previously for the same term.

Only one man has filed for the four-year seat which will be open. He is William Meister, 133 N. Rammer Ave.

Prospective candidates have until Feb. 1 to file petitions for the two open seats on the park board. Incumbents Jack Edwards and E. E. Ormsbee have stated they will not be running in the April 6 election.

To be eligible for the park board, residents must file petitions with at least 139 signatures. Petition forms may be picked up and must be returned to the park district administration offices in Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave.

Although candidates must file petitions before Feb. 1, they have the option of withdrawing from the race until Feb. 6.

Book Scheduled For Release Soon

The large and small events that make up the history of Arlington Heights and the surrounding area have been compiled in a book "Prairieville, U.S.A." by long-time resident Daisy Paddock Daniels.

A pre-publication sale of the book, which will be printed this fall, will begin next Monday. Pre-publication price will be $5. The book will be sold at the First Arlington National Bank, The Bank and Trust Company of Arlington Heights, The Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, The Arlington Heights Memorial Library and Randhurst.

The sale will continue through Saturday. All proceeds will go to the Arlington Heights Historical Society.

For the rest of this week, the Herald will present a series of the small stories which help give the book the flavor of Arlington Heights past: "A short, wiry retired farmer who had lost several fingers in the course of his work saved many children from walking home from the elementary school on Arlington Heights Road during the winter. Billy Gile would hitch his team of horses to a bobsled during the winter, pick the children up and drive them home. The children developed such a love for Billy that they collected pennies until they could buy him a pair of gloves."

Residents Overwhelmingly Turn Down Sports Complex

Des Plaines residents voted down a $1,435,000 bond referendum in a record turnout Saturday by a margin of 7 to 1.

The Des Plaines Park District lost the referendum 3,884 to 559, which would have paid for a large multi-purpose sports complex at Lake Park.

It was the first time a park district referendum has ever been defeated.

The complex, which had been designed by Ahrendt Engineering Co. of Chicago, would have included a professional sized hockey ice rink, a large multi-purpose gymnasium and four smaller meeting rooms.

THE COMPLEX would have cost residents $9.40 a year, over a 10-year period, on $10,000 assessed property valuation.

Des Plaines residents would also have had to pay $30 for a yearly family pass to the ice rink.

According to Fred Arndt, Park Board president, it was the high cost of the complex which caused the referendum to be defeated.

"I think people voted to protect themselves against taxes," he said, "and that's because of the condition we have in the country now."

Arndt added that he was surprised at the high voter turnout. "I thought we'd have about 3,000 people voting but this is probably the highest turnout we've ever had. But in any case, I didn't think we would get defeated as badly as we did."

Throughout their campaign for the complex, park board members maintained the complex would provide the district with much needed space for new programs and expanded ice skating activities.

OPPONENTS OF the complex contended that residents of Des Plaines did not really need such a facility and the taxes on bond would have been too high.

One opponent, Ed Keane of 2048 Webster Lane, spoke to several city civic groups asking them to defeat the referendum.

Keane said Saturday he was extremely pleased with the referendum results. "I think it's great. I honestly feel taxation in this instance would have been used frivolously."

"I'm especially pleased with the total number of votes," Keane continued, "I think it's a good indication that a little work goes a long way."

Voting results at the five polling places were: Precinct 1 (Knights of Columbus Hall) 49 yes votes and 536 no; Precinct 2 (South Park fieldhouse): 171 yes votes and 1,197 no votes; Precinct No. 3 (Orchard Place School): 27 yes votes and 306 no votes; Precinct No. 4 (West Park fieldhouse): 185 yes votes and 1,154 no votes and Precinct No. 5 (Chippewa Junior High): 127 yes votes and 691 no votes.

State, Sexton Chiefs To Meet

State officials will meet Thursday with representatives of the John Sexton Sand and Gravel Corp. to consider a ban on the company's filling of a 40-acre Des Plaines River flood plain.

John C. Guillou, chief engineer of the Illinois Division of Waterways, said Friday Sexton will be required to apply for a state permit if it wants to raise the flood plain elevation by more than three or four feet.

His agency could then decide to halt the filling if changes in the flood plain level would adversely affect the flow of the river, Guillou said.

Sexton has been given until March 1 to remove a temporary bridge, used by earth moving equipment to haul dirt fill from Sexton's landfill site on the east bank to the flood plain on the west bank, one-half mile north of Central Road.

Guillou last month ordered Sexton to limit its filling to three or four feet after testimony at a waterways division hearing in Des Plaines brought out Sexton's intention to add up to 15 feet of fill to the low-lying site.

HE SAID YESTERDAY, however, that he doesn't know if Sexton has been obeying the three or four foot limit.

Both the bridge and flood plain filling have been denounced by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and several conservation groups, who say the bridge is a hazard to canoeists and the filling could aggravate flooding problems.

If Sexton raises the flood plain so water will not flow onto it during river flood stages, Guillou explained Friday, his agency will determine the effect of such a move on the river and may order the company to change its plans.

Guillou said he has been waiting for Sexton to submit engineering plans showing how flood waters would flow onto and off the flood plain if the company were allowed to complete its filling operation.

Those plans, he said, will be reviewed at the Thursday meeting.

THE ILLINOIS ATTORNEY General's office was unsuccessful in its efforts last month to obtain immediate removal of the Sexton bridge. In a circuit court suit, a judge backed up the waterways division's March 1 deadline, but declined to order it removed immediately.

Sexton built the bridge last fall without seeking state permission and later received a waterways division permit after modifying the culvert bridge so that canoes and small boats could pass underneath.

It's A Case Of 'Unlock Jaw'

Fifteen-year-old Sam Scolaro 1653 Walnut of Des Plaines had to be taken from his home to Holy Family Hospital last week after his dental braces locked together.

Des Plaines firemen Wednesday took him to the hospital's emergency room where doctors unlocked his jaws.

THIS LITTLE OL' WINE maker is Des Plaines resident Bill Harz. He's been making wine in his home as a hobby for the past five years.

Makes Good Wine And He's Not Italian!

by CYNTHIA TIVERS

If you don't have to be a Jewish mother to make good chicken soup, then you don't have to be Italian to make good wine.

Bill Harz, a Des Plaines policeman and amateur wine-maker is a good example. Harz has been making wine at home for five years, but his feet aren't tired from stomping on grapes (that's not his job) and his taste buds aren't worn out from tasing his products.

"I started making wine five years ago," Harz said, "after I read an ad for a wine supply house in Canada. They sent me a brochure and I realized that wine-making is a great hobby."

Harz said he registered with the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the Internal Revenue Service and then started making the wine.

"I can make up to 200 gallons a year at home," he explained, "and that's tax free. But I can't sell it or give it away. We have to drink it ourselves."

Harz thinks that making wine is not as complicated as most people think. "all you need is a fruit or vegetable, sugar, water and yeast. You combine the ingredients after you crush the fruit. Then you add the other ingredients and the mixture works itself."

"THE WINE FERMENTS," Harz continued, "and after about a month it should be racked. That is, the liquid should be siphoned to get the impurities out. It should then be racked again every three months."

Harz said the wine is fit to drink after about a year. "But the longer you can keep it the better it gets. It mellows and gets richer tasting — not stronger, as most people think."

Harz has made about 20 different kinds of wine using anything from bananas to dandelions. "I've got 12 fruit trees in my back yard and when the fruit gets ripe I use it for wine. We also use dandelions. The whole family goes out to the forest preserve and picks them. It's fun and it makes it a family thing."

Harz says he likes to make the wine better than drink it. "I never like commercial wine and I never could afford good imported wines. But making it is so much fun and it doesn't take a lot of money either."

He has at least 125 bottles of home-made wine in his basement and some of it is five years old. He spends a lot of time working at his hobby but he only drinks a couple of bottles a month.

Honor Boy's Science Study: A School First

LEON SHURE

A Maine West High School senior has won national recognition for his scientific research.

Jonathan Baldo, 17, of 851 S. Wolf Rd., was among 300 high school students in the nation who won honors last week in the 30th annual Westinghouse Science Talent Search.

As a talent search winner, Jon might be among 40 students, to be named Jan. 30, who will go to Washington D.C., to compete for Westinghouse scholarships.

The science talent search is sponsored by the Westinghouse Electronic Corporation to find high school seniors with potential to become research scientists.

Being among the 300 honored means Jon will be recommended for college scholarships.

JON, WHOSE RESEARCH project was on genetic changes in plants, is "a student of high ability" and perseverance, according to Louis Bergdolt, Maine West science department chairman.

No Maine West student has won such high recognition in the Westinghouse search in recent years, Bergdolt said.

Jon has been doing basic scientific research, with the help of an associate professor at Purdue University, in Indiana, Bergdolt said. Jon's research is almost equivalent to research of a college graduate student, he said.

Jon prepared a 20-page report on his research project for the Westinghouse research. The paper, "Investigation of an Unstable Gene producing Chlorophyll Variegation in Medicago Falcata" told of his research and observations of one type of Alfalfa under varying conditions.

He began his research last summer when he was one of three Maine West students accepted by the National Science Foundation summer program. While at Purdue, Jon participated in seminars and began his project with an associate professor.

HIS OTHER AWARDS and honors include the Bausch Lomb science medal for being the outstanding Maine West science student. He has won yearly awards for his science work from Maine West science teachers. He won a school research award for his work on solubility of salt solutions.

Among his other activities, Jon is vice president of the science club.

Jon attended West school, 1012 Thacker, and Algonquin Junior High School, 767 Algonquin, before going to Maine West, 1755 S. Wolf Rd. His parents are Gaspar and Ebba Baldo, and he has a brother Christopher, 25, and a sister Elizabeth, 18.

Jon said his interest in science began in high school, where he enjoyed his science classes. He became especially interested in his junior year when he took a science seminar course, which allowed him to do scientific research.

HE HAS APPLIED to three colleges. The University of Illinois in Urbana, the University of Chicago and Michigan State University.

He isn't sure yet what he wants to major in, but he is "leaning towards biological science."

Jon said he is hopeful of being selected for the Washington trip, which would also include shaking hands with President Nixon. "It would really be a thrill."

Cut Your Own Taxes

Remember To Ponder Taxes And Interest

by RAY DE CRANE
The most common taxes to be listed on your return will be real estate taxes, sales tax, gasoline tax and personal property taxes.

Charts prepared by Internal Revenue Service and included in your manual of instructions containing your income tax forms show the allowable gasoline tax and sales tax.

Depending upon the number of non-business miles driven and the per gallon state tax on gasoline, the chart will calculate your gas tax deduction. Don't forget to take credit for a second or even a third car in the family if you are buying the gas for it. Should an unusually high gas tax deduction be claimed because of ownership of a second or third car, it would be well to note that fact on your return for the guidance of the IRS examiner.

The sales tax charts for the various states will show the accepted deduction dependent upon gross income and the number in the household. Don't forget to add to the normal chart allowance for sales tax the actual amount of sales tax on an automobile purchased in 1970.

Real estate taxes are deductible for the year in which paid. If you have a mortgage on your home and the real estate taxes are included in your monthly payment, your real estate tax deduction is not necessarily the amount put aside for taxes. That money went into a tax reserve account. Check your bank or savings and loan to determine the exact amount of real estate taxes paid for the year.

ANY INTEREST paid for the use of money of a nonbusiness nature is fully deductible. This will generally include interest on a home mortgage, home improvement loan, car purchase, interest on notes to a bank, savings and loan, credit union or a finance company.

Interest paid to a broker for a margin account is also deductible. So, too, is the prepayment penalty on a mortgage paid off before maturity.

Carrying charges on installment purchases generally include a service and insurance charge in addition to interest. To determine the allowable interest, multiply the average monthly unpaid balance by 6 per cent.

Interest paid to Internal Revenue Service for late payment on a tax return is deductible. But a penalty payment for late payment of a bill is not deductible — (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Dist. 214 To Award Bus Contracts

The High School Dist. 214 board tonight will act to award three-year bus contracts to Ritzenthaler Bus Co. and the Cook County Bus Co.

As proposed by the district's administration, Ritzenthaler would continue to supply buses for Arlington Prospect, John Hersey and Wheeling High School, while Cook County would provide service to Forest View, Elk Grove and the new Rolling Meadows High school. The pattern is similar to past busing patterns.

The daily rate per bus for Ritzenthaler would be $39.50, the daily rate per bus, with Cook County set at $41.30.

For the 1972-73 year, that rate would increase by 3 per cent for Ritzenthaler, 4 per cent for Cook County, with both companies increasing the rates by another 3 per cent the following year.

In other action at the meeting, scheduled to begin at 7:30 at 799 W. Kensington, Mount Prospect, the board will act on a resolution to set the time and the place to file petitions for the April 10th school board elections.

THE ADMINISTRATION has recommended that petitions be accepted on weekdays and Saturdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. from Feb. 24 to March 19.

The two incumbent board members, Leah Cummings of Elk Grove Village and chairman Richard Bachhuber of Mount Prospect, recently announced they would seek reelection.

No other persons have announced as candidates.

The board will also hear a report from member Arthur Aronson on a meeting of the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC), held on Jan. 9.

The meeting was held to discuss the future role of the cooperative, which came under fire recently from board members in districts 54, 211 and 214.

Jim: "Declarer's first consideration in no-trump play is to look around for ways he can develop tricks to add to the sure ones he started with."

Oswald: "If he can develop enough tricks to guarantee his contract by going after one specific suit he should go after that suit. If he can attack two or even three suits he should start with the suit that will allow him to go after the others later on."

Jim: "South has seven top tricks to start with. He can surely get one more in spades and two more if West holds the king. He will get one extra trick in hearts if the suit breaks 3-3; one extra trick in clubs if the finesse is on; two extra tricks in diamonds if the suit behaves very nicely or one extra trick if the suit behaves fairly well. The prospects are pleasing, but a careless declarer might well get himself set."

Oswald: "If he attacks spades at trick two East will get on lead with the king and shift to a club. South will play the queen. West will take his king and clear the suit before South has a chance to develop a diamond trick and another game will have disappeared."

Jim: "If South attacks diamonds at trick two he will be able to keep the dangerous hand out of the lead. The winning play is to take the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts, lead a diamond and play the eight or 10. This will lose to West's jack, but he can't hurt you in clubs. South will have set up his third diamond trick and will be left with time to knock out the king of spades."

Oswald: "Should West hold four diamonds to the queen-jack South won't be able to set up a third diamond trick, but he will still have time for other suits."

Meadow Trace Building Guttled

-- None Injured

Firemen from 10 suburban communities battled for more than four hours Saturday to bring fire under control at a Meadow Trace apartment building in Rolling Meadows.

No injuries were reported from the fire, but residents of 28 apartments in the building were left homeless. Fire broke out about noon in the building located just south of Algonquin Road and west of Rte. 53.

Most of the apartment dwellers were given temporary housing in the Holiday Inn on Algonquin Road by the American Red Cross. Their furniture and other belongings were either destroyed by the fire or scattered in the snow a few feet from the building as smoke that could be seen from a mile away billowed black and high from the structure.

The cause of the blaze is still undetermined, according to Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty. Both the chief and a state fire marshal investigated the scene yesterday.

Fogarty theorized the fire apparently started in the basement of the building. After firemen extinguished the blaze, they worked all night Saturday clearing rubble from the smoldering ruins.

ED BERRY, Meadow Trace assistant manager, was the first to see the fire. "The circuit breakers started popping and smoke started coming through the circuit box and phone box in the office," he said. Berry said he immediately telephoned the fire department and began notifying occupants of the 28 persons in the building to evacuate.

Although there are 32 apartments in the building, only 28 of them were occupied at the time of the fire. Occupants of 28 of the apartments registered with the Red Cross for emergency aid. It's believed residents of the other two apartments were out of town at the time of the fire.

"A little girl and I ran up and down the halls telling people there was a fire," according to Miss Mary Overman, a secretary at Meadow Trace. "I knew it was nothing to mess around with," she said.

The blaze that began in the basement was contained in the western half of the building, but all apartments received water and smoke damage, according to fire officials. There was a boiler room and a washing machine room in the basement. Each tenant also had a locker for personal belongings in the basement.

JOHN BLYTH, Meadow Trace building manager, said the building was probably totally destroyed. "Structurally it is ruined," he said.

The south wall of the building collapsed after firemen had battled the blaze for more than two hours.

Other apartment buildings nearby were not damaged. The unit gutted by fire was one of several identical wood-frame structures that house more than 700 apartments in the complex. The apartment complex was built in 1966.

Meadow Trace officials called a detective agency to guard the furniture that was removed from the building. Saturday night all of the furniture was loaded on trucks for storage.

Some of the tenants of the fire gutted building found temporary lodging and protection from the cold with friends and neighbors. The American Red Cross arranged housing for many of the homeless Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows.

MEADOW TRACE officials said that temporary housing will be provided for the homeless at other apartments in the area.

Representatives of the Salvation Army, Civil Defense, Commonwealth Edison and the Army Nike Base on Central Road were on hand to assist firemen and residents.

This was the first fire that has called for the recently approved mutual aid agreement between 20 Northwestern suburban fire departments. Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Fogarty, who answered the original call, asked for the aid after arriving at the scene of the fire.

Fogarty said the response from the other departments was excellent, and that the agreement "worked out very well." Only a week ago, the first emergency fire drill, involving 16 fire departments, was held at Randhurst Center in Mount Prospect.

'Place For People' Now Nonprofit

A Maine West high school senior, Bob Roschke, 372 Stratford Ln., Des Plaines, has been an active member of the Place for People Drop-In Center, which meets at the Rand Park Fieldhouse, Dempster near Parkview. This is his report of recent Drop-In Center news.

Place For People has recently become a not-for-profit corporation. This will have a direct influence on the Des Plaines Drop-In center. The most important fact is that it now gives the youth center access to larger amounts of money through possible government grants.

This change in the structure of Place For People is representative of the work the youth at PFP are doing. The changes are based on the feeling that Drop-In center has a tremendous number of possibilities. Many of the young people have begun to work on some of the dreams they would like to see happen.

The dreams and visions of what Place For People can become cover many areas. A number of youth have started working on establishing a free-school system. A system of this kind would consist of several different educational courses. The classes would be held once a week at Drop-In center.

The first class will probably be a music workshop. It will be open to anyone interested in music and music theory. Other possible courses will be in the fields of art, dramatics, drugs and yoga.

Another idea started by the youth at Place For People would be a food drive for needy families in the area. Besides helping themselves, people feel a need to help others.

IN THE PAST, Drop-In center had a "rap session" every Wednesday night in which ways to make money were discussed. Recently, they have begun to ask speakers to come in and talk about various subjects. The first Wednesday night they had a Des Plaines policeman talk about the police department. It gave many people an opportunity to speak with someone they normally would not communicate with.

The dream most often talked about is the possibility of PFP getting their own building. While people enjoy the facilities at Rand Park, there is still room for improvement. The best place would be in the center of town, with several small rooms and a large hall. The small rooms could be used for office space, counseling, and the free-school classes.

Now that Place For People is chartered, the governing body has become more structured. The first part of the new structure is the core committee. It consists of 10 young people involved in PFP chosen for six monthly terms. The responsibility of this committee is to find what the youth at PFP want and to then set up corresponding programs.

The second part of the new structure is the board of directors. This board consists of youth from the Drop-In center as well as interested adults from the community. It is through this board that financial support is gained and that policy decisions are made.

The final part of the new structure is the board of trustees. This is a six-member board that holds the legal responsibility for PFP.

IT IS THROUGH the working together of these boards and committees that the youth at the drop-in center can see their dreams and visions become realities.

The need for a place like PFP, in Des Plaines is evident in its growing attendance. In order for a community to survive, it will need to provide something in addition to sports and recreation facilities. Place For People is teaching many young people responsibility as well as giving them a satisfactory place to get together. But for them to continue, financial, as well as moral support is needed.

Several of the youth at Place For People have begun making a movie of what the drop-in center is about. This film will be sent to various churches and community organizations along with several people from the Drop-In center. The film will be ready after Feb. 1 and appointments for its presentation can be made by calling David Russell at First Congregational Church, 299-5561.

Interfaith Council To 'Aid Youth'

The Interfaith Council of Des Plaines will work in 1971 to help solve youth problems, according to members of the group's executive committee.

The council, which has members from 15 Des Plaines churches, will seek volunteers for a Big Brother-Big Sister program being created by the Des Plaines Youth Commission. About 20 applications have already been forwarded to the commission, according to the council's former chairman, Lou Joseph, 1933 Locust.

The Big Brother-Big Sister program is for Des Plaines youths who might benefit from friendship with adult volunteers.

In a presentation to the council last Thursday, the Rev. Ernest Grant, Youth Commission chairman, told the group that juvenile problems are increasing sharply.

The Big Brother program is needed because changes in the state and county mean more youth counseling will have to be done in the community, even though counseling service here is already overburdened, Rev. Grant said.

DES PLAINE'S JUVENILE officers, who were able to do counseling several years ago, now have little time to talk with juvenile offenders because of population growth and rising arrest rates.

The Maine Township Mental Health

Association, 1032 Lee St., which does diagnostic counseling for juvenile offenders, reports that in many cases young people would benefit from mature adult friendship, Rev. Grant said.

Juvenile problems are increasing because of the urbanization of society and weakening of family ties, he said.

IN OTHER COUNCIL actions, new officers were selected for 1971. Elected president was Harold Fisher, 1140 Oakwood, an electrical design engineer, who has been a lay leader at the First United Methodist Church, Graceland and Prairie streets.

Vice chairman is Neil Fisher, a member of the St. Zachary's Catholic Church, 567 W. Algonquin; secretary is Mrs. Paul Rivard, of the First Congregational, Graceland and Marion, and the treasurer is Ralph Davis, of the First Presbyterian Church, Howard and Maple.

The council is composed of five representatives from participating Des Plaines churches and Maine Township Jewish Congregations. The group has members from the Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths.

THE COUNCIL WAS formed several years ago under the sponsorship of the Des Plaines Ministerial Association.

The purpose of the Interfaith council "is to encourage closer unity and understanding among all men of good will, acknowledging God, our common father as the foundation of our action in areas of human need in our community," according to the groups "Statement of Purpose."

In 1970, the group visited the American Indian Center in Chicago and contributed about $50 to the Indian self-help organization, according to Joseph.

The group also sponsored a Fourth of July float, and offered the second annual outdoor Sunrise service last summer at Lake Park, Howard and Lee.

The 45 minute interfaith service was conducted by nonclergy from several area churches, Joseph said. The main theme for the service was ecology, the relationship of people to their environment.

PERFORMING WERE a guitar group from St. Stephen's Catholic Church, 1267 Everett; and a youth choir from the First Presbyterian Church. Presentations were made by members of the Trinity Lutheran Church, 675 W. Algonquin; the Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8809 Ballard; and St. Zachary's Catholic Church.

Speakers at the quarterly meetings of the group have included the Rev. John Pietra, a priest who burned draft records in Chicago; Ann Evans, Con-Con delegate; and Miss Faith Smith, official of the American Indian Center.

Dist. 63 Announces Low-Cost Lunch Plan

East Maine School Dist. 63 has announced the establishment of a policy to determine children eligible to receive free or reduced price lunches. The school district has long recognized the need for helping meet the nutritional needs of students, according to district officials, who said a well-balanced, nutritious lunch is served each school day at Gemini and Apollo Junior schools.

The charge to students who can pay, is 40 cents daily. Some families however may find it difficult to pay the full price for their children, so the school will provide these lunches free or at a reduced price to those children determined eligible.

Families who believe that their children may be eligible for free or reduced price lunches are urged to apply. Copies of the application form and information regarding procedures for application were sent to parents Jan. 13. Additional copies may be obtained or the complete district policy may be reviewed by any interested person at 8320 Ballard Rd., Niles.

The completed application, signed by an adult family member should be sent to Patricia A. Kolvek, assistant business manager, 8320 Ballard Rd., Niles, Ill. 60648. Such applications will be reviewed within five days and the family will be notified in writing of the decision made.

INFORMATION PROVIDED on the application will be held in strictest confidence. Decisions for approval will be based primarily on the family income level according to a national guideline used by participating schools throughout the United States and prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Any unusual circumstances or hardships which affect the family's ability to pay for the lunches will also be considered. If a family is not satisfied with the decision made regarding their application, they may appeal the request to James E. Bowen, business manager, who will review the application to try to make satisfactory arrangements. The district policy will be applied fairly and uniformly to all children and will be effective Jan. 1.

Parents who believe they may qualify are urged to apply as it is the sincere desire of the district to reach every child who may need the benefit of a nutritious lunch at school, officials said.

What's Happening With Abortion

Abortion Question Evokes Strong Emotions

by MARY B. GOOD
(Second of three parts)

Just mention the word "abortion" and you open the emotional floodgates of public opinion.

The Paddock Publications' letters to the editor pages have been a hotbed of debate long before and ever since the newspapers took an editorial stand favoring legalized abortion on May 6, 1970. This fall and winter came another surge of letter-writing.

"Nothing less than murder," Mrs. Frank C. Johaneck, Arlington Heights.

"It isn't an exaggeration to foresee infanticide and mercy killing as a 'necessary' social follow-up," Mrs. Donald McKinney, Bensenville.

"Those humans who live selfishly only for themselves and their own comfort and pleasure are also only just so much human flotsam," Mrs. R. Nagy, Buffalo Grove.

"Are we animals that a life can be destroyed with the paying of a few hundred dollars to the abortionist? They are lining their pockets with blood money . . . who can justify the killing?" Virginia Sandberg, Mount Prospect.

"IT (ABORTION) was a common and accepted practice in the Roman Empire and contributed to the moral decline and fall of that nation. Does history have to repeat itself?" Judy Toye, Prospect Heights.

"When man starts playing God, he's in serious trouble," Mary Svec, Des Plaines.

Opponents of abortion law relaxation and criminal wrong. They favor the rights of the unborn child over the mother.

Activists seeking legalized abortion defend their position by upholding the rights of the mother. They want to separate the church from the state, to make abortion a strictly medical matter — like the decision to remove an appendix, a tonsil or a tooth.

DR. LONNY MYERS, abortion crusader, at a tea for legislators' wives held to discuss the dignity of women, commented:

"As an educated woman, I resent changing my life to conceive an unwanted baby."

(Selfish, charge the critics.)

"Society says, 'Tough on you, baby, do the best you can with the pregnancy.' The doctor says, 'Too bad.' The law says, 'Have the baby.' It evokes a gut response in women," said Dr. Myers.

The arguments go back and forth centering on freedom of choice, rights of the unborn, humanitarianism, morality, definition of human life and when it begins, the quality of life. But truce is never declared because the controversy is so emotionally charged.

"WHEN THE ISSUE comes up in the state legislature," said Rep. Eugenia A. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, "It's good for a two-hour debate."

The Rev. Ruppert Lovely, an Arlington Heights clergyman who gives abortion counseling, notes the vehemence that clouds the issue.

"The general thrust against abortion is punitive. The reason people use the language of murder and moralism is motivated by a desire to punish women for having sex," he said. "I can usually spot the people who oppose abortion law reform. They are generally the same people who favor capital punishment."

"As a nation and as a people, we collaborate in the policy of supporting and driving autos, for example. Our collaboration in that terminates thousands of lives and maims and cripples thousands more. Nobody calls this murder. We call this manslaughter and accidents. We know lives will be terminated, but no one says this is immoral," he opined.

"WE MAKE OUR decision on whether to use the auto based on the overall good or bad that it accomplishes for us. I suggest we ought to approach the issue of abortion on the same basis — measuring the good or evil in terms of overall quality of life for the individuals involved."

(Bad analogy counter the critics.)

With the Illinois General Assembly now in session, the issue is likely to be debated even more hotly as proponents of reform try to change the state's law on abortion and opponents fight as rigorously against change.

The Best Is Yet To Come

The Rewards Of Maturity

by ALISON GODDARD

Our romantic folklore often ends with a wedding and the line: "And they lived happily ever after." Well, "ever after" today, happily or otherwise, is a much longer period than it used to be.

Only a half century ago, when the last child married, one of the parents was usually deceased. Today, with earlier marriages, fewer children, better health and increased longevity, a woman of 40 can look forward to almost another 40 years of life. For the married couple, these bonus years mean that they will have almost as many years together without children in the home as they had with them.

Families have changed, too, in this century. Before, families lived close together, united by common customs and a mutual regard for the family's position in the community. Urbanization, technology and, later, the post-World War II trek to suburbia scattered families, except where the old pattern still survives in parts of large cities.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Esther Westervelt, director of the New York State Guidance Center for Women, this change has increased loneliness and greatly influenced women's entry and re-entry into the labor market.

"With the mobility of our society, many wives have moved a number of times and haven't put down roots, really don't know many people very well and are lonely . . . So many of our suburbs have grown without any planning for real neighborhood patterns. It is not easy for many women to make friends and establish themselves in a neighborhood," she said.

These changes have also triggered other problems as this generation of mature women move from what one expert called "the security of the known past to an uncertain future." These changes have led to paradoxes: more marriages and more divorces; more resources and greater debts; more freedom and greater insecurity.

STUDIES HAVE SHOWN that when the last child is grown and leaves home, the chances for maladjustment rise. This is particularly true for the mother who has devoted herself to the children and is now left with a feeling of abandonment because of the "empty nest."

Dr. Paul Popenoe, founder and director of the American Institute of Family Relations, states that this can often lead to the mother-in-law problem: "The woman has for years given up everything, she claims, to give her daughter a chance. She has focused on getting her daughter married off, and when that happens and the daughter moves away, she sometimes feels that the nest is not only empty but there isn't any nest after all. So she takes it very hard, and we have the mother-in-law problem."

He adds that such mothers-in-law are usually motivated by the best of intentions or loneliness, because they have become too dependent on their offspring.

Another problem in mature years is divorce, which is on the rise among this group. Dr. Alfred A. Messer, a psychiatrist of Emory University, Atlanta, calls this trend "the twenty-year fracture" because it occurs after the last child has left home. He attributes this to our "child-oriented" society, where the focus is predominantly on the children.

OTHER PROBLEMS also arise after the last child has left home. Sometimes wives and husbands are shocked to discover that they don't really "know" their mates.

Dr. Charles Kramer, director of the Family Institute of Chicago, said such people sometimes discover that "they are strangers at this point and, instead of turning to each other and building a better — or in some cases even a new life together, they frequently seek unhealthy ways of doing things: alcoholism, extra-marital affairs, neurotic behavior of various kinds."

If mature couples adjust to the crises of these years, the outlook is bright, according to another authority. "I think it is rather encouraging to note that as women and men move into the fifties," she said, "studies show that if they managed to weather the crises of the forties things tend to get better. You have higher rates of marriage happiness; in fact, you can have a second honeymoon."

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I am wondering what has happened to little girls' party dresses. I searched everywhere for a pretty dress for my granddaughter this past Christmas season without any luck. Has the mini-midi question boiled up the whole dress business? —Sheila M.

Found myself in the same boat. Finally settled on a tailored dress for our granddaughter with muttered apologies on the side to the daughter-in-law. A little checking has revealed a trend away from the fancy dresses of yesterday. What with laundering such an item these days with the various magic fabrics, any young mother ought to go for the idea.

Dear Dorothy: Do dried fruits have to be stored in the refrigerator? —Rose H.

Dried fruits can be stored at cool room temperature for six months or longer. Prunes and raisins are apt to retain their color longer than lightly colored fruits like apples, apricots and peaches.

Dear Dorothy: My son left a ballpoint pen in the pocket of his brand-new, green-striped bell-bottoms. Practically all the ink leaked out and I was sure the pants were ruined. However, I saturated the area with rubbing alcohol and rubbed briskly with a small brush. Then made up a solution of the new powdered chlorine bleach and applied it with the brush and scrubbed a bit more. The pants were then laundered, as usual. They came out spotless. —Mrs. Carol Burchett

Love your ingenuity but which one did the trick?

Dear Dorothy: To remove plastic wrap which has adhered to silver, just dip in boiling water. If it doesn't loosen the first time, dip again and it will slip right off. —Mrs. Louis R. Whiteker.

Dear Dorothy: Thought you might be interested in a little adventure we have had this winter with a frozen rib roast.

My husband preceded me in a long distance move and took along a freezer chest. I put a good-sized frozen roast in it to keep other things cold. When he got to his destination, the roast was not completely frozen but cold enough so he put it into the freezer of our new home. Christmas-time we took the roast along to our hostess where we were going to stay. We forgot it in the truck of the car and it was in there for two days before we remembered. It was still cold so it was cooked for dinner that night. It was one of the best roasts we've ever had. Were we taking a chance? —Mrs. Howard K.

You were actually following all the rules about refrigerating meat. If the roast remained cold in the first move that was no reason why it couldn't be refrozen. And keeping it in the car in the cold weather you probably kept it at the same temperature one uses in a refrigerator. So you were okay all along. Glad it turned out so nicely.

Dear Dorothy: I see that readers have asked you how to get film stains out of teapots. I put one teaspoonful of automatic dishwasher detergent into the pot, fill with hot water and let it soak for about 15 minutes. Whether it will work on ceramic pots or not, I don't know, but my glass pot comes out spotless. —Mrs. John M.

Dear Dorothy: Noticed a friend was having trouble stringing some popcorn. Glad I was there to help out. Maybe some of your readers might not know this, either. I had her cover the bowl containing the popcorn with a damp tea towel for 30 minutes; then start the stringing. —Jessica P.

Workshop Message To Women

There's Concern For Opportunities

by GENIE CAMPBELL

A second "Expanding Horizons" workshop for women was held last week at Harper College following the success of the introductory one in October.

Retaining much of the same format, the afternoon program was designed to bring out housewives from the doldrums of the home, help them to examine their own wants and needs and then outline the opportunities available in the immediate community, whether it be a return to school, a job or volunteer work.

The program was repeated in the evening to accommodate more women.

Following a keynote address by Dr. Kathryn Clarenbach, a specialist in women's education with the University of Wisconsin, the women broke into several discussion groups where various group leaders offered suggestions and aided the women in expressing their own fears and feelings.

"THERE IS NOW a serious concern with opportunities for women in our society," began Dr. Clarenbach, who is also the original chairman of the board of National Organization for Women (NOW), chairman of the Commission on the Status of Women for Wisconsin and president of the Interstate Association of Commissions on the Status of Women.

"It has entered into serious discussion and public debate which don't make headlines in quite the same way but move more toward our objectives in quieter, more dramatic ways.

"We are currently working toward a guaranteed annual income which women need more than the men," she continued.

"Women who alone are raising their children are damned if they do, damned if they don't. If she stays home to take care of her kids, she is considered a parasite on society. If she is out earning her living, she is told it is not proper. That a mother's place is in the home with her children."

DR. CLARBACH awed the 75 housewives who had braved the cold to attend the seminar with her instances of sexual discrimination.

"Among full professors on campus at Wisconsin," cited Dr. Clarenbach, "there's an average difference of $4,000 between salaries of men and women with the same credentials."

"The gap even widens in more specialized fields," she added.

Positions in chemistry-related fields have an average $7,000 pay differential for beginning employees, Dr. Clarenbach reported.

"The average woman with a college degree working full-time receives an annual wage comparable to a black man with a high school education and a white man with an eighth grade education," she continued.

HOWEVER, DR. CLARBACH declared, the state of affairs is not hopeless.

"Today, it is a different ball game," she said. "We're recognizing the disadvantages and demanding change."

One step in the right direction, Dr. Clarenbach believes, was two executive orders by President Johnson to include the word "sex" in prohibiting discrimination of any form where service and federal contracts are involved.

"With the fair employment laws, one could mediate, but there was no means of real enforcement," pointed out Dr. Clarenbach. "The employer was simply told 'naughty, naughty,' but now those not in compliance with the law can have their federal contracts lifted."

"THIS ALSO GOES for universities," she said. "Institutions of learning had previously been exempted. Now there are no exceptions. A university would crumble without its federal contracts."

Dr. Clarenbach cited University of Michigan as an example. Funds were actually withheld until discriminatory practices against female faculty members were eliminated.

"I am not of the branch of women's liberation that is man-eating," said Dr.

Clarenbach, mother of three. "We do not have to exclude men. We must learn to work with them on all kinds of levels without overtones of sexuality."

"It takes all kinds of people doing all kinds of things. It was insulting to us to be told we couldn't ride on executive flights (airlines now allow women on all flights), play golf only on ladies day, not be allowed for lunch in some restaurants where a great deal of business transacts over the noon hour, or be denied bank loans, insurance or mortgages unless our husbands are present."

"THE GOALS ARE now identified," she concluded. "We are beginning to take active steps to bring about changes."

The women expressed individual reasons for attending the seminar.

"I'd like to find some means of self-expression," said one.

"I came to listen and think for myself a little about what I'd like to do," said someone else.

"I'm here because I'm curious," added still another.

It was brought out in one discussion group following the keynote address that women desiring to return to full-time employment must seek the cooperation of their husband and children.

"You can't do it alone," commented one working mother. "The attitude of your husband makes all the difference."

Take Care Of Feet In Cold Weather

The Illinois Podiatry Society, the professional organization of podiatrists or foot specialists, offers the following advice for care of feet during cold weather.

Being the farthest from the heart, the feet are not as well supplied by body temperature in cold weather as the rest of the body. To avoid getting your feet frostbitten, here are a few simple things you and your family can do when the thermometer goes down.

1. Make sure that children have warm socks, shoes and rubber boots. The frustrating job of putting rubber boots on children can be overcome by applying a plastic bag (Baggies, Saran Wrap, etc.) over the shoe before inserting it into the boot. The plastic bag will also insulate the feet against moisture and keep them warm. In deep snow adhesive or masking tape can be applied around the top of the boots to prevent snow from getting inside the boot.

2. WOMEN'S LOWER extremities usually suffer the most in the winter time because of current fashion trends. Regardless of fashion, warm knee socks should be worn over the nylons, and winter boots (preferably to mid-calf) should be worn to and from work. The girls who insist on wearing mini-skirts, even in extremely cold weather, should wear maxi-tights underneath to keep their feet and legs warm while commuting to and from work. Maxi-coats are excellent; however, in snowy weather, they should be worn with boots to prevent the frozen hem of the coat from hitting the legs.

3. For men who have to work long hours outdoors or stand on cold floors, two pairs of woolen socks, warm shoes and rubber boots are a must. Shoes should be alternated to assure a dry pair in the morning. Plastic-wrap loosely wrapped around the socks will insulate the foot and keep it dry. For the white collar male, it is a good idea to get a Wellington-type boot or galoshes to wear to and from work. His dress shoes will then remain dry and clean all the time.

4. THE SENIOR CITIZENS are the hardest hit by the cold weather. They should wear warm socks or cotton stockings and comfortable shoes. Rubber boots are important to keep the feet warm and dry and to avoid the hazards of slipping on the ice. Loose socks should also be worn at bed-time, particularly if poor circulation is a problem. Above all, long exposure to sub-zero weather should be avoided.

5. Finally, to restore circulation to the feet after prolonged exposure to cold, first rub the feet gently for about 10 minutes; afterwards bath in warm (NOT HOT) water and massage with hand cream. Put on a pair of warm socks and keep your feet elevated as much as possible. This will give your feet a chance to recuperate, and they will be ready to walk into the cold again the next morning.

Abortion Only First Step, Anti-Abortion Film Warns

A physician involved in the Right To Life Movement told about 130 persons at an anti-abortion meeting Thursday, "The Freudian viewpoint suggests that everyone would like to go back to the security of the womb. But today the womb is one of the most unsafe places to be."

Dr. Herbert Rohr, a member of St. Theresa's Catholic Church, Palatine, gave a group of his fellow parishioners a low pressure presentation on the legal, social, medical and moral aspects of the abortion issue.

He then showed a film, "The Committee," produced for the Right to Life group, that depicted abortion as the first step in a chain of homicide which would include mercy killing and selective liquidation of the elderly.

"The abortion issue is just a learner's permit as far as the license to kill is concerned," the narrator said.

"THE COMMITTEE" used a reverse psychology approach to comment that the mistakes society doesn't catch at six weeks, it would conceivably catch at six years or 60 years. "Society grows heavy under the weight of mistakes. How does it handle mistakes? Kill them."

"People could construct a brave new world," the film continued, "and create human beings they structured, while playing God with the quality of life."

The film ended with a blunt, dire statement on the changing social patterns. "Nineteen eight-four is only 14 (sic) years from now."

Dr. Rohr said that most persons advocating abortion are well-meaning but that some extreme proponents of abortion law relaxation are interested in breaking down the family structure and lessening the value of life.

HE SUGGESTED that those against abortion make their position known to their legislators. "Forget about state aid to education if necessary," he said, "but get out and beat the drums for the right to life."

The answer to unwanted pregnancy, volunteered a man in the audience, is similar in concept to the principle of dieting. "If you don't want to get fat, don't eat."

A NEW TECHNIQUE for painting wall murals has been developed by a California firm, Muralmasters of Fountain Valley, Calif. It takes the old idea of "paint-by-numbers" and uses a new copy process known as Diaz-O-Carb. The line includes 36 different designs in 62

The Way We See It

Metro Deserves Rational Study

Metropolitan Government.

Rarely have two words generated as much apprehension and controversy as these did several years ago when former Arlington Heights Mayor John G. Woods proposed a merger of 10 Northwest suburban communities into one.

"You'll destroy our local identity."

"We'll become another Chicago."

"We'll have high crime rates and ghettos."

"It's all part of a takeover by the state and we'll end up with socialism."

Emotion, rather than reason, characterized the reaction to Woods' proposal, after a few months of conversation and study, the proposal quietly faded and hasn't been heard from since.

Until now. Last week, the Commission on Urban Area Government submitted to Governor Ogilvie a legislative program aimed at "the survival of the institution of local government."

There has been little publicity given the proposal thus far and that apparently explains the lack of opposition.

But opposition will surely come, and our hope now is that the proposal can get a fair and impartial hearing before any decision is made to accept or reject it.

We will reserve our judgment of the proposal until specific legislation is offered and the legislative process begins.

But we do think some points should be made concerning the proposal and the current status of government in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Because of a provision in the 1870 Illinois Constitution that restricts the debt limit of government units, Illinois has been plagued by an overabundance of such units, many created for the sole purpose of dealing with a particular problem which other units could not deal with because the Constitution would not allow them to spend the necessary money.

As a result, Illinois currently has 6,453 units of local government, more than any other state. As the commission pointed out in its report, there are more local government units serving Illinois residents than there are dentists.

The effects of this are felt most severely in the suburbs where population growth and the demand for immediate services is generally several years ahead of the expanded tax base that can keep taxes at a reasonable level. The result is higher taxes and more governmental units.

The average homeowner in the Northwest suburbs is paying taxes to as many as 11 different local government units. These include village, township, county, forest preserve district, fire protection district, elementary school district, high school district, junior college district, mosquito abatement district, sanitary district, park district and tuberculosis protection district.

It costs money to administer each of these districts and, without a doubt, it would cost less if some were consolidated. It also would cost less if, for example, 10 towns had one police department with one police chief and one communications system.

There can be no denying that some form of consolidation would result in a lower price tag — and lower taxes — for government services. It has worked in the past and, in at least one case, the results have been dramatic.

In 1967, voters in Jacksonville, Fla., and Duval County agreed to consolidate the functions of the two government agencies. The outcome has been astounding.

Not only have taxes gone down each year since the merger, but with revenue saved by avoiding duplication, the community has been able to add 134 policemen and 200 firemen, it has been able to install 7,500 street lights, it has paved or resurfaced 676 miles of streets and has replaced 132 miles of sewers. And taxes have decreased.

Those are impressive facts; the tax decrease alone would be welcomed with open arms in the Northwest suburbs. There is no reason to believe that similar economies would not follow such a consolidation in the Chicago area, either as a metropolitan unit or a series of regional units similar to the one proposed by Woods.

We are not endorsing metropolitan government for the Chicago area at this time. We want to hear more facts and more about the commission proposal. But we do think the available facts and possible tax savings are substantial enough that the Commission on Urban Area Government's proposal must be given a fair and open hearing without the emotional outcry that accompanied the previous discussion.

us any factual figures on income or expenses proposed.

Given this information, I will have to stand against incorporation. Not because I'm against it, but because I cannot make an intelligent and independent decision on the information provided.

Does each member of PHIA have to get their own figures? Or will PHIA attempt to present information more factually and impartially?

This group may have spent many hours and given up many other activities to be on the PHIA Board, however, I cannot appreciate it if their information does not help me make up my own mind. I do not want this group to spearhead my new village or city government, if they cannot do a more complete job before making up their minds.

Marijuana Isn't Pink Tea

by DOROTHY MEYER

If it's possible to talk something to death, marijuana may keep over tomorrow. I'm getting my licks in on the subject today. Don't expect a lofty opinion about whether or not the stuff should be legalized, moralized, fertilized or pasteurized. I don't know.

What I do know about using marijuana is that it's stupid, dangerous and expensive. I know this because I read a lot of suburban newspapers every day, and everything I read and mark is clipped and filed in Paddock Publications' editorial library. That's my job here.

Filing news stories means making thousands of reference cards on thousands of people so that we can find any given item a month, a year or five years later. And the reference cards for kids picked up on marijuana charges tell a sad sad story. Only once could I grin a little and that was two years ago when I read about the juvenile who paid $5 for a joint that turned out to be parsley. That's why I say using marijuana is stupid. Even as a dumb bride I knew better than to pay $5 for a bunch of parsley.

The sadness comes when I make a reference card on an attempted suicide and discover that I already have a card on him for marijuana. Some time after the marijuana entry he must have slipped into using the hard stuff (82 per cent of the "weed is wonderful" kids do) because there was the ultimate need for a third reference. Suicide. The poor kid finally made it.

Dorothy Meyer

Second references to "CRIME — theft" are commonplace. Naturally the $5-a-joint buyer has to steal to support his pleasures. Maybe some of affluent suburbia's offspring can hit dear old Dad for a fiver a day with no questions asked, but most families can't afford that. So juvenile crime is on the rise. Yes, Virginia, marijuana is expensive.

Pot party raids and raids on pushers are sad sick filing, too. Almost inevitably there'll be stolen property and contributing to the delinquency of a minor involved in the pot parties; pushers lean more towards the possession of pornographic material and deviate sexual assaults. Just don't anybody try to come me that using marijuana is no worse than my martini-before-dinner habit. The worst thing I do after dinner is fall asleep.

Advocates of marijuana make me fall asleep, too. Their arguments are so monotonously alike I sometimes think they all come equipped with tapes, like talking dolls. Cold logic tells me that half of them make a profit on the stuff and the other half are willing sheep who believe the profiteers' propaganda.

Cold logic also tells me that I have a valid comeback to those who will claim that I err technically when I file marijuana as a narcotic. It isn't pink tea, junior. And if it's non-narcotic marijuana today it's probably going to be hard narcotics tomorrow so why not save reference cards and file it 82 per cent right the first time.

Although I don't always swallow statistics whole, I think I have to believe that 82 per cent bit. Logic again. If a kid is so jaded with life by the time he's 16 that he has to turn to the phoney high of marijuana for kicks, he sure isn't going to think the simple pleasures of life are great when he's 18. Marijuana will be kid stuff by then.

I get ticked off by the advocates' argument, "Dad gets high on martinis, Mom on pills, why not the kids on marijuana," because we Meyers aren't like that. But even if we were I'd use disc jockey Larry Lujack's answer, "So where is it written you gotta be as stupid as your parents?"

And I'd add my own, "So show me a martini drinker who'd pay $5 for a bunch of parsley."

'Doesn't Anybody Care?'

by SANDRA BROWNING

The Volunteer Bureau of Northwest Cook County is going to die if no one cares.

The bureau, which serves as a clearing house for volunteers, has been struggling from month to month to keep financially alive. This critical life or death struggle has been going on for about a year.

And the main reason for the problems seems to be because the bureau is so needed and so popular, it has been forced to constantly expand. Expansion costs money.

Formed about two years ago, the bureau serves both the person who wants to volunteer his time and the agencies which seek people with special talents and time to give. The main branch of the bureau operates from donated space at John Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

Although the office doesn't cost any money, the telephone does. And so does the executive director (who is paid the unbelievably low salary of $500 per month) and other necessary items. Four branch offices of the bureau being served by volunteer coordinators have been established to serve Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Township. Plans are presently underway to start an additional branch office in the Elk Grove Village area.

During the period of Aug. 31 to Dec. 31, the bureau has placed a total of 536 volunteers in various assignments. A large number of the volunteers work in schools and during this period, school Dist. 52 received 4,396 hours of volunteer time, Dist. 57 received 418 hours of free time and Dist. 23 received 484 hours.

The predominance of volunteer time spent in Dist. 25, which serves Arlington Heights, stems from the bureau's beginnings. The concept was developed by a committee of the Arlington Heights Clergy Fellowship and the bureau started in the village.

However, judging from what has happened in one town, the same type of growth will be found in other towns, school districts and areas. As a branch office is organized and begins operating, the number of volunteers and the hours they serve increase rapidly.

The entire area of Northwest suburban Cook County will undoubtedly call on the resources of the bureau in the future . . . that is, if the bureau is still there.

The bureau operates strictly from donated funds. It was originally supported by donations from churches, community organizations and other groups. As the bureau grew and the need was apparent for a full-time directorship, the board of the bureau hired a director. As the growth kept multiplying, there was an obvious need for paid secretarial help, but none was hired because there wasn't any money.

Last week, the bureau's executive director, Esther Rabchuk, resigned effective March 1. In her resignation, she stated the bureau has reached the point where it needs a full-time professional director, preferably someone with a background in social work and business administration. She also stated that the new director should be career oriented, rather than a housewife who sandwiches in her family duties with the duties of executive director.

This type of director could cost between $8,000 and $14,000 per year, depending on the experience of the person hired.

At present, the bureau has a pledge of about $3,300 from the Arlington Heights United Fund and the precedent of receiving money from elementary school Dist. 25 and high school Dist. 214.

The board of the bureau is presently faced with a dilemma. The bureau may lose its director within six weeks and has no money to pay a new one. The director has been an "understanding" one, sometimes waiting weeks to receive her paycheck.

The closing of the bureau would be a tremendous loss at the present for this entire area. It would also be an even greater loss to the future of Northwest Cook County. A loss not only to people who would like to volunteer and don't know where to go but also a loss to the agencies, including tax supported schools.

The board has consistently acted with the attitude that "If we have faith, something will happen." Things have progressed much too far for this type of an attitude. And now, nothing may happen to save the bureau.

As one board member put it, "We might fold up . . . and I wonder if anybody cares."

I wonder, too.

Young Vandals Spoil Holiday

Once again my husband and I packed away our outdoor Christmas lights, and resolved that next year we wouldn't go to the bother. At least five acts of vandalism were committed in the past two weeks on our meager, but very dear to us, property. Heaven knows what others had to endure. Lights were stolen, broken and strewn around our yard; rose cones were smashed in the process and light wires snipped with cutters. We did report this to our very fine police department, but we realize how difficult a situation such as this is to control.

By the time the holidays come around again, we will probably put our lights and decorations out again, for we enjoy them very much. I only wish that the youngsters who delight in this destructive activity could be encouraged somehow to stop just a moment and try to see the beauty of the celebration of Christmas.

If you think that your child might even possibly be involved in this, please take the time to read this to him and discuss it. To respect the property of others is a valuable lesson, one which can be learned and understood early in life. Thank you.

PHIA 'Facts' Insufficient

I attended a meeting of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association at Hersey High School on January 19, 1971.

The purpose of this meeting, as I understood it, was to inform the members of PHIA of the facts in the case for incorporation, annexation, or status quo.

This was not done. The PHIA Board had already made up their minds to push for incorporation. To make matters worse, their preparation and presentation was extremely poor. Their figures were vague and what figures they had were for the entire Prospect Heights area including approximately 20,000 to 25,000 people, and they were really discussing a much smaller area of about 8,000 people. They could not validate these population figures. They could not outline the actual area they were thinking of incorporating. They could not give

It's A Race Again! West Falters, 70-65

by LARRY MLYNCZAK
It is going to be a race after all. When most Central Suburban League observers were already pointing out Maine West as the eventual CSL champs with relative ease, the Warriors went Southward Friday night — to Maine South where the Warriors were upset 70-65 before a standing room only crowd in the spacious Hawk gymnasium.

Maine West took a 6-0 Central Suburban League record into the contest and needed a victory to take a two-game lead over the rest of the league when meeting

Maine South which entered with a 5-1 mark. But the Warriors had a mediocre shooting night from the floor, shot poorly from the free throw lane and committed numerous turnovers while Maine South played a steady game.

Four Warriors scored in double figures with Kummer leading with 17. Bruce Kerr had 15 points, George Woodley 11 and Dennis Willison 10. Fred Horn added nine points. Jeff Heist two and Jim Hanselmann one.

The Warriors, after a jump ball, got another shot off but it was missed and rebounded by Bonk who passed out to Hylen who eventually scored to make it 68-61.

The first quarter gave an indication of how close a game it was going to be all the way. The lead changed hands twice and the score was tied on five different occasions. Kerr did most of the Warriors scoring in the first period seven points as Maine West took a 19-18 lead.

Guards Destroy Demons

by JIM STUART
When you beat a team on its home court, it figures that you should have little trouble with that team on your own court, especially when its star player appears at the contest in civilian clothes.

Dale DesChamps caught fire for two successive buckets, the Trojans held a 22-16 lead at the quarter. Two-pointers by DesChamps and Jack Cronin at the opening of period two narrowed the gap to two, and suddenly there was another pier-sixer at Park Ridge.

As Maine South took the ball out of bounds, Hanselmann stole the ball but missed on a shot from the corner and in the ensuing scramble for the rebound Jones was fouled and sank two foul shots to make it 66-59 with 1:30 to play. With 1:18 left Woodley was accurate with a jump shot to make it 68-61. Horn stole the ball the next time Maine South came down the floor but the Warriors were unable to score.

The Warriors, after a jump ball, got another shot off but it was missed and rebounded by Bonk who passed out to Hylen who eventually scored to make it 68-61.

On two different occasions in the early going of the final period Maine West managed to cut the Hawk lead to three points. But in the last five minutes and 25 seconds the Warriors never came any closer.

The two guards, Jack Branta and sophomore Jim O'Flaherty, played a small part in the Trojan offense that was dominated by Wonsowski. But big Gary was on the bench with an injury Friday night, and suddenly the backcourt men were thrust into the lead roles.

DesChamps and Cronin went to work immediately as the second half opened, combining for all 14 of the Demons' points in the third stanza.

After Cronin and Downers' Pete Lazotte traded baskets for a 37-34 Trojan lead, the box score for the next few minutes read DesChamps 7, Downers 0. The classy Demon forward tied the score with a three-pointer on a drive, then added a 20-footer and a tip-in to give his team a 41-37 lead.

In the next 20 seconds Maine West missed two layups and four free throws before Kummer finally got the Warriors back within five points at 64-59.

But Maine, as has been its custom all season, kept the game close most of the way. It was not until the final two minutes that the desperate Demons fell hopelessly behind.

That was the high point of the night for East. All of a sudden it was Branta from 20, O'Flaherty from the corner and Branta again from outside, and with 1:49 remaining in the third period the Trojans had their lead back.

Secretary, 27, Found Dead

A 27-year-old legal secretary was found dead in her Des Plaines apartment early Friday morning, an apparent suicide victim.

According to Des Plaines police, Janet Kotlaba, 640 Murray Ln., was found lying on her bathroom floor shortly after midnight Friday by her roommate, Marilyn Gunderson, who had just returned from a date.

Miss Gunderson called police after she could get no response from Miss Kotlaba. She also called for a fire department ambulance.

Patrolman James Kautz found two empty aspirin bottles, an empty cold tablet bottle and two empty prescribed medicine bottles in the bathroom.

Kautz also found two empty liquor bottles in the kitchen and two apparent suicide notes written by Miss Kotlaba. One note was addressed to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kotlaba of Cary, Ill.

KRAUTZ SAID THAT when he found her, one of Miss Kotlaba's hands appeared to be pulling on her hair and there were several strands of hair, possibly her own in the hand.

He said he found no indication of missing items or anything unusual out of place.

Miss Gunderson said she last saw her roommate at 7:45 p.m. Thursday when she left the apartment. She said Miss Kotlaba had been sitting on the living room couch at that time.

Miss Kotlaba was taken to Holy Family Hospital, where she was pronounced dead on arrival. Her body was taken to the Cook County Morgue where it will be examined by a coroner's physician.

Youth Found Guilty Of Marijuana Charge

A Des Plaines youth was found guilty of possessing marijuana last week in connection with an Oct. 23 police raid on a local home.

Richard Semour, 20, of 2699 Craig Dr., Des Plaines, was found guilty on the charge by Judge Marvin Peters, who delayed sentencing until next month, according to Des Plaines police.

Semour was arrested Oct. 23 when police said they found him standing over a toilet bowl that allegedly contained a quantity of marijuana during a raid on a house at 1319 Campbell Ave., Des Plaines.

Police said they arrived and were admitted to the house after receiving a tip that four persons were smoking marijuana in the house's back yard, according to police reports at the time.

For $230 Million Budget

County Hearings Set Today

Committee hearings get underway this morning on a major portion of a record $230 million budget for Cook County.

County Board President George W. Dunne Friday presented a 1971 operating budget of $119,636,857 at a special meeting of the board. The proposed appropriation did not include an additional $111 million from the county hospital commission.

After reading a prepared statement explaining highlights, Dunne referred the budget to Commissioner Jerome Hupert, finance committee chairman, for hearings with county department heads to review various appropriations requests.

Dunne noted the funds request from the hospital commission was still being prepared and would be presented later. He explained State Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan advised him adoption of the corporate fund and hospital budgets did not have to coincide. Hanrahan based his opinion on legislation last year that created a commission to run the hospital independent of the county board, said Dunne.

Although the organizational structure has changed, the hospital commission must still depend on the county board for money to run two hospitals and a school of nursing.

Regner Appointed To Key House Committee

State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has been named chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, one of the most important committees in the Illinois House of Representatives.

The appointment was announced yesterday by Speaker of the House W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest.

The appropriations committee must hear all appropriation requests in the House, including those relating to the state's budget and the budgets of all state departments.

Screening Wall 4 Years Old

The screening wall which collapsed on three boys Wednesday at Arlington High School was built four years ago when the restroom was remodeled, school personnel said yesterday.

The restroom itself, however, is part of the original building constructed in 1921, John Rowe, assistant principal said yesterday.

The boy's rest room and a girl's rest room at the other end of the second floor corridor were refitted, new fixtures were installed and the walls, which screen the inside of the rooms from the hall, were constructed by a contractor, he said.

The wall, which was eight feet high and ten feet long, collapsed when at least two of the boys braced their backs against it while trying to force their way through the double doors which had been barred from the outside.

A metal partition was apparently knocked down as the wall fell and pulled part of the false ceiling down with it.

A spokesman for High School Dist. 214 said yesterday the district has liability insurance of up to $10 million which covers accidents within the building. Also, he said, the district has insurance to cover damage to the wall.

Richard Stamm, a member of the board of education of Dist. 214 and a refrigeration and heating engineer, said he

Students from Lincoln, Emerson, Apollo, and Gemini junior high schools played with the Maine East concert band for the final two numbers, the concert may go on record as the largest and possibly best concert ever given at Maine East.

One highlight of the 1971 Winter Band Concert was when senior Dorothy Bollrahs played a bassoon solo entitled, "Bassoonata," by David Bennett. The program also featured a wind ensemble made up of 42 members from the concert band. These students performed Barber's "Commando March," and "Dedication Overture" by Giannini.

Conducting the concert was Jack Williamson, associate band director, and Theodore Vargas, music department chairman. Guest conductors were Fred Hubbell, elementary school Dist. 64, and Donald Filla, elementary school Dist. 63, both junior high school supervisors of instrumental music.

Three Selected For Music Group Meet

Three Elk Grove High School students were selected as a result of statewide auditions to play at the Illinois Music Educators Association meeting to be held in Peoria today through Sunday.

Bill DeFotis on clarinet and Scott Bentall on trombone were selected to be members of the all-state 100-member festival band. Tom Kincaid will play with the all-state orchestra as a percussionist.

The selection of Bill and Tom makes this the second year in a row that they have been honored to play for the all-state festival music organization.

Scott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bentall, 326 Brighton, and Tom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kincaid, 208 Ridgewood Rd., both in Elk Grove Village. Bill is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George DeFotis, 615 Jill Court, Des Plaines.

Richard Stamm, a member of the board of education of Dist. 214 and a refrigeration and heating engineer, said he board is scheduled to review findings. A public hearing has been set for Feb. 8.

Comparison of combined figures showed the new budget more than 20 per cent over that of 1971.

Dunne said a 1971 property tax levy of $43,086,563 would be required to support the corporate fund. Earlier in the week, he reported the corporate fund plus the anticipated budget request from the hospital commission would push up the property tax rate 5 cents over its current 70 cents per $100 evaluation. This is only one cent below the legal ceiling the county is authorized to levy.

Explaining some of the reasons behind budget hikes, Dunne said, "The major increase in the corporate budget has been brought about by a readjustment of our compensation plan. This accounts for a $7,752,613.00 increase."

Moreover, Dunne noted, 137 new jobs under his office will cost an additional $1,094,707. Another $2.2 million will go for new positions being added to other county agencies.

Dunne also described widespread salary hikes as a key factor pushing up the budget request.

Finance committee hearings will begin today at 10 a.m. and will run until noon Wednesday when a special session of the board is scheduled to review findings. A public hearing has been set for Feb. 8.

Palatine Firm's Plan

Homes Around An Airstrip?

While current suburbs are built around the automobile, a new suburb being planned by a Palatine corporation will be built around the airplane.

DNT, Inc., 537 Echo Ln., Palatine, is planning to develop a new subdivision near Hampshire, 12 miles west of Elgin.

President of DNT, Don DeBolt, said the subdivision will be like most new communities being built today, except that in the center of the community will be an airstrip.

DNT is selling lots along the airstrip, which the company is building. When buying a lot, the owner will build his own ranging from three-quarters to one acre each, DeBolt said. They will sell from $12,000 to $14,000 each.

All lots will be next to the landing strip, DeBolt explained. When a person builds his home on the lot he buys, he can attach an air hanger to his house like most suburbanites do with garages for their car.

In buying a lot, DeBolt said, a person also buys stock in Casa de Aero, Inc., a company DNT set up to own the airstrip. This makes the resident partial owner of the airstrip.

DeBolt EXPLAINED that this type of land development project is not for everybody. While the company will sell lots to people who do not own airplanes, he said the property will appeal mainly to air enthusiasts.

DNT selected the location for the subdivision because it was suited for this kind of development. In building a new airstrip, one must consider O'Hare Airport. The developers had to consider the inverted pyramid where most of the O'Hare traffic will congregate. The Hampshire site is many miles away from this busy zone, even at 5,000 feet up.

DNT also had to get a special use permit to build the airstrip, DeBolt said. In Kane County, where the strip is located, one has the land zoned for farming and then applies for a special use permit.

DeBolt feels that there is a need for such a subdivision among airplane enthusiasts. Flying, as a hobby, is time consuming, he said. After a person comes home from work and wants to work on his hobby, he has to travel many miles to a country airport.

In recent years, the number of private airstrips in the Chicago metropolitan area have been decreasing. By buying a lot and building a home in the DNT development, a person can work on his hobby right in his own backyard. After spending a day in the office, a commuter can drive home and go flying for an hour, he said.

WHEN DeBOLT IS NOT working for DNT, he is an airline pilot for American Airlines. He flies on Monday and Tuesday and spends the rest of the weekdays working on DNT.

Other executives with DNT are also airline pilots. Vice president Ed Nurby works for American and Don Taylor, DNT's secretary is employed by United Air Lines.

Taylor is also vice president of the Experimental Aircraft Association.

When setting up DNT, the company located its headquarters in DeBolt's home in Palatine. DeBolt points out that DNT stands for the first initials of the three head executives of the corporation.

DeBolt said that a subdivision built around an airstrip is nothing new. There are similar developments in California, Ohio and Pennsylvania. In the Chicago area, such subdivisions exist near Downers Grove and Naperville.

Hampshire's subdivision may be one of a kind for DNT, DeBolt said. However, DNT may build another depending on how the Hampshire project goes.

TWO AIRLINE PILOTS Don Taylor and Don DeBolt are secretary and president respectively of DNT, Inc., a company developing a subdivision built around an airstrip. Both examine plans for the project, which will be built near Hampshire, a small community in Kane County, west of Elgin.

College Hospitality Goes Unrewarded

by LESTER KINSOLVING

St. Mary's College, in a suburb of Oakland, Calif., was nationally known as "the Notre Dame of the West" in the golden (and, eventually, the disastrously expensive) era of the inimitably colorful coach Patrick ("Slip") Madigan.

Today, this Christian Brothers institution ought to be known nationally for its charitable hospitality — despite rather extraordinary circumstances.

For St. Mary's provides its spacious and attractive chapel (capacity: 700) for the four Sunday Masses of suburban Moraga's Catholic Parish, St. Monica's, which has no building of its own. St. Monica's contributes a mere $500 per month for this privilege — a fraction of what it would cost if the parish constructed its own building and paid such attendant costs as utilities, janitorial services and grounds keeping.

Yet, despite this bargain, the clergy and students of St. Mary's College have not always fared well at the hands of their guest parish.

On May 28, 1968, at what was designated as a Mass for students, student Rick Anderson, under the direction of St. Mary's chaplain Father Roderick Garvey, CSSR, took the pulpit and quoted a number of Papal Encyclicals on the subject of peace (an apparently controversial subject in some sections of Moraga).

St. Monica's pastor, Father Edward Casey, immediately rose and told the startled student congregation:

"AS LONG AS I am here, no layman, student or adult, is going to give a testimonial unless the charisma is so evident that the Holy Spirit comes down in some visible form and picks up the preacher by the hair of his head and lifts him into the pulpit!" (This is the same month that Britain's Cardinal Heenan had laymen preaching in Catholic pulpits all over England.)

Six days later, Chaplain Garvey's CSSR Provincial withdrew his priestly faculties — at the request of Bishop Floyd Beggs of the Diocese of Oakland. (After news of this disciplinary action broke in The San Francisco Chronicle, Bishop Beggs' office announced that the Bishop had merely asked Father Garvey not to say Mass for one Sunday. But the St. Mary's chaplain insisted that there had been no such time limitation in the action taken against him.)

This Fall, St. Monica's Pastor Casey again went to bat, by barring from his parish's (borrowed) pulpit one of St. Mary's College's most renowned faculty members, Father Peter Riga.

Father Riga, a professor of theology, had been preaching every Sunday (for which he was paid $25 by St. Monica's) as well as hearing confessions and instructing parish education classes, for the past four years. But Father Riga is a decidedly liberal theologian, a prolific writer, a compelling orator, and an extremely outspoken opponent of: (1) the Vietnamese War (2) compulsory clergy celibacy (3) draft exemption for clergy (4) capital punishment (5) the treatment of farm laborers by agribusiness (6) the Pope's opposition to contraception — among other issues.

What particularly drives conservative Catholics up the wall, however, is this insufferably brilliant priest's expressed opposition to what he regards as unrealistic pornography laws — and his having testified for the defense in obscenity trials.

"IN THE CATHEDRAL at Chartres," notes the tall, raven-haired theologian, "there is a very interesting tableau divided into two parts . . . 'Husbands, love your wives' appears above the clear image of a Christian couple in bed in the evident act of sexual intercourse. Then the second frame has 'As Christ loved the Church,' over the clear image of Christ (with divine halo) in bed with his wife, the Church, in the evident act of sexual embrace."

"Such an image is beautiful," contends Father Riga, "since it expresses so well the incarnational reality of human married love in its relation to Christ." But, he adds, "This would shock many Christians today."

Father Riga is right — certainly in Morago. For the Parish Council of St. Monica's Parish decided that "Father Riga's sermons are too 'political' and disturbing to the people."

So, despite petitions from 250 people, Father Casey says: "The case is closed, and I do mean closed."

The doors of St. Mary's Chapel have not been closed on Father Casey and his parish, however. And this appears to be not only an example of particularly charitable "turning of the other cheek" by St. Mary's, but a vivid illustration that the Catholic Church is not the rigid monolith which some of its enemies suppose it to be.

For the Rev. Peter Riga, even though banned from St. Monica's (Borrowed) Catholic pulpit, is still teaching in St. Mary's Catholic classrooms, as well as preaching every Sunday in another parish of the Oakland Diocese, St. Joseph's in Pinole. (Copyright Chronicle Publishing Co. 1971)

"Guaranteed success, or your money back."

This is a familiar advertising slogan, but it has never yet been used to advertise shares in a mutual fund. And for a very good reason.

Up to now, mutual fund buyers have been expected to take their chances right along with every other investor in the stock market, where the only thing certain has been uncertainty.

Now along comes a plan to guard mutual fund participants against loss. It's nothing less than insurance that guarantees you against leaving the fund with less than you came in with.

If this sounds almost suspicious, like a street corner peddler with dollar bills at a discount, set your mind at rest. It's real enough, and will do just what it says it will do. But it may not be quite the bargain it first appears.

For one thing, it's the shareholder him-about 6 per cent of the amount he has invested.

That may be fair enough, but it has to be compared with the coverage the bank saver gets on his deposit. That comes to him free, with the bank picking up the tab.

THEN THERE'S the term involved. The investor who buys such coverage right now has to sign up for a minimum of 10 years. In other words, if he invests $5,000 now, his only chance to collect will be if his investment can't be liquidated for at least $5,000 in 1980.

In the meantime, of course, he has to keep paying those premiums to keep the policy in force.

Then there's the matter of income, or nonincome, to be more precise. One of the requirements for insurance is that the investor must agree to reinvest all dividend payments and capital gains distributions.

This rules out all those investors who put their money into funds that aim for current income rather than growth. The dividends they would otherwise receive would have to be plowed back into the plan to make them eligible for the insurance.

Such transfusions of additional dollars into the basic investment make it all the more likely, of course, that the investor will keep his stake intact. If he does, the insurer won't have to pay off.

But with all the negative aspects, the plan will perform as advertised. When the end of the insurance period arrives, the investor need have no doubts about getting at least his money back.

Of course, he probably would have gotten it back anyway. Despite the current doldrums, the market trend is generally up. Not all fund performances follow the market averages, of course, but the odds do seem good.

If they don't, chances are this insurer won't be in any hurry to offer this kind of coverage.
